Novel to be Read in Five [illegible]

Moonlight [illegible] grove—
Two young [illegible] sigh in love,
Heroine with great wealth endowed,
Hero handsome, poor and proud;
Truth eternal—heart united—
Vows of changeless passion plighted:
Kisses—quarrels—sighs—caresses,
Maiden yields one of her tresses;
Obstacle to be surmounted—
Ugly rival, old and stubborn,
Overhears the tender tale.

VOL. II.

Meeting in the East half cruddy—
Scene—young lady's father's study;
Hero with his hat in hand,
Comes her ditto to demand;
Angry parent storms, abuses,
And at once her hand refuses;
Maiden falls beneath the blow—
Mother intercedes—no go:
Shrieks—hysterics—protestations,
Mixed with old man's excoriations;
Exit lover midst the din—
Ugly rival enters in.

VOL. III.

Time—a moonlight night once more:
Scene: outside the lady's door,
Lover, with half broken heart,
Swears he'd rather die than part,
Garden—flowers, umbrageous shade—
Many accounts—serenade—
Chamber window opens wide—
Doubt of expectant bride;
Little dog most kindly makes—
Tears—rope, ladder—slight—pursuit—
Gallant steeds—too late, night's screen,
Triumph—marriage—Gretna Green—
Old man's rage—disowns forever—
Ugly rival—cut his liver.

VOL. IV.

Old man sickly—sends for child;
All forgiveness—reconciled:
Young man making money fast—
Old man's blessing—dies at last.
Youthful couple prove prebbed—
Get the money—live in state—
Mother's wishes crowned with joy—
Doctor—nurses—little boy.
Thus proceeds—for ties endear—
Olive branches year by year;
Blessings on the good attend—
General gladness—moral end.

SELECT MISCELLANY.

Dream of the Author of "Home Sweet Home."

John Howard Payne, the author of that touching and [illegible] "Home, Sweet [illegible] [illegible] man [illegible] constitu- [illegible] which is so appa- [illegible] causes of society [illegible] expense is spared [illegible] April's education perfect [illegible] one thing needful" is neglected. This applies to both sexes, and until the rising generation is taught something of the [illegible] of the organization of their bodies, we cannot expect to have a healthy race of men and women. If a band be tied around a muscle in any part of the body so as to prevent its natural contraction, the substance of the muscle will gradually waste away, become smaller in size, and, in time, lose all its power. This is just the way that the muscles of the chest and abdomen are affected by tightlacing. Every physician is familiar with the thin, attenuated appearance of these muscles in women who have been in the habit of wearing tight corsets and bands.

Women in the lower orders of society despite their vicissitudes of hard labor, exposure, want and suffering, as a general thing suffer less in this way than their more favored sisters of the upper orders, for the reason, I think, that the poor cannot afford the luxury of tight corsets, and their active duties preclude them wearing their skirts and dresses as tight as the fair ladies whose hands are never soiled by labor, and whose shoulders never bore a burden.

The question of the relative merits of the shoulders and waist as points of support for the clothing has long been discussed, and many arguments have been advanced in support of both modes, but the preponderance of testimony is decidedly in favor of the shoulders. It is said that straps over the chest will impede respiration; and so they will, if improperly worn, but a little judgment will easily remedy this defect. It is also said they will restrict muscular motion and freedom of exercise of the arms; but this will not be effected one-half as readily by braces over the shoulders as by the tight-fitting waists of dresses that are worn now. No woman can make her hands meet quickly over her head with the arms extended at full length, with any comfort, while tied up in one of the fashionable costumes of to-day; and the objection that braces prevent respiration is not valid, for they can be so arranged that they need not interfere with the movement of the chest in any way.—Good Health.

An Experience in House Painting.

There are a number of things concerning which I am possessed of profound ignorance. Among these may be numbered the fine arts. With regard to the cognate arts, such as house painting, I have recently learned a few lessons from experience. I consider experience a thorough teacher; but his charges for tuition are perhaps rather high.

Maria Ann said we must have the house repaired, and as what Maria Ann says must be, generally is, I at once went and made a bargain with a house painter. He said he would send his painters around. The next morning I got my breakfast and started out to earn my bread by the perspiration of my classic brow. I opened the door and put my foot into a tin pail full of paint. Then I took it out and set it on the hall floor until Maria Ann assisted me [illegible] flying leap [illegible] came [illegible] was up and began to take out all the windows. During the entire day they were working around the window casings. One of them would stand by the open kitchen window, and another by the open parlor window [illegible] about the price of flour, about the girls; about all the while. The retirement which is among the charms of domestic life did not characterize our house to any great extent that day.

The next morning about five o'clock. I heard some one walking in our bedroom. I sprang boldly from the bed, grasped a boot in one hand and the pitcher in the other, determined to sell my life as dear as possible unless I got a chance to run down stairs. Said I, "Who is there?" "Oh," replied the intruder, "it's me, the painter; I am taking down the blinds." I felt much relieved; but Maria Ann seemed to be out of patience. She told the man what she thought about him, and made pointed comments upon his manners, his appearance and the probabilities that he never enjoyed a common school education.

The painter was wedded to his art, and paid no attention to the prattle of Maria Ann. With the windows and blinds down, out the door of the house was somewhat exposed, and the task of getting dressed was attended with some embarrassment, especially as the painters seemed to be at work at all the windows. While we were eating breakfast one of the painters came in with an armful of [illegible] and [illegible], that he found them hanging on the clothes-line, and he supposed Maria would have no objection to his using them to wipe off the door before he painted them. Maria stated her objections in detail and the man withdrew.

The next morning I was up early. When the painters came, I volunteered to help. "Come right along," I shouted; "let's take off the clapboards and paint them. Let's take up the cellar and paint that inside and out. Let's paint the cistern. Let's take down the chimney and paint the bricks. Let's paint the cellar leaves. Let's—" They assured me I was planning more work than was necessary, and as they did not act as though they needed my help, I went back to my breakfast.

The next time the house wants painting I will move into the back yard, and send the house down to the shop, where the painters can swarm around it at their pleasure.

Newspaper Subscribers.

The following sketch is a graphic description of the several classes of newspaper subscribers. First class [illegible]—These are men who take newspapers, pay for and read them. Observe the order in which these things are done: The pay comes first the reading next. These men consider they get the worth of their money in the bargain. It seems as fair and just to them that the newspapers should be paid for as a barrel of sugar or a new coat. They never entertain any other opinion. When the year runs out or a little before, they are on hand with the pay. There is no more difficulty with them in remembering this period, than Sunday, or the first of January. If one of them wishes to stop his paper, he either calls or writes a letter by his post, in due season like a man. This class is dear to the heart of the editor. Their image is embalmed in his warm affections. May they live a thousand years, and see their son's sons to the fourth generation. The second class now in mind, is the—

Do Wells.—This class is nearly related to the other—so near that it is hard to tell where the one begins and the other ends. These men always pay in advance in the beginning, and intend to do so continually. But memory fails a little, or some mishap intervenes, and the time runs by—sometimes a little—sometimes for quite a period. But then, recollection, though nodding occasionally, never gets sound asleep. It pronounces the words at length, "The printer is not paid," and forthwith their will to do well kindles into activity. Now comes the paying up—"Meant to do so before. Don't mean to let such things pass by." A publisher can live with such men. They have a warm place in his memory—only a little back of the Uprights. If such a man dies in arrears, his wife or son remembers that he may not have paid up for his newspaper, and forthwith institute inquiries. They remember that part of the benefit was theirs; and, estate or no estate, see that the printer's bills are not among their father's unsettled accounts.—Next come the—

Easy Doors.—These men believe in newspapers. They have fully settled in their own minds that a newspaper is a good thing. They take them too. Sometimes they pay up for the first year—at any rate, they mean to, pretty soon. If they have done so, they set down with the comforting conviction that their newspaper is now settled for; and this idea having once got into their heads, refuses obstinately to be dislodged, but keeps its hold from year to year; a truth once, now an illusion, gray and rheumatic with years. The editor, marking the elongated space in the accounts current of their dollars, begins to ask if they are dead or gone to California. Now he begins to poke bills at them. They suddenly start up to the reality, that they are in arrears; and like men, as they are at bottom, pay up. They never dispute his bills—they know books tell better stories than moss-covered memories. If the publisher has faith enough, or a long purse, and can live like a hybernating bear, he may survive this class. But, if he is a mortal only, woe be to him. The next class is that of the—

Down-Hillers.—Here we begin to slide over to the other side. The picture suddenly gets sombre. We shall dispatch the Down-Hillers suddenly. One of these may take a paper because his wife wants one, or the children are zealous to read it, or a neighbor persuades him. When it begins to come he dismisses all that's about it further. If the editor sends a man directly to him at the end of two or three years, he may get some pay for the paper, but with growls and surly looks. He never pays any debt if he can get rid of it, and a newspaper least of all. Still, he hates lawsuits, and constables, and all that. A dun has the same effect on him that a bullet has upon a hippopotamus—glancing from his hide, or sinking into the blubber harmless. He is always sliding down hill, and soon merges into another class, that of

Nix Cum Rouse.—No matter how this man began his subscription, he never pays for it—not he. "He don't like that sort of paper. It don't give no news. He never did like it. He didn't want it in the first place, and told the postmaster so. He sent one back mor'n a year ago—besides, he never began to take it till a long time after it come, and he hadn't had only two or three of them, anyhow, and those he hadn't read." Wipe him off. Here comes the—Scapegrace.—It is enough to say of him that he always has a newspaper—two or three of them. When he thinks they have come about long enough for the publisher to want pay, he sends back with "stop it." Or, he takes up his quarters and leaves for parts unknown. He does not want to pay, and he don't mean to. Get it if you can. Reader, in which of these classes are you found?—Ex.

Diseased Lungs.

There is no doubt whatever that diseases of the lungs, or ulcers of the heart, on any of the internal organs, may be and are frequently cured, where a complete condition of health is established. If the elaborating functions, of which the stomach is the primary and most important one, are restored to a condition to do the reparing of the human system, ulcers or sores, whether upon the lung, the liver, the kidneys, or the bowels, or upon the legs, as is frequently the case, can be made to heal, and a complete standard of health re-established.

We have frequently seen these results from the use of an efficacious medicine, which will ripen up and carry out of the animal economy all effete and used up material. Dr Keyser's Lung Cure is enriched by some of the most valuable plants and herbs known to be useful and curative in all deteriorated scales of the human blood, and whilst it adds to its plasma, it at the same time stimulates, gently but effectively, the skin, the kidneys, and the glandular system to effecient action to enable the body to take on healthful action and eradicate the disease. The sick and afflicted should bear in mind the virtues of this great medicine, and if those who are sufficiently alive to the importance of health, will resort to it in the beginning of a cough or cold, there would be no falling into declines and rapid consumption, so hopelessly incurable, and so most surely fatal. Let any one afflicted with any pulmonary disease try but one bottle, and they will be convinced of the value of Dr. Keyser's Lung Cure. Sold by the gross, dozen or single bottle, at Dr. Keyser's Great Medicine Store, 167 Liberty Street, Pittsburgh, $1.50 per bottle. If your druggist does not keep it, send five dollars to Dr. Keyser, and he will send four bottles securely boxed, by express, with full directions how to use it.

—Sir Francis Lyett offers $250,000, if the Wesleyan Conference will raise an equal amount, to build fifty chapels in London.

NEWS SUMMARY.

—The next Congress will contain eight or ten colored men.

—Ducks have decided opinions of their own, they always come out flat footed.

—Iowa has planted fifteen million trees within the last three years.

—The Sunday-Schools of the United States have one million teachers and six million scholars.

—The nickname of "Napoleon le Sedantaire" is now given to the late Emperor by some of the French papers.

—Punshon, the English preacher and lecturer, is going to Toronto, C. W., where he will preach in a new $70,000 church.

—Five thousand citizens of Columbus, Ohio, have petitioned for the closing of saloons on the Sabbath.

—During the last ten years the Methodist membership in Canada has increased from 53,624 to 64,688.

—Nearly all the Southern colleges and schools have fewer students this year than last.

—Knoll, the Munich sculptor, has made a colossal bust of Beethoven for an American.

—In this country there are 300 piano manufactories, making annually 51,500 instruments.

—Another effort is making in England to abolish the system of purchasing commissions in the army.

—Quartermaster General Pitkin has sold $100,000 worth of old guns, stored in the arsenal of Montpellier, to the French Government.

—A little girl about seven years of age, arrived at Buffalo the other day on her way to Detroit, who had come all the way from Germany alone.

—"The ark of France will yet float to its Ararat," writes a French gusher. "We hope so. But to judge by the route at Orleans, the ark has no John."

—The Figi Islanders were cannibals. Now we read they have a theatre. Among the first pieces played will probably be the farce "I've Eaten my Friend."

—In Switzerland, a milkmaid who is a good singer gets more salary than others, because under the influence of music cows "give down" better and give more milk. A New York farmer is trying to hire Parepa Rosa and Kellogg to sing round his pump.

—A Colorado editor, who has been making an Eastern tour, announces to his readers as the most remarkable piece of intelligence gleaned in his travels that there are actual newspaper men on the Atlantic coast who have not been called on to kill any one for several years.

—John Hopkins is the wealthiest Baltimorean. His estates valued at $7,000,000, he intends to place at the disposal of trustees to found the "John Hopkins University of Baltimore." He is seventy-five years old and a bachelor, and earned all his fortune.

—A Massachusets woman declares that "there are thousands of women who would walk barefoot from Berkshire to Barnstable, who would sacrifice party, social position, money, reputation, life itself, to establish woman suffrage in the old Bay State to-day.

—A striking illustration of the saying, the pith of a lady's letter is in the postscript, was that of a young lady who, having gone out to India, and writing home to her friends, concluded with the following words: "P. S.—You will see by my signature that I am married."

—The Strasburg Cathedral is to be restored. The North German Correspondent, says that The Governor General has himself accepted the Presidency of the Building Commission, the object of which is an intelligent and thorough renovation of this architectural bijou, of which Germany is so justly proud.

—The principal serial of the Atlantic Monthly, for 1871, will be a romance by Henry James, Jr., to be entitled "Roger's Little Girl." The December Atlantic will have a poem by Mr. Whittier, entitled "The Prayer Seeker," said to be one of the best things he has done of late years. Mrs. Stowe, Ralph Keeler, Mrs. L. M. Child, Mrs. Helen Hunt, Mr. Howells, and W. J. Stillman, will also contribute.

—All of us relish a bit of really fine writing now and then, and this, from a Santa Fe paper, is peculiarly good: "Death, with fleshless knuckles, rapped at the door of Mrs. J. N. B.'s soul, and, obedient to the inexorable call, the spirit of that loved woman floated up to its Creator, leaving her husband, children and friends to mourn over the mortal casket." Such an obituary as that robs death of its terrors.

—The bones of Philip Embury, the founder of American Methodism, now repose at Cambridge, Washington county, N. Y., in an unpretentious resting place. An effort was made at the last session of the Troy Conference, to have the bones of this celebrated man removed to that city, to be covered with a handsome monument in a lot adjoining the magnificent State street Methodist Church, but was unsuccessful. It is now proposed to erect a $2,500 monument at Cambridge.

—The New Orleans Picayune says: "An old gentleman, arraigned for some trivial offence before the Recorder, yesterday, begged earnestly that the fine may be very low, as he didn't have much money. The court, in consideration of the old man's embarrassment, fined him only a dollar. "A dollar, your Honor." "Yes, only a dollar." "But your Honor, I haven't that much, but if the matter of ten cents would do you any good." —It is needless to say he was suffered to go in peace.
