The Japanese Embassy—What they Think of Us.

(From the New York Express.)

Ladies of one of the Japanese Ambassadors, Mosukke, Prince of Awadsi, is the Author of a Book, Sent Home, Sealed to the Care of the Emperor of Japan.

(Translated by the Dutch Interpreter into Dutch, and translated from the Dutch language into English for the New York Express.)

TO MOONSKI, SON OF FIRE: How insupportable, oh thou possessor of the shadow of the moon, would be this immeasurable distance were I not able to delineate my heart on this paper (which is made of cotton), and to send thee the testimony of our esteem. Wonders greet our eyes day by day. This people are a wonderful people, on horses. Law: Our interpreter, who is called Myneer, from his knowledge of the Dutch language, daily initiates us into all their mysterious ways and customs. He informs me that the Americans are amiable, virtuous, and ambitious.

Here, we are at San Francisco, and yet, so superior are the waters, and this great country seems the gift of nature, our arrival seems most propitious. Let us pray that commerce and friendship, now so firmly rooted, will bear the fruits of prosperity and progress. We are still on board the Powhatan, moored after the fashion of warships. I have slain one Smith (with a blacksmith) and not one of the blue-eyed daughters implored mercy and saved him. Our voyage has been delightful, for we could watch at our leisure the movements of the gigantic engines, or admire the brave sailors, as they flew from mast to mast. We have stretch of every section of this Powhatan, which will be laid before the Emperor on our return. But when shall we return? When shall we see our beautiful isles again, for we have yet to visit the interior of this vast country?

1. The members of the Imperial Bank during the been entertained by the President of the United States, at a splendid banquet given in our honor. The capital is week crowded by all on board. He is no attendant, as you the you are aware, except at the table. The tables are adorned at dinner with many vessels, and one of the sailors informed, Myneer, that the favorite dish of the Americans was the abominable pork and beans, and that upon they were shipped, when only three days out from port, to hoist a signal of distress, as only eight barrels of beans remained uncontaminated. The American sailors appear very intelligent, but are continually filling tobacco out of the corners of their mouths, which seldom falls to light of the spittoon, or of a respected barber, who is much aggrieved at the unfortunate condition of his wardrobe. The tobacco stuffing, we are informed, is an American institution, and betokens the industry of the people, as, when at leisure, they are working their jaws for the good. These sailors are rather mischievous, as we inclined to suspect from the actions of one of them. He donned the best gown of our barber, stole from the ship, and represented himself as one of the ambassadors of his Imperial Majesty. He conducted rather unseemly in his gait. The barber being too long for his body, at every step he stumbled upon it, and thus occupied the lower deck for a full Japanese hour. He declared he thought seriously of turning Japanese, as he found it so easy to their costume to obtain the best of liquor. He further declared that he could give no account of himself, as he had kept none.

The screwed captain has fine wine at his table, and the first of it is apparent from the familiar tone of the conversation after imbibing six or eight glasses each. Some of any sometimes wines a desire to partake of the same, but delicacy prevents them. I am distressing, however, from my purpose, which is to give you an account of our reception on the shores of California, where gold has fallen from the dominions of the gods. When we first saw America we were greeted by the firing of cannon, and by many official despatches to the Emperor, most mighty and powerful be his name. I cannot describe my feelings, nor give utterance to my thoughts on brother-in-law, on first beholding this land of which we have heard so much. May the wings of peace rest upon this country, and the shield of conscience protect its people, and protect them from vice and corruption. As we neared the dock extending from the shores, it to meet us, the people all yelled at the tops of their voices, and waved their hats, which demonstrations are considered the highest compliments that can be paid to persons of rank. Our ears seem known to have been excited in the act of religious devotion. When we reached the dock a long line of men in black coats rushed through the crowd and came on board. One of them, whom the Interpreter informed me was the greatest dignitary of the State, a director, made a long speech, and concluded, in conclusion of his speech, expressing the wish that America would make a good thing from commercial intercourse with our Government. We replied, through Myneer, in appropriate language. I noticed a member of men, during this ceremony, without hoisting a rapidity based on reflection, all that was said. They were, as we afterwards learned, reporters for the daily papers, which are sold at extremely low prices to the masses. Our system of exchange would soon cause if our spies could be transformed into reporters. What we noticed as most was the appearance of the Grey, more or rather of the Sheets, which will be well-sun, with a light fitting black coat, and is a hat which had evidently seen service. Wonderful to relate, no sword-bearer nor attendant followed him. But this is the custom of this people, who admire simplicity more than ceremony. Knowest thou that even the President of the United States, on a strolled through the streets of Washington, in a dressing robe except his night-gown, and goes about without a body-guard? He is described as being rather an absent-minded gentleman with a white neckcloth, and is said to carry a certain constitution in his pocket-filled. Lo-caption, which has given him much trouble. He is a bachelor, and his sweetheart, and a new-moved Sam Houston, who is very much esteemed by Uncle Sam. He looked upon as the most popular personage for President. After the committee had refreshed themselves in the cabin, they took their departure, each with a cigar in his mouth, by a side door. Our cigars, which we have usually called a Tanker, with long hair and neat and short point, who, after giving us a familiar nod, drew from his pocket a large roll of paper. Having unrolled this and presented it within an inch of the interpreter's eyes, he drove one hand into his pocket and jerked his head on one side with an air of conscious merit. The interpreter informed us this was an appeal to subscribe money for the emancipation of the slaves of South Carolina.

The editor then stated that he was from North Ohio, which statement seemed to create much merriment, as we were in ignorance in regard to the whole affair, except that he asked charity. We elevated a liberal sum, as he gave him, and he departed with a delighted expression of countenance. The people are indeed, a human people, O worthy Moonski!

The Americans, for are more friendly than the people of Europe. I am persuaded from my limited acquaintance with the latter, their great art being, while they honor, to lessen the weight of the honor. The English and French whom I met at Nagasaki were extremely reserved, but they were the exceptions of nations, at with sense of obligation. Every American is a politician, and every other one a lawyer. A lawyer in Japan would be from door to door. Even the women of the country are sometimes found to mix the severity of national attention with the thoughtlessness of toys, and pities from the heart. I speak of women whom I met in my thoughts on brother-in-law, on first beholding this land of which we have heard so much. May the wings of peace rest upon this country, and the shield of conscience protect its people, and protect them from vice and corruption. A Woman Tarred and Feathered, in the World!

(Chautauqua (N.Y.) Republican.)

On Friday night of last week, a young man named Young, in this town, reported to have been, twice, in the house of Rufus Whipple, in the south part of Portland, on the Portland Road, broke in open, and shot one of his girls, a young woman, out of bed, and turned the other out of doors. The reason for the alleged act is that she was of a disposition to commit adultery, and the house was disorderly.

The perpetrators were on Wednesday, all arrested and brought before Justice Young of this village, and gave bail for their appearance at the next criminal court. For the credit of the place we regret to say, perhaps we should say the town, we were informed, that the women did the hooting and hustling, while the majority entirely beside the ceremony was being performed.

As for us, we were unable to leave the feets, Mr. Whipple must find their own bed-ticks, and was left with a family of young children and the young woman, who had been living with him, to take care of the family, and accordingly made a bed for them that the house was the occasion of no more rollicking, which, we understand, was the case before.

A Scientific Discovery.

A Paris correspondent writes the following to the Philadelphia Ledger:

The Academy of Sciences, at its last session, received a letter from Mr. Lenoir, the inventor of the gas engine, in which he states that he has discovered a means of obtaining a motive power from the combustion of gunpowder. The experiments made by Mr. Lenoir, in the presence of a committee of the Academy, have proved that a piston, 12 inches in diameter, and 12 inches in length, can be made to work with a pressure of 5 atmospheres, and that the cost of the motive power is 1 cent per horse per hour. The inventor has also succeeded in applying his motive power to a locomotive, which has run at the rate of 3 miles per hour, and he hopes to be able to increase the speed to 12 miles per hour. The Academy has appointed a committee to report upon the discovery.

WINES AND LIQUORS.

THE WINE GROWERS' COMPANY OF VIRGINIA.

SOLE AGENTS FOR

CAPITAL, THREE MILLIONS OF FRANCS.

THE COMTE DE SAINT-LEGER, PRESIDENT.

JULES BURNET, VICE PRESIDENT.

AGENT IN NEW YORK,

JOHN GOBORN.

THIS CORPORATION, the first in America, amongst its shareholders fourteen hundred. Proprietors of the best Vineyards in the Districts of Cognac, its extensive Establishments have been located, in the vicinity of the town of that name, was organized for the express purpose of maintaining the standard characteristic of by shipping that article, in all its native purity and excellence, to Correspondents in Foreign Countries, and to Consumers in the United States. The Brands of Brandies to confine its transmission entirely to the Brand, grown within the District of Cognac, and wholly the produce of Vineyards in that highly-favored locality, with no condition whatever admitting into its storehouses any Brandy which may have been produced without the limits of said District.

With the object of extending the just reputation of their Brandy by such means only as will meet the approval and co-operation of the most respectable Wine Merchants in the United States, the WINE GROWERS' COMPANY have appointed the Agency in New York to put up their choice Cognac Brandy in cases of one dozen well-assorted bottles each, and the sales will be disposed of to the Trade and the Public, by the undermentioned respectable firm.

Every bottle is sealed with the capsule of the Company—the corks bear the same stamp, and the labels contain an exact description of the quality, duly signed fac-simile, by the Agent of the Company.

The Brandies now offered consist of two different qualities, both guaranteed to be equally pure in quality, differing in point of age, and consequently in strength, depending thereon, the oldest being the least potent. The description termed "THE YOUNG GROWTH" THREE STARS (No. 1) is an excellent vinous article exceedingly recented, suitable for family or medicinal purposes, and is offered at a price less than that of the VINE GROWER ANTEDILUVIAN, compiled on account of its extreme age, and because the remote year of its shipment can be found only by conjecture.

Objections having been raised that the bottles are too large, and the Brandy of a greater strength than is usually sent to the United States, the Agents of the company venture to express the opinion that a large bottle is to be preferred to a smaller one, and that in obtaining the article of the exact strength at which it was exported from Cognac, the consumers may reminise the advantage of adding water to suit their own taste, instead of purchasing what at the place of shipment.

MEAL AND FLOUR MILLS,

Daily in operation at

No. 23 SOUTH SECOND Street, PHILAD'A.

This unrivalled Flour Mill, including the complete grinding and bolting machinery, occupies a space of only 8 feet by 12 feet, and is adapted to any family flour and meal manufacturing within this small compass, at a single operation, and wins not little more than six bushels per hour, with a power of from three to four horses, or equal to four, and the different kinds of offal; producing flour equal in quality to the best flour made from the same quality of wheat by any other process. Specimens of Flour and Meal from Mills in the United States, or in Europe. Its average rate of grinding is two barrels of superior flour per hour.

This new, compact, complete, and celebrated flour and meal mill has been lately examined by many of the most experienced millers in this country, and they unanimously bestow upon it the highest commendations; and it has given their testimonials of its intrinsic superiority, and its immense utility.

Millers, mill-owners, merchants, capitalists, speculators, and others, are respectfully invited to call and examine this highly useful and justly celebrated flour mill.

Daily in operation at

No. 23 SOUTH SECOND Street, PHILAD'A.

This unrivalled Flour Mill, including the complete grinding and bolting machinery, occupies a space of only 8 feet by 12 feet, and is adapted to any family flour and meal manufacturing within this small compass, at a single operation, and wins not little more than six bushels per hour, with a power of from three to four horses, or equal to four, and the different kinds of offal; producing flour equal in quality to the best flour made from the same quality of wheat by any other process. Specimens of Flour and Meal from Mills in the United States, or in Europe. Its average rate of grinding is two barrels of superior flour per hour.

This new, compact, complete, and celebrated flour and meal mill has been lately examined by many of the most experienced millers in this country, and they unanimously bestow upon it the highest commendations; and it has given their testimonials of its intrinsic superiority, and its immense utility.

Millers, mill-owners, merchants, capitalists, speculators, and others, are respectfully invited to call and examine this highly useful and justly celebrated flour mill.

Information concerning the purchase of the Patent Rights for States and counties, and the mills, for every portion of the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, and other Agricultural countries, will be given to all persons enclosing their letters to

EDWIN CLARK, Patentee,

No. 23 SACK st., below Third, Philad'a.
