THE GLOBE,

The Official paper of Congress and Newspaper for the People.

It will be seen by the annexed extract from a letter of Gen. Washington to David Stewart, dated New York, 17th of March, 1789, that the idea of such a paper as I propose to make the Globe originated in the mind of the Father of his Country. He said:

"It is to be lamented that the editors of the different Gazettes in the Union do not more generally and more correctly (instead of stuffing their papers with scurility and nonsensical declamation, which few would read if they were apprised of the contents) publish the debates in Congress on all great national questions. The principles upon which the differences of opinion arises, as well as the decisions, would then come fairly before the public, and afford the best data for its judgment."—Sparks's Writings of Washington, vol. 10, p. 84.

The Daily Globe and the Congressional Globe.

In surrendering my interest in the organ of a great political party, I cherished the purpose of continuing the Congressional Globe, and if possible, in time, to reflect it in a full history of the action of Congress, giving the debate accurately and fairly with the proceedings—all stamped with the verity of an official record. From the passage in the letter of General Washington, which I have quoted it will be perceived that he thought this office might be combined with that of a regular newspaper; and it is certain that the avidity of the public for news of the ordinary kind greatly contributes to give wings to the weightier matter which may be called Congressional news.

Having succeeded in my purpose of perfecting the reports of the debates in Congress and giving them the official stamp, I now propose to send them across, in connection with the news of the day, in such haste as shall contain full and accurate intelligence not from the seat of Government in any other form whatever. It will even anticipate the scraps of news forwarded to cities within two hundred and fifty miles by telegraph. Before the events that transpired are published in the morning papers, (for instance of the city of New York,) the Globe containing them will have reached the post office of that city by the Express Mail of the previous night.—The process by which this will be effected I now lay before the public.

I will have a corps of six or seven Reporters in Congress, each in succession will take notes during five minutes, then retire, dictate them for the press, put them slip by slip in the hands of compositors, and thus while the debate is going on in Congress, it will be out in type, and in a few minutes after it is uttered it will be in print. Thus by this means be enabled to send by the Express Mail of 5 o'clock P. M., for the East, West and North, and by the 9 o'clock P. M. for the South, all the proceedings of Congress up to the ordinary hour of adjournment. Thus the accurate debates of Congress will reach the cities two hundred and fifty miles from the Capitol before their daily morning papers are in circulation.

The miscellaneous news I shall be careful to gather from remote vestiges of the country by telegraph. I will obtain from the Executive Departments, through official sources, the matters of moment transacted in them, and, through agents employed for the purpose, all the city news of consequence in sufficient time to be put into the Globe and mailed to the Eastern States. In this way I hope to create a new era in the dissemination of news from Washington.—Hitherto no newspaper has attempted to give anticipate reports of Congress at Washington before the public mind. The distance has been a barrier to prevent from irresponsible telegraphic dispatches, or by letter writers biased by popular views.

Washington has now become to great a centre of political interest during all the year, that the proceedings of the Executive Departments and the information collected by them even during the process of Congress is of as much importance to the interests of every section of the country—that I shall continue the publication of the daily paper permanently, with a view to become the vehicle of the earliest and most correct intelligence.

It is a part of my plan to reduce the price of the daily paper to half that of similar daily papers; and thus I hope to extend the circulation so as to invite advertisements. I will publish the documents of the Government. To subscribers in the cities I hope to embody such terms as will induce them to advertise their business in every village throughout the Union. But the Globe is sent daily under the franks of members of Congress, all of whom take it, and some of them a large number of copies.

The installation of the new Administration and the new Congress portends much change in the course of public business at the point of the next session. Many vast interests which were brought up in the last Congress were laid over by the Democratic majority to await the action of the Democratic Executive. The new modelling of the tariff; the new and urgent question of giving homesteads, and making every man a freeholder, who may choose to become one; the appropriation of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans by a national railroad across the territory of the Union; reform in the Army, Navy, and civil offices—all these great questions, with a thousand minor ones, deeply affecting multitudes of men and every state in the Union will, now being matured by public opinion, come up for the Government's decision.—Across new issues, co-operating with old ones, coming up to be disposed of by new actors on the scene at Washington, will be apt to modify greatly, if not alter essentially the party relations of the country.

Without these elements of interest another is likely to be introduced by the intervention of the agitations of Europe. After forty years of peace in Europe there is an evident tendency to war that now seems fraught with tendencies threatening a general war-conflict. In all likelihood there will follow such universal changes that the United States can hardly expect to escape its vortex. Indeed from late events it is apparent that our Government is already drawn into European relations. These circumstances are circulated to draw the public mind towards the next Congress with much excitement.

The DAILY GLOBE will be printed on fine paper double size, with small type, (Brevier and nonpareil,) at five dollars a year.

The CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE will also be printed on a fine royal paper, in book form, royal quarto size, each page containing two columns of the Congressional Globe. Thus every, will be an exact transcript of the proceedings of Congress and the political debates as given by the reporters. The speeches of members choose to write out themselves will, together with the messages of the President of the United States, the reports of the Executive Departments, and the laws passed by Congress, be added in an Appendix. Formerly I received subscriptions for the Congressional Globe and Appendix separately. But this has not been found satisfactory, inasmuch as it gave an incomplete view of the transactions in Congress; and therefore I have concluded not to sell them apart, considering that neighbors can have the advantage of them both by subscribing in one individuals shall find it too onerous to be at the charge of both.

To facilitate the circulation of the Congressional Globe and Appendix it to subscribers, Congress passed last year a joint resolution making it free of postage. I annex it, as the law may be referable to postmasters generally.

Joint Resolution providing for the distribution of the Laws of Congress and the debate thereon.

With a view to the cheap circulation of the laws of Congress and the debates contributing to the true information of the people, and to make free the communication between the representatives and the constituent bodies:

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after the present session of Congress the Congressional Globe and Appendix, which contains the laws and the debates thereon, shall pass free through the mails so long as the same shall be published by order of Congress: Provided, that no single member shall be contracted to authorize the circulation of the Daily Globe free of postage.

Approved, August, 1852.

As I sell the Daily Globe at half the price of similar publications, so the Congressional Globe and Appendix is sold for half the cost of so much composition, press-work, and paper. This I can afford to do, inasmuch as the subscription of Congress covers the cost of composition, and this enables me to sell for a little more than the cost of press-work and paper. It requires the sale of about 9,000 copies to reimburse expenses. If 10,000 were sold, the cost of each copy would be about $1.04. The debates in the English Parliament cost about eleven times as much as I charge subscribers for the debates in Congress, equal in quantity, and as well reported and printed.

The next session of Congress will be a long one, and it is believed the Congressional Globe for it will reach 4,000 royal quarto pages, as the last long session made 3,840; and the long one before that made 3,901 royal quarto pages—four large volumes each session. If subscribers will be careful to file all the numbers received by them, I will supply pay the expense of binding in the mails. This work increases in value as it grows old. The first seventeen volumes will now command three times, and some of the subsequent ones twice, their original subscription price.

The subscription price for the Congressional Globe (including the Appendix and the laws) is six dollars.

Complete indexes will be out and forwarded to the subscribers soon after the session is ended.

Subscribers for the Daily should have their money here by the 15th, and for the Congressional Globe by the 15th of December. The money must accompany an order for either the Daily or the Congressional Globe.—Bank notes current where a subscriber resides will be received at par.

HICKOK'S PATENT IMPROVED CIDER MILL.

IN the present arrangement of this highly approved and valuable Mill, the labor is divided by arranging a cutting Cylinder to break the apples, and then deliver them to the lower Cylinder to be reduced to pomace. By this arrangement the work is performed faster and with much less labor. The Press is arranged with a much larger screw than formerly, and by a very ingenious device the use of the box is dispensed with and the Tub made to open at the same time the Upper is left clear, and the work can be done with much less labor than by the old method. The Cylinders are covered with heavy sheet Zinc, both on their peripheries and ends; the wood in them is arranged so as not to swell, and the whole work on the Mill and Press made in the very best manner, and arranged with special view to their durability and service.

No farmer, who uses the Mill carefully and according to directions will be disappointed; but, on the other hand he will find this one of the most valuable and efficient machines on his farm.

The machine is made to run by horse, steam, or hand power, and when the apples are ground, a small boy of 14 years of age can press the pomace with ease.

This Mill is warranted superior to any other Portable Mill in existance; and the proprietor is ready at any time (on fair notice being given) to test it with any Portable Mill that is not an infringement on it.

FARMERS, EXAMINE THIS NEWLY IMPROVED MILL, BEFORE YOU BUY ANY OTHER.—One great advantage of this machine over all others is, that it will not choke up, and hard or soft apples can be ground, and yet the Cylinders will always remain clean in grinding order.

All orders will be filled in the order in which they come in, and persons wanting them had better send their orders early, and state at what time, and where they want the mill delivered.

This Mill, attended by two men, will, when properly worked according to directions make from six to twelve barrels of cider a day—and will grind alone by horse-power, from 100 to 200 bushels of apples a day.

The price of the Mill and Press is $40, delivered. Recollect this is the newly improved Mill.

Having very many applications for more particular descriptions of the size, &c., of my new CIDER MILL, than is contained in my circular, I would here remark, that the whole Mill weighs but 375 pounds, is 2½ by 3 feet square, and 4 feet high, and can be shipped by wagon or railroad cars with the convenience. Below will be found a few notices and recommendations of the Mill, many others having been mislaid.

This is to certify that I purchased of A. H. BAUMAN, one of Hickock's Patent Cider Mills and Press, last fall—and I can confidently assert that I have made one hundred barrels of cider per minute by hand. I have also been using cider for the last 25 years, and I made the best cider on this Mill I ever drank.

Centre Line Pa, Aug 25, 1852. WILLIAM HULL.

MR. W. O. HICKOCK:—Dear Sir—I purchased one of your improved cider Mills at the State Fair at Lancaster, Pa., last year. I believe it to be the most durable and best mill that it surpasses any machine, for the purpose it is intended for, that I have ever seen, and I have examined a good many, before purchasing and since. Its construction being simple it never can be out of order. It surpasses your most sanguine expectation. Could I not procure another one, I would not part with mine for four times the price of them, as I know its value. Yours truly, CHAS. M. CLARK, Springfield Ohio, May 1, 1852.

Letter addressed to care of Mr. Curtis Hatch, Agent at Ravenna, Ohio.

To Dr. MARCHISI:—I have been ten years troubled with Female Complaints—prolapsus uteri, and all the attending difficulties; at times rendering my life most miserable. I have had the attendance of some of the best physicians, with but little success; the most they could do was to relieve me for a time, was out of the question. For five months before commencing with your medicine, I had not been able to perform any labor, could walk but a few steps at a time, and seldom went out of doors—in short, I was completely prostrated, both in body and mind, and expected to drag out the rest of my days in suffering and misery. But, reading your advertisement, I was induced to try your invaluable medicine, called the Catholicon, as the last resort. I had not used it a week before I felt like another woman. By the use of three bottles I was enabled to perform all the labor for six in the family with ease, and could walk anywhere in the neighborhood without fatigue. Nothing but a sense of my duty to you and to the afflicted, has induced me to state my case to the public. I can safely recommend the preparation to all those suffering like myself. (Signed)

Dorothea Coffman, Ohio, Dec. 27, 1852.
