Eph Got the Chickens.

He Won the Colonel's Bet and Supplied Himself Simultaneously.

"You northern folks don't begin to know the southern nigger as he is," observed the colonel as he lighted a fresh cigar and leaned back in his chair.

"No?"

"They are not vicious, but they are without moral obligation. Confound him, he's a thief from head to heel; I never saw an honest nigger yet."

"That's very sweeping, colonel."

"But it's truth. I'll defy you to find me an honest nigger in all Georgia."

"I should say that gray haired darky over on the cotton bales could be trusted to watch a gold mine."

"You would, eh? Heah, boy, come heah!"

"What's wanted, Kurnel Peabody?" asked the old man as he came over with his hat in his hand.

"Say, Eph, I want you to do me a litt le favor this evening."

"Sartin."

"I'll pay you for doing it."

"Bress you soul, sah."

"I want you to steal me a couple of young chickens and bring 'em to the store at 7 o'clock."

"Steal 'em fur suah?"

"Yes; I'll give you a dollar."

"All right, Mars Peabody, I'll have 'em dare by seben o'clock if I'm alive."

"What do you think of the nigger now?" asked the colonel as the old man moved away.

"I'm astonished."

"Well, you be on hand at 7 o'clock to see the chickens. He'll have 'em here.

So he did He came to the back door of the store with a couple of pullets in a bag, and as he handed them over he said:

"Ize got 'em fur you, kurnel, an' dey is as fat as butter. Don't reckon you'll neber say nuffin' 'bout it eh?"

"Not a word, Eph. Here's your dollar."

I had no argument to make that evening. There was the nigger, the chickens and the dollar. What could I say? Next morning I went down to the colonel's office, and I had scarcely stepped inside when he called out:

"What do you think of the nigger now?"

"Anything new happened?"

"I should say so! Where do you think old Eph stole those chickens?"

"I have no idea."

"But I have. The infernal rascal stole 'em from my own coop and three or four more with 'em!"—New York Sun.

Mr. Cleveland's Odd Present.

Mrs. Celuria Allen of New Woodstock, N. Y., is eighty-four years old, and was one of the many hundred who shook hands with the President and Mrs. Grover Cleveland three years ago when they were the guests at the home of ex-Secretary Fairchild at Cazenovia.

During the last summer Mrs. Cleveland's pet spaniel dog, sent to her as a present from Europe, was sent to Mr. Fairchild's home for temporary care. The man having him in charge had him clipped during the warm weather. The soft, silken hair was saved and turned over to Mrs. Allen. She carded the hair, spun it into yarn, and knit a pair of gloves for Mr Cleveland, which she sent to New York a few days ago.

Mrs. Allen has received a pleasant letter from Mr. Cleveland, accepting the present and thanking her in behalf of both himself and Mrs. Cleveland. He says that he prizes the gloves very highly as a great curiosity.

How to Water a Horse.

Feed the horse regularly, giving him an even quantity. Do not water him on top of his dinner till he is as full as a barrel and then drive him off at a smart gait while his insides are turned into a malt house pressure, ready by effervescence to burst. Give a horse sparingly of water on the road. Many ladies seem to think it "fun to see him drink" at a wayside trough till he is ready to drop. Be careful of the wayside "gift of humanity," the stone trough. If the horse has been a long time on the road, it is kind to allow him to dip his lips in the cooling water and swallow two or three mouthfuls, but no more, unless you wish to "founder" him, that is, make him unsound in his forelegs for life. You may even kill him, if the water comes from a very cool spring. Do the watering mostly at home is my rule.—New York Weekly.

A HOTEL WAITER WHO OWNS HORSES.—A wealthy waiter is Samuel Rocke, who may be seen any day in the dining room of the Brunswick. He is worth over $40,000 and all through following a few words of advice that Jay Gould gave him. He owns a large flat house in 110th street, and Waiter Rocke in the Brunswick dinning-room and Mr. Rocke outside are two different men. He is a great admirer of trotting horses, and is often seen on the road holding the ribbons over a fast flyer. Sometimes people look at him as he whirls by and wonder where they have seen him before. Two of his sons are students in Harvard college, and his daughter is taking a musical course in Paris.—New York Telegram.

PUFF PUDDING.—Into two teacupsful flour sift two tablespoonful baking powder and a half teaspoonful salt, rub into it butter the size of an egg and add enough sweet milk to make a sott batter Grease six or eight cups, set them in a steamer, and dip into each a large spoonful of batter, then the same amount of some canned fruit, as peaches, raspberries, etc. Drain off the syrup before using the fruit; otherwise it would be too juicy. Over this place another spoonful or more of the batter. Cover closely and steam half an hour. To be eaten hot with a hot sauce, The juice from the fruit can be used in the sauce unless some other flavoring is preferred.

FINE HEALTHY SKIN.

CURE OF A DISTRESSING SKIN DISEASE GRATEFULLY ACKNOWLEDGED BY A NEW YORK GENTLEMAN.

My little grandson having been cured of an eczema by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, I was prevailed upon by my wife and daughters to try it myself for a distressing skin malady that has been the bane of my life for twenty years.

It required a good deal of persuasion to get me to try it, for I argued that a man seventy years of age could not be cured by the same remedy that a two-year old child was. I was perfectly astonished at the result, however. In one week my eruption had nearly disappeared, and in two weeks there was not a vestige of it left. A transformation took place from a leprous to a fine, healthy skin. My head, before I commenced the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, was covered with scales and patches of dead skin, which I could pull off in pieces the size of a dime, while from my elbows, knees, and other parts of my body, I could detach strips the size of a half dollar. My head such an appearance that I avoided society, but now, thanks to the CUTICURA REMEDIES, I can once more go out with comfort, and enjoy all the pleasure of society with a satisfaction I was long a stranger to.
