JOSEPH LIPPENCOTT. WM. C. BARR.
LIPPENCOTT & BARR,
(LATE J. S. STRICKLER & CO.)
Manufacturers of Phœnix Fire Proof Safes,
Second street, between Wood and Smithfield.
ON Tuesday afternoon, July 25, 1848, the undersigned were called upon by Messrs. Lippencott & Barr, to witness an honest and fair test of one of their Phœnix Safes. The furnace being prepared, the Safe was placed inside thereof, with books, papers and some money; when the door of the Safe was closed and the fire kindled at a quarter past 2 o'clock, and in a short time the Safe was red hot, and continued till half past 6 o'clock, being about four and a half hours, when the committee expressed their satisfaction that the time occupied with such heat was sufficient. The furnace was then pulled down, Safe cooled, and door opened—the books, papers and money safe. The heat was so great as to melt off the brass mountings. We therefore take pleasure in recommending these Safes to the public, as being, in our judgment, entirely fire proof.

In calling upon the above gentlemen for their signatures, they all spoke in the highest terms of the fairness of the test, and their full confidence of the Safe's being entirely fire-proof. We have constantly on hand and for sale a full assortment of the above Safes.

DR. JAYNE'S FAMILY MEDICINES.—Extract of a letter from the Rev. E. L. ABBOTT, a well-known and highly esteemed Missionary in the kingdom of Burmah, dated Sandoway Arracan, February, 1846:
Dr. D. Jayne, Philadelphia: My Dear Sir—We are now in great want of your Medical Preparations. Your CARMINATIVE BALSAM is an invaluable Medicine in this country in Bowel Complaints, and has been used in all our Missions with the most gratifying success. I have known it in many cases to act like a charm. Your SANATIVE PILLS are my Sheet Anchor. The best medicine for my Liver Complaint and pain in the side, that I have ever used. They are in great demand, and we are entirely out of them. We need five hundred boxes of them. Bro. Beecher says we could use a thousand boxes yearly among our people to great advantage. I have used your TONIC VERMIFUGE as a Tonic in INTERMITTENT FEVER, with the most complete success. I think it was once the means of saving my own son. During my travels among the churches the past season, I found a whole village suffering under a prevailing influenza, attended with Coughs of a most violent character. I often regretted I had not had a dozen or two of YOUR EXPECTORANT to administer to them, for I believe from what I have seen of its effects, that it would have been just the thing for those poor people. I presume you have not hitherto had an idea to what an extent your medicines are used in all our Missions. Affectionately yours, E. L. ABBOTT.

State Mutual Fire Insurance Company
BRANCH OFFICE, 54 SMITHFIELD st., PITTSBURGH.
January 1st, 1851.
THE best evidence of the success of the Directors in endeavoring to make the "STATE MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY" meet the wants of the community, is the unparalleled amount of business which has been done—having issued nearly 4,000 Policies in a little more than seven months; and adding over $70,000 capital to the company. The Directors are proud to say, that nearly all the property insured is of the safest kind, in small risks, and a large proportion insured for only one year.

Number of Policies issued	3,953
Amount of property insured	$4,073,588 00
Amount of guarantee premiums	$45,496 38
Amount of cash premiums	24,631 60
Amount of guarantee stock	$ 70,128 18
Amount of losses	$ 3,800 00

To be deducted from the above the incidental expenses of the office.
To city or country merchants, and owners of dwellings, and isolated or country property, it is believed this company affords advantages in point of cheapness, safety and security, inferior to no Insurance Company in this country.
Conducted on the equitable and greatly improved system of Classification of Risks, excluding all special hazards, insuring only a limited amount in any one locality, thus precluding the frequency and occurrence of large fires, and also, on both the Stock and Mutual plan, it not only possesses the cheapness and accommodation of both methods, but entitles the insured to a participation in the profits.
It is under the control of the following Directors: A. P. Rutherford, A. J. Gillett, John B. Packer, Samuel T. Jones, Alonzo A. Carrier, Philo C. Sedgwick, Ebbert Klotz.

A SEGAR.

When the weather's unpleasant and dreary,
And the night unblest by a star,
How sweet to a smoker, when weary,
Is the breath of a fragrant segar!
What a balm to the spirit, when lonely,
To gaze at the smoke as it flies!
And bright as the dreams, that dreams only,
That with each floating circle arise!

When cares flesh is heir to perplex us,
And trifles, more harassing far,
Arise in our path and sore vex us,
How soothing a fragrant segar!
If friends should prove false and leave us,
We can pass off the thing with a joke;
Nor allow their desertion to grieve us,
But let the wound vanish in smoke.

When riches seem slow in collecting,
And prospects look gloomy as night,
There's nought like a segar for directing
Our fancy to visions more bright.
Though life seems unpleasant and weary,
And its path unblest by a star,
Yet the smoker will feel, when he's weary,
That there's bliss in a fragrant segar.

WACOUSTA.

The following is an extract of an Indian tale, containing a graphic picture of American scenery and Indian life, by Major Richardson, and published by Dewitt and Davenport. By way of preface we explain that Halloway, a young man of good education and connection, being forced by adverse circumstances to enlist as a private in the British Army, is ordered on garrison duty into the wilds of North America, whither he is accompanied by his young and devoted wife. Unfortunately he commits a breach of military discipline, trivial in itself, but punishable, according to the articles of war, with death. The young man is condemned by a court martial, with however, a strong recommendation to mercy, but the governor remains inexorable, notwithstanding the entreaties of his own family and the heart-rending pleadings of the wife of the doomed man. Then ensues the following scene:

The principal inhabitants of the village led by curiosity, had followed at a distance to witness the execution of the condemned soldier, and, above the heads of the line, and crowning the slope, were collected troops of both sexes and of all ages that gave a still more imposing character to the scene. Every eye was turned upon the firing party, who only awaited the signal to execute their melancholy office, when suddenly in the direction of the forest, and upon the extreme height, burst the tremendous and deafening yells of more than a thousand savages. For an instant, Halloway was forgotten in the instinctive sense of individual danger, and all gazed eagerly to ascertain the movements of their enemy. Presently a man, naked to the waist, his body and face besmeared with streaks of black and red paint, and his whole attitude expressing despair and horror, was seen flying down the height with a rapidity proportionate to the extreme peril in which he stood. At about fifty paces in his rear followed a dozen bounding, screaming Indians armed with uplifted tomahawks, whose anxiety in pursuit lent them a speed that even surpassed the efforts of flight itself. It was evident the object of the pursued was to reach the detachment, that of the pursuers to prevent him. Foremost of the latter, and distinguished by his violent exertions, and fiendish cries, was the tall and wildly attired warrior of Fleur-de-Lis. At every bound he gained upon his victim. Already were they descending the nearest of the undulating hills, and both now became conspicuous to all around.

At that moment Halloway, who had been gazing on the scene with an astonishment little inferior to that of his comrades, sprang suddenly to his feet upon the coffin, and waving his hand in the direction of the pursuing enemy, shouted aloud in a voice of mingled joy and triumph,

"Ha! Almighty God, I thank thee!—Here comes one who alone has the power to snatch me from my impending doom."

"By Heaven, the traitor confesses; and presumes to triumph in his guilt," exclaimed the voice of one, who, while closely attending to every movement of the Indians, was also vigilantly watching the effect likely to be produced on the prisoner by this unexpected interruption. "Corporal, do your duty."

"Stay, stay—one moment stay!" implored Halloway with uplifted hands.

"Do your duty, sir," fiercely repeated the governor.

"Oh, stop—for God's sake stop! Another moment and he will be here, and then I——"

He said no more—a dozen bullets penetrated his body—one passed directly thro' his heart. He leaped several feet in the air, and then fell heavily, a lifeless, bleeding corpse across the coffin.

Meanwhile the pursuit of the fugitive was continued, but by the warrior of the Fleur de-Lis alone. Aware of their inefficiency to keep pace with this singular being, his companions had relinquished the chase, and now stood resting on the brow of the hill where the wretched Halloway first recognised his supposed deliverer, watching eagerly, though within musket shot of the detachment, the result of a race on which so much apparently depended. Neither party, however, attempted to interfere with the other, for all eyes were now turned on the flying man and his pursuer with an interest that denoted the extraordinary efforts of the one to evade and the other to attain the accomplishment of his object. The immediate course taken was in a direct line for the ravine, which it evidently was the object of the fugitive to clear at its nearest point. Already had he approached within a few paces of its brink, and every eye was fastened on the point where it was expected the doubtful leap would be taken, when suddenly, as if despairing to accomplish it at a bound, he turned to the left, and winding along its bank, renewed his efforts in the direction of the bridge. This movement occasioned a change in the position of the parties, which was favorable to the pursued. Hitherto they had been so immediately on a line with each other, it was impossible for
