Leindecker has promoted conservation as Game Protector, Pennsylvania Game Commission officer, Federated Sportsmens Clubs of Berks County, and as Berks County Director of the Wildlands Trust Fund. Often volunteering his services on behalf of the preservation of natural resources, Leindecker was honored for promoting conservation all his life.

"My Grandfather put in strip cropping in 1931, so I think my heritage of conservation goes back pretty far", commented Donald McNutt, Vo-Ag Instructor and Young Farmer Advisor, at the Conrad Weiser School District, as he accepted the honors as "Outstanding Conservation Educator of the Year". In addition to his profession duties, McNutt also advises area farmers on conservation practices and is known to be very knowledgeable on manure handling facilities and storage systems.

Hews gets USDA post

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Edward D. Hews has been named deputy manager of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, Merritt Sprague, manager of the agency, said today.

Hews replaces Robert H. Sindt, who transferred to USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Prior to accepting the crop insurance post, Hews had been deputy administrator for program planning and development at the stabilization and conservation agency. He was responsible for analytical planning of program developments, appeals and correspondence and was secretary of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Before that, Hews was executive assistant to the administrator of the agency. He was acting administrator of the agency during the transition period in 1981 and has been assistant to the deputy administrator for state and county operations.

Earlier, Hews served as chairman of he Aroostook County, Maine, Agricultural Stabilization and conservation committee. He also has served as director of the stabilization and conservation agency's northeast region and director of the eastern region.

From 1943 to 1971, Hews raised potatoes, sugar beets, barley and other crops in Maine.

Hews is a member and past director of the Maine Potato Council and has been active in the National Grange and Presque Isle Rotary Club. He has served as president of the Washington, D.C., chapters of the Maine State Society, the National Conference of State Societies and the Soil Conservation Society of America.
