WATER CURE INSTITUTE,
HAND STREET, (SOUTH SIDE,) BET. PENN STREET AND THE RIVER, PITTSBURGH, PA.
DOCTOR BAELZ, Graduate and Practitioner in the Old Schools of Medicine, Allopathic and Homœopathic, and for the past ten years a successful Hydropathist, has opened a WATER CURE in the above location.
The perfectly safe, direct and immediate effect this system has on all Fevers, and all diseases acute and chronic—while it is mild, grateful and invigorating to the weak and debilitated, renders it peculiarly desirable in families, who will be treated at their homes.
Allopathic and Homœopathic treatment will be administered where desired; but, after long and thorough experience, Doctor Baelz gives a decided preference to Hydropathy, which has, throughout the old and new world, proven so eminently successful in every form of disease, including Incipient Consumption, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Asthma, Cutaneous, Nervous and Liver Diseases. Testimonials of cures from highly reputable citizens of nearly every State in the Union, can be examined at Doctor Baelz's office. The Rev. Clergy are invited to consult him gratis.
Warm water being used in the commencement, and often throughout the treatment, it is a luxury instead of unpleasant, as those unacquainted might suppose.

DAILY MORNING POST.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.....FEBRUARY 28

Ancient Babylon.

It will not be forgotten that the French Government, two or three years ago, sent three gentlemen to make scientific and artistic researches in Media, Mesopotamia, and Babylon. One of them, M. Jules Oppert, has just returned to Paris, and it appears from his report that he and his colleagues thought it advisable to begin by confining themselves to the exploration of ancient Babylon. This task was of immense difficulty, and it was enhanced by the excessive heat of the sun, by privations of all kinds, and by the incessant hostility of the Arabs. After awhile M. Oppert's two colleagues fell ill, so that all the labors of the expedition devolved upon him. He first of all made excavations of the ruins of the famous suspended gardens of Babylon, which are now known by the name of the Hall of Amran-ibn-Ali; and he obtained in them a number of curious architectural and other objects, which are destined to be placed in the Louvre at Paris.

He has succeeded in making a series of minute surveys, and in drawing up detailed plans of the immense city. His opinion is even the largest calculations as to its vast extent are not exaggerated; and he puts down the extent at the astounding figure of five hundred square kilometers, French measures, (the sq. kilometer is 1,196 sq. yards.) This is very nearly eighteen times the size of Paris. But of course he does not say that this enormous area was occupied, or anything like it; it comprises within the walls huge tracts of cultivated lands and gardens for supplying the population with food in the event of a siege. M. Oppert has discovered the Babylonian and Assyrian measures, and by many of them had ascertained exactly what part of the soil was inhabited and what part was appropriated for gardens. On the limits of the town, properly so-called, stands at present the flourishing town of Hillah. This town, situated on the banks of the Euphrates, is built with bricks from the ruins, and many of the household utensils and personal ornaments of its inhabitants are taken from them also. Beyond this town is the vast fortress strengthened by Nebuchadnezzar, and in the midst of it is the royal palace, itself almost as large as a town. M. Oppert says that he was also able to distinguish the ruins of the famous tower of Babel; they are most imposing, and stand on a site formerly called Borsipa, or the Tower of Languages. The royal town, situated on the two banks of the Euphrates, covers a space of nearly seven square kilometers, and contains most interesting ruins. Amongst them are those of the royal palace, the fortress, and the suspended gardens. In the collection of curiosities which M. Oppert has brought away with him is a vase, which he declares to date from the time of one of the Chaldean sovereigns named Narambel. This is somewhere about one thousand six hundred years before Jesus Christ; also a number of copies of cuneiform inscriptions, which he has every reason to believe that he will be able to decipher.

EMIGRATION TO KANSAS.—The Boston Courier says there are now nearly two thousand persons preparing to remove to Kansas in the spring, under the guidance of the Emigrant Aid Society, the greater portion of whom belong to bands of companies of neighbors or townsmen.
