MISCELLANEOUS.

STATE DEPARTMENT, HARRISBURG, May 5, 1854.

SALE OF THE MAIN LINE OF THE PUBLIC WORKS. SEALED PROPOSALS INVITED.

BY virtue of an act of the General Assembly, passed April 27th, A. D. 1854, the Main Line of the Public Works, extending from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, are offered for sale on the conditions, restrictions and reservations contained in the act of Assembly aforesaid, as follows, viz:

SECTION 1. That the Governor is hereby authorized and required to invite sealed proposals for the purchase of the Main Line of the Public Works to wit: The Philadelphia and Columbia railroad, the Canal from Columbia to the Junction at Duncan's Island, the Juniata Canal, from thence to Hollidaysburg, the Allegheny Portage railroad, including the new road to avoid the inclined planes, in its condition at the time of the transfer, and the Canal from Johnstown to Pittsburgh, with all the property thereunto pertaining or belonging; and it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, within ten days from the passage of this act to give notice in two newspapers published in the cities of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and New York, and that sealed proposals will be received at his office for the purchase of said main line of the public improvements, up to the first Monday in July, Anno Domini, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four; said proposals shall state the maximum price offered for the said main line, on the following terms, to-wit: twenty per centum of the amount bid to be paid into the treasury in cash, before the transfer of said works, and the balance in ten equal annual instalments, the interest thereon payable semi-annually, from the date of the said transfer, at the rate of six per centum per annum, and the first instalment payable at the expiration of one year from the date of transfer, and said balance shall be secured to the Commonwealth by the bonds of the company purchasing the same, and the same, without any other record than this act, shall be a lien on the works and improvements aforesaid: Provided, That no bid for a less amount than ten millions of dollars for said main line shall be entertained.

SEC. 2. That it shall be lawful for any railroad, canal, or navigation company, incorporated under the laws of this Commonwealth, to bid for, and become the purchaser of said main line of public works—anything in its charter, or the laws by which it is governed, to the contrary notwithstanding, and to increase its capital stock, or to borrow money to any amount necessary to effect such purchase and complete the unfinished portion of the line.

SEC. 3. That it shall be the duty of the Governor, in the presence of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, Auditor General, State Treasurer, and such other persons as may see proper to be present on the said first Monday in July, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and fifty-four, to open said proposals and award said main line to the corporation or persons offering the highest price for the same; and in case two or more proposals should be made for said main line, for the same sum, the Governor shall have the authority to decide between said bidders: Provided, That the party whose bid shall be declared the highest shall thereupon forthwith deposit with the State Treasurer the sum of two hundred thousand dollars as security that such party will, in ninety days thereafter, pay the first instalment of twenty per centum in cash or bonds of the Commonwealth, as specified in this act; and in the event of said party failing to make such deposit with the State Treasurer, the Governor shall set his or her bid aside and accept the next highest bid made in compliance with the provisions of this act.

SEC. 7. That immediately after the Governor shall have issued letters patent, the said company shall take possession of said public works, and shall be bound ever thereafter to keep in good repair and operating condition the entire line of said railroads and canals, extending from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, with the necessary toll houses, water stations, locks, buildings and other appurtenances; and that the said railroads and canals shall be, and forever remain, a public highway; and the said company shall furnish the necessary motive power and cars for the use of all persons or companies engaged, or wishing to engage, in the transportation of tonnage or passengers at such times as to not impair the use and enjoyment of said railroads and canals by said parties, they paying just and fair charges for the use of said main line, or any portion thereof, which shall not exceed the rates of toll now charged upon goods, tonnage, and passengers, by the Commonwealth. It being the true intent and meaning of this act, that the said main line shall be, and remain forever a public highway, and kept open and in repair by said company as such, for the free use and enjoyment of all persons desiring to use and enjoy the same; and that nothing in this act contained shall be construed in any way to interfere with the existing rights and privileges of parties doing business upon the same. And provided further, That the company purchasing the said main line shall fully carry out the contract existing for the carrying of passengers over the Columbia and Philadelphia railroad.

SEC. 8. That the said company, on the first day of December after its incorporation, and annually thereafter, shall cause to be made out under the oath of one of its officers, and transmitted to the office of the Auditor General, a detailed statement, exhibiting the amount of tolls, freight and other revenues which have been received by said company during the preceding year; also, a statement of all the expenditures for the same period for repairs, management, motive power, and other purposes, and it shall be the duty of the Auditor General to file said statement in his office as all similar reports are now filed.

SEC. 9. That the said company may own and employ locomotive engines, cars, boats and horses, for the transportation of goods and tonnage, of whatever description, on said canals and railroads; and shall have the right to receive compensation for the same, as hereinafter provided, and to make such general regulations for the transaction of business on said railroads and canals, as they may, from time to time, deem proper; and they shall also have the exclusive right ... motive power for said railroads.

SEC. 10. That the said company shall have the right to subject tonnage, shipped or discharged at the intermediate points on said line of improvements, to charges of not more than twenty per centum above the rates per mile charged for similar tonnage passing over the entire extent of said improvements for the time being; and the said company shall make no discrimination in tolls and charges against such boats or tonnage passing to or from the Susquehanna Division of the Pennsylvania canal, and the charges and tolls on such tonnage and boats shall never exceed per mile those now charged by the State on the Susquehanna, West Branch and North Branch divisions of the Pennsylvania canal; or the rates now paid into the Commonwealth upon such tonnage and boats passing upon the main line, as shall be fixed by the board of Canal Commissioners.

The eleventh section, after excepting the purchaser or purchasers from the necessity of paying taxes, provides that the company purchasing such public works "be, and they are hereby authorized, if they deem it expedient, to construct a railroad, by the most eligible route, from the western terminus of the Philadelphia and Columbia railroad to the city of Pittsburgh, and connect with the North Western railroad; and also extend the Allegheny Portage railroad to the city of Pittsburgh, and connect with the North Western railroad; and to increase the capital stock of the company to any amount necessary to complete the same, not exceeding three hundred thousand dollars at fifty dollars each: Provided, The same be commenced within five years, and completed within ten years from the date of its incorporation under this act."

The twenty-second section provides that the purchaser of said canal and railroads shall carry out in good faith all contracts which may have been made between the Commonwealth and other parties for the construction of new work on the Allegheny Portage railroad, or the repairs or materials on any part of the said main line: Provided, That the said company may abandon said contracts in the same manner that the Commonwealth might have done, and that the said company shall not be liable for any of the debts on the said main line incurred prior to the date of the transfer.

SEC. 23. That if any company hereinbefore incorporated by this Commonwealth, shall become the purchaser of said main line, such company shall hold the same under its original name, organization and management, and enjoy all the powers and privileges, and be subject to all the limitations, restrictions and conditions specified in this act, except such as relate to the name, organization and management of the company, and upon the payment of the first instalment of the purchase money by such company, the Governor shall convey the said main line in the manner provided for upon the issuing of letters-patent to an unincorporated company.

SEC. 24. That a failure to pay any instalment, and the accrued interest for more than six months from the time that such instalment or interest shall be due, shall work a forfeiture of double the amount of money due; and a repetition of such neglect shall produce a forfeiture of the franchises hereby granted; whereupon the said railroads and canals shall revert to the State together with the working stock and property thereon owned by such company, and thereupon the Governor shall announce such forfeiture by proclamation, and the Canal Commissioners shall proceed to take charge of said canals and railroads, and keep the same open for use at present rates of toll and charge for the use thereof until action is had by the Legislature.

SEC. 25. That it shall at all times be lawful for a committee of the Legislature, appointed for that purpose, to inspect the books and examine into the proceedings of the corporation purchasing said main line, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the rights and privileges granted by this act have been misused or abused; and the Legislature may provide such remedies and penalties as may be necessary to secure a compliance with the provisions of this act.

SEC. 28. That the Legislature preserve the power to alter, revoke or annul the powers and privileges which may be conferred by this act on the company which may purchase the said main line whenever any of the said powers or privileges may, in their opinion, be injurious to the citizens of this Commonwealth, in such manner, however, that no injustice shall be done to the said company.

The omitted sections and parts of sections of the Act, are such as confer upon the parties purchasing the usual corporate form, and such as concern the State only, and their insertion here could be of no interest to bidders.

DAILY MORNING POST.

SATURDAY MORNING.............MAY 20.

THE SHAVER'S SOLILOQUY.

BY "DIOGENES."

To shave or not to shave! the question is,
Whether 'tis better on the human phiz,
To let accumulation of our hair
Cover the chins and lips that now are bare;
Or to continue still to scrape away
The hirsute ornament from day to day—
To lather, shave, perchance to gash the face!
Ay, there's the rub: for in this latter case
What misery's ours? 'Tis this must make us pause,
And make us rather betake our jaws
Than by continuance in the barberous use,
Cut, scratch, and lacerate them like the deuce.
For if it actually were the case,
That Nature never meant the human face
To be so teased and tortured as it is—
If so, I say, why then what business
Have mortals virtually to cry out
That Nature knew not what she was about?
Why, since the beard was evidently meant
To grow, should we seemingly intent
On trying to prove nature was a dunce,
And did not know her trade? Why not at once
Pluck out the eyebrows and extract the nails.
And shave the heads of females and of males?
Strange! 'tis that men should worship fashion so
As to be willing thus to undergo
The pains of shaving; rather than permit
Moustache and beard to grow as they think fit,
How singular that men should still delight
In torturing their faces when they might
Themselves their comfort, ease, and health obtain,
By vowing they will never shave again!
But 'tis the dread of ridicule and scorn
Makes the fool fashion easy to be born.
Thus custom of us all doth cowards make;
And for this savage custom, then, we take
The trouble and pains our chins to mow,
Because it is the fashion to do so,
But thus our chins will soon no more, I hope,
Be lathered o'er with the pale suds of soap,
Soon shall moustache and beard once more on all
Our chins wag merrily, in street and hall!

THE WIDOW'S BEAU.

BY MRS. CAROLINE A. SOULE.

Services had commenced in the neat little sanctuary, which the inhabitants of Fairmount had consecrated to the worship of God. The minister had read a Psalm and the Scripture lesson, and the first lines of the opening hymn. The eyes of the people were fixed intently upon him, for he was not only a good sound, eloquent preacher, but he was a fine looking one, too, and thus enhanced usually not only the attention of the true, but the false worshipper. The house was very still, the clear melodious tones of the speaker were the only sounds that throbbed on the balmy golden air which the mid-summer Sabbath morn had breathed into that holy place. The first syllable of the second verse was trembling on his lips, when a bustle at the door, and the entrance of two persons, a lady and a gentleman, dissolved the charm. In a second every eye turned from the pulpit to the broad aisle, and watched with more than ordinary interest the progress of the people. A most searching ordeal were they subject to, and when they were fairly and quietly seated in the front pew, immediately before the pulpit, what a nudging of elbows there was, aye, and how many whispers, too. In vain sought the good, the sound, the eloquent, the handsome Mr. B., to steal the attention of his hearers. They had eyes and thoughts for no one but Widow C., and Widow C.'s young and dashing attendant.

How she had cheated them! Hadn't she said a hundred times more that her heart was in the grave of her buried one, that she never would marry again? Hadn't she refused to walk out or ride out with any of the unappropriated gentlemen of the village? Hadn't she said she didn't feel as though she could wear anything but mourning? And in spite of all these protestations, hadn't she come out, all at once, dressed in white, and walked into church in broad daylight, leaning on the arm of a young gentleman?

Yes indeed she had. She would have to plead guilty to all those charges, grave ones as they were, and to the last two how many witnesses might have been subpoened. She had actually dressed in white. A beautiful robe of Indian mull tucked to the waist, with an open corsage, displaying an elaborate chemisette, drapery sleeves trimmed with the richest of Mechlin lace, undersleeves of the same exquisite material, a white crape shawl, a white lace hat, with orange buds and flowers, white kid gloves and light gaiters—such was the description every lady had on her tongue's end to repeat over as soon as the sermon was closed. And the gentleman, he too was dressed in style. Didn't he wear white pants of the latest pattern, and a white vest, and a coat of satin finish, and white kids too; and didn't he sport a splendid pin and a massive chain, and didn't he gaze often, and tenderly, and lovingly on the fair creature beside him? Ah, yes, he did so, and there was no further room for doubt.

Widow C. had cheated them. She had won a beau, laid aside her mourning, put on her bridal attire, and was going to be married in church. But who the beau was, or whence he came, was more difficult to solve.

Service proceeded. The choir sang, the minister prayed and preached—the people wondered when the ceremony would take place, but to their utter astonishment they were left to wonder. For when the services were closed and the benediction was pronounced, Widow C. and the strange gentleman walked with the congregation quietly out of church. When they reached the pavement he offered her his arm very gracefully, and she placed her hand very confidently on the beautifully soft coat sleeve, and they passed on.

What a noonday was that in Fairmount! What a world of conjectures, surmises, enquiries, and doubts rolled over and over and over in the brains not only of gossiping ladies, but sober, matter of fact gentlemen. "The like of such a thing had never occurred before in the annals of the village." There was something new under the sun—a lady and a beau, and nobody knew of it. Widow C.! Didn't your ears, not only the right, but the left, burn that day! Ah, we wonder they hadn't dropped off—surely they must have been crisp and crimson.

The Rev. Mr. B., preached to a crowded house that afternoon; no compliment to him though. The magnet was in the pew before him. Every one was sure the wedding would take place then; but everybody was sadly disappointed; and if tongues had run at railroad speed before, they traveled then on the electric wires. The minister might have preached in Greek that day and his sermon would have been quite as edifying. But, one subject engrossed the village mind. The widow's beau—that was the topic.

It actually seemed too, as though the lady tried to make all she could. After tea, arm in arm with the strange gentleman, she walked the whole length of the village, and away out into the cemetery, and never returned till the moon was high.

"A nice looking dress, I guess she had," drawled out old Grandma W., as she listened to the widow's wanderings. "I'm glad I ain't got to wash it, all drabbled up with dew, as it must have been—but I don't s'pose she's to take it away with her. But I'll give her a piece of my mind the first time I have a chance, see if I don't. Cheating us all in this way."

But the good old dame began to fear by Wednesday night that she should not have the desired chance. She hurried through her washing on Monday, and hobbled over to the widow's as soon as possible, but the door was locked, and one of the neighbors said Mrs. C. and the gentleman went off in a carriage, nobody knew where, very early in the morning. "Yes, and never got back till nine o'clock in the evening." Look out, Widow C. Your character is on the carpet!

If she knew it, apparently she did not care, for the next day she went a sailing with him, and on the next forenoon went with him in a carriage to the station house, and there not only wept as she parted from him, but actually embraced and kissed him.

"What, in broad daylight?" exclaimed Grandma W. "Well, if I ever seed or heered the like on't."

Little Nell, the old lady's youngest grandchild wondered to herself if it was any worse in daylight, than at any other time. Perhaps you will wonder too. We do at least.
