Important to Travelers Going East.
THE early hour, three o'clock in the morning, at which the EXPRESS TRAIN starts for the East, from Pittsburgh, having been very inconvenient for travelers going by that train, compelling them to be aroused at a most uncomfortable time, (say 2 o'clock A. M.) or else to remain up all night. This inconvenience is now obviated by a late arrangement. That Express Train now breakfasts regularly at LATROBE, instead of Hollidaysburgh—so that travelers East can leave Pittsburgh at 5 o'clock P. M., by the Accommodation, which arrives at Latrobe at 7½ o'clock P. M., have pleasant quarters there over night at the large and elegant Hotel of Mr. Kuhn, breakfast comfortably with the other passengers in the morning, and pass on East by the Express, having DAY TRAVEL ALL THE WAY from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia or Baltimore. Every provision is made at the Hotel for the accommodation of guests and visitors by those trains. fel7:tf

THE PERILS OF CALIFORNIA EMIGRATION—THE MORMONS.

The following is an extract of a letter from a young physician, of Washington county, who emigrated to California last Spring, by the overland route. It presents some striking facts in relation to the Mormons, and to the perils some have to endure in their efforts to reach the golden land. Any person but a man of courage and perseverance would have failed in his efforts, in the midst of the difficulties which beset Dr. Gordon. We copy from the Monongahela City Republican. The letter is dated, "Sacramento City, March 14, 1853."

"When we arrived in Salt Lake City, I was so unwell that it was impossible for me to travel. The company here left me. Some of them would have remained with me, but I knew that would be useless, and I had no disposition to detain them. For a while I thought that my grave was to be made among strangers, far from all that I loved on earth, with no kind hand to soothe a fevered brain or speak a comforting word; but a kind Providence has preserved my life and restored my health. I remained here for two months; in the mean time having another attack of sickness, or rather a relapse of my former attack. As long as I had plenty of money the treatment of the Mormons was all I could ask or expect. During the first part of my sickness they charged me for board at the rate of fourteen dollars a week; after I commenced to eat they charged me but five. The 5th day of September my means were perfectly exhausted and my landlord very politely informed me that it would be out of his power to board me any longer. I thanked him very kindly for the favors I had received and started out on Sabbath morning to hunt a new boarding house. I was directed by a friend to one not far distant; entered and enquired if I could be accommodated for a short time. The first question the lady asked was, "Are you a Mormon?" My reply was no. Her answer was, "They were full." I told her I must at least stay until I could find some permanent place. Well, to this she made no particular objection, and I "turned in." I turned around, and cast my eye on an intelligent looking man about forty years of age, although quite shabbily dressed. In a short time we got into conversation, and I found he was from near Boston, Mass., but had been unfortunate in losing his team and all of his outfit on the plains.

After supper he invited me to take a walk, and his first remark after we got out of hearing, was this: "Well sir, we are now among the meanest set of people that inhabit God's footstool, and we need expect no favors. I know your situation. You have been sick and are without means; I am myself without means, or my purse should be at your disposal, as I know yours would be to me if you had it. But Sir, I am older than you are, have seen much of the world, and will show you a clear passage through the difficulties that now surround us. I am a Yankee, sir, and never become discouraged and never fail in what I undertake." I thanked him for his kindness, and wondered in my own mind what proposition he was going to make. Our conversation was then directed to other topics, and I spent quite an agreeable evening. The next morning he talked the old lady into the notion of getting her house painted and the windows puttied in, (as they were only put in with tie sprigs.) He then came to me and told me of his success and desired my assistance; I told him that I was a perfect stranger to the business, and felt a delicacy in undertaking it; his answer was, "this is no country for delicacy, necessity knows no law, and what man has done, man can do again." Well, I thought this was a good motto, and so I fell in with him, and after a week's labor we finished the job, (which by the way proved a pretty good one,) paid our board and had 4 dollars left. "Now," says he, "Doc, I have another proposition to make."

"It is now too late to go the northern route to California, and if we remain here until next summer we will be no better off than we are now, and will lose all next spring's work; and there is no remedy left but to go the southern route." I inquired how were we to go, as neither of us had five dollars, and it was a thousand miles to the Pacific coast, to which he replied, "Well Doc, I will start on foot; will you risk it?" We started on the 12th of September, with some crackers and dried beef, and our blankets, making thirty pounds a piece. I had not yet more than merely began to regain my strength after my sickness, and the first day I was able only to go five miles. We traveled three hundred miles on cold biscuit and cold water, and my feet blistered from heel to toe. Ninety of these miles were traveled on twelve crackers and half a gallon of water. My bed was the cold ground, my covering a blanket, and my lullaby the howling wolf and the whooping Indians. Then I began to think of the comforts and affections of home, and hope, the only beacon that lit my path, often flickered, and nearly became extinguished; but a punch from my Yankee friend roused me up, and I plodded on.

At the end of 300 miles was the last settlement. Here we fell in with a Mormon train, and were fortunate enough to get in as drivers of ox teams to San Barnadino, a Spanish ranch 500 miles south. Our terms were these: we were to drive through, do our own cooking, and they were to carry our baggage and provision. They were recruiting their stock, and were to start in three days, so we had to stir around and earn flour to carry us through. So on Sabbath morning we started and walked 20 miles to get to dig potatoes for a man, and take our pay in wheat, which we had to take to mill and grind and bolt by hand. At last we got a start for what I hoped a civilized part of the world. Of this Mormon train, and Mormons in general I will say but little, for they are a sect of people whose character and actions have placed them almost beneath the notice of a civilized community. I have seen so much of them and their black-hearted actions that I have become perfectly disgusted with them. This company were on their way to San Barnadino to form a settlement, and must say honestly that I never saw more outrageous conduct—more cursing and swearing in any crowd in the same length of time. Still there were some few in the company who were perfectly honest in their belief, and conducted themselves with propriety. But the leader of the company, who was one of the High Council of the Church, could drink more liquor and swear harder than any four men in the company. This man I drove for part of the way and know all about him. One evening when he was drunk, he called me to his tent and made this remark, "To show you Doctor, that I am not a——— fool, just read this," (handing me a letter, which I found to be a recommendation from Governor Young to the people of San Barnadino, speaking of him as one of the High Council,) thinks I, "If the Church has no better foundation than this, God save it."

A few days more brought us to the margin of the Great American Desert, when he again remarked, "I want you all to understand that I am God Almighty to this camp—having the power from Prophet Brigham, and I intend, when I get to the desert, to leave my Gentile drivers, and they may go to H—ll, for what I care."—Myself and partner were the Gentiles alluded to; so we politely presented our compliments to his excellency, and told him we would leave him now, and would ever cherish for him and the church to which he belonged, feelings of the highest regard. So we left him. I got in as driver of a team belonging to a widow lady in the train, who proved a kind and affectionate friend, one that I shall ever remember with the warmest feelings, although a Mormon. She was a sensible, intelligent woman, and, I think, will ere long see the error of her ways.

At last we reached San Barnadino, after a long, tedious, and wearisome trip. The Mormons here bought a ranch, for which they paid $70,000. From this to the coast, 180 miles, is through one of the most beautiful countries in the world, and is settled principally by Spaniards, who are all wealthy.

But I find I am running out this communication to an inexcusable length, and will have to condense, although I have much to say about the Mormons that I would like to say, but will have to defer until another time. Along the southern route there were many curiosities which I would like to dwell upon, but have not time. There were springs there within ten yards of each other, cold, hot and warm; mines of copper, silver, gold, iron, alum, sulphur, soap, saleratus, saltpetre, lime, chalk, &c. I also saw a boiling sand spring which was large enough to bathe in, and the sand was thrown up with such a force that it was impossible to sink in it below the waist. At last I arrived at the Pacific coast, and looked upon old Old Ocean for the first time, and my feelings can better be imagined than described. Here I took a sail vessel for San Francisco, eight hundred miles distant, where I arrived on the 15th of January, 1853, after a sail of nine days, in company with 40 Mormon missionaries. I remained in San Francisco a few days and shipped for Sacramento, where I arrived safe and sound after a journey of more than ten months, with nothing left of a large trunk full but a needle-case presented by my wife the day I left. I would like to say much about California, but at present must defer it.

I am now getting along very well. When I shall return home is uncertain. As far as I know, the Washington county boys are all well. To-day I saw Chatland, Byers, Brown and Henderson, and a few days ago heard of Baxter, Crall, Clark, Carmack and Irwin.

I will expect from all my friends a private letter in answer, and when I have more time will give them something more minute and different. Hoping that we may all meet again,

I remain most respectfully,
Your humble servant,
J. M. H. GORDON.

It is said that the custom of a pew full of men getting up and marching out to give the ladies the inner seats originated in early Indian times, when the men took their muskets to church and kept on the outside, so that they could rush out in case they were attacked by the Indians.—This is purely an American custom, and as the reason of it passed away some time since, we consider it far more honored in the breach than in its observance.

A NEW SINGER.—Miss T. Kettle has been giving a series of private concerts lately to delighted audiences. There is a naturalness about her notes that is very charming. The music gushes forth with a warmth and freedom that is irresistible, and suits every listener to a T.
