Agricultural.

Hints from the London Horse Book.

1. All horses must not be fed in the same proportions, without due regard to their ages, their constitutions and their work. Because the impropriety of such a practice is self-evident. Yet it is frequently done, and is the basis of disease of every kind.

2. Never use bad hay on account of its cheapness. Because there is not proper nourishment in it.

3. Damaged corn is exceedingly injurious. Because it brings on inflammation of the bowels and skin diseases.

4. Chaff is better for old horses than hay. Because they can chew and digest it better.

5. Mix chaff with corn or beans, and do not give the latter alone.—Because it makes the horse chew his food more and digest it better.

6. Hay or grass alone will not support a horse under hard work. Because there is not sufficient nutritive body in either.

7. When a horse is worked hard its food should chiefly be oats; if not worked hard, its chief food should be hay. Oats supply more nourishment and flesh making material than any other kind of food, hay not so much.

8. For a saddle or coach horse, half a peck of sound oats, eighteen pounds of good hay is sufficient. If the hay is not so good add a quarter of a peck more oats. A horse which works harder may have rather more of each; one that works little should have less.

9. Rack feeding is wasteful. The better plan is to feed with chopped hay from a manger. Because the food is not thrown about, and is more easily chewed and digested.

10. Sprinkle the hay with water that has salt dissolved in it. Because it is pleasing to the animal's taste, and more easily digested. A teaspoonful of salt in a bucket of water is sufficient.

11. Oats should be bruised for an old horse, but not for a young one. Because the former, through age and defective teeth, cannot chew them properly; the young horse can do so, and they are properly mixed with the saliva, and turned into wholesome nutriment.

12. Vetches and cut grass should always be given in the spring to horses that can not be turned out into the fields. Because they are very cooling and refreshing, and almost medical in their effects, but they must be supplied in moderation, as they are liable to ferment in the stomach if given largely.

13. Water your horses from a pond or stream, rather than from a spring, or well. Because the latter is generally hard and cold, while the former is soft and warm. The horse prefers soft muddy water to hard water, though ever so clear.

14. A horse should have at least a pail of water, morning and evening; or, still better, four half pailfuls, at four times in the day. Because this assuages his thirst without bloating him. He should not be made to work directly after he has had a full draught of water; for digestion and exertion can not go on together.

15. Do not allow your horse to have warm water to drink. Because, if he has to drink cold water, after getting accustomed to warm, it will give him colic.

16. When your horse refuses his food after drinking, go no further that day. Because the poor creature is thoroughly beaten.

How to Save Cattle Food.

Farmers plow and harrow, and sow and reap, thresh and garner their crops with commendable industry and skill, and yet, by a want of close attention to minor details, very frequently lose the larger proportion of their profits. In a former article we asserted, that all experience has proven to be the truth, that comfortable shelter for stock is equivalent to a certain amount of food, and is, that stock can be carried through the winter in as good condition if well sheltered, upon a smaller quantity of food, than if exposed to the inclemency of the weather, as is too often the case.

Let any farmer, whose sheds are bleak and open, ponder this subject well. Let him try a little experiment on part of his stock. Give to one portion of it, a comfortably warm but well ventilated appartment, and to another, one that is open and exposed to the elements. Let him see to it that the well sheltered portion is regularly housed in weather requiring it, while the other is permitted to take its chances. Let him carefully weigh or measure the food supplied to each, and if, when spring comes, he does not find his well cared for stock in better condition upon a greatly smaller amount of food than the other, we will consent to be set down as perfect ignoramus upon this point. Try it, satisfy yourselves, and let us have the result.—Journal of Farm.

Accidents in the Stable.

Some horses are very much addicted to standing in the gangway; in other words, they stand as far out of the stall as they can When first stabled, horses are more apt to do so, as they dislike the confinement. The horse may be tied short, close to the manger, but this cannot always be done, as it prevents the horse from lying down. Some prevent this by having a bale behind the horse upon which some prickly kind of bush is fastened; while others obtain the same result by passing a rope from one stall post to the other. After the horse becomes accustomed to standing in the stall, the bib or rope may be removed.

Lying in the gangway is common among those horses that stand in the gangway. They lie so far out in the stable that the halter strap is put upon the stretch, and the horse's head has not sufficient freedom to allow him to rise. He must be loosed before he can get up. The same method of prevention as that recommended for standing out of the stell, must be used.

Some horses are addicted to the habit of rolling in the stable; serious accidents may arise from this habit. I have known horses to sprain the loins severely and to fracture the hip badly from this cause. Some horses roll in the stall immediately on coming into the stable. When a horse has been rolling during the night, he is often found in the morning in an awkward and painful position; he may be lying across the stall, or on his side, with the fore and hind legs bent between his body and the side of the stall. The horse cannot stir, and must be brought into a different position before he can rise. He may be turned over, he may be drawn away from the side of the stall by the mane and tail.

ROSENBERG & WOLFF,

Would respectfully announce to the citizens of Towanda and vicinity, that they have opened the above store, under the name of "The Towanda Regulator," with a splendid assortment

OF READY MADE CLOTHING!

Gents Furnishing Goods, Hats, Caps, &c., &c., which they assure the said citizens cannot be excelled in style or elegance, and that the prices are so low as to astonish everybody.—Rosenberg & Wolff hope that by strict attention, and fair dealing with the people of Towanda, they will obtain their patronage and support. They also beg to subjoin the following Commandments for their guidance.

COME ONE! COME ALL!

At Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Regulator, Main Street, Towanda, Pa.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS,

Keep them, and Happy will be Thy Days.

1. Thou shalt have no other place to buy clothing except Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Regulator, Main Street.

2. Thou shalt not choose any other merchant: though shalt not listen to their speeches, for Rosenberg & Wolff are no Chatham-st. dealers, but sell at one price, and reliable, and will serve you onto the third and fourth generation.

3. Thou shalt not seek in vain any more for cheap raiment, for they can be found at Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Store.

4. Thou shalt bear in mind that we sell only on six days of the week, and don't desecrate the Sabbath by keeping our doors open and hangin out a show, for, on the seventh day, Rosenberg & Wolff, and their clerks, desire to rest from their labors.

5. Thou shalt honor the way Rosenberg & Wolff deal, and long may be thy days to enjoy its benefits.

6. Thou shalt not commit an impropriety—of buying of Chatham st. Dealers, but come direct to Rosenberg & Wolff's Once Price Regulator, Main street.

7. Thou shalt not seek in vain for goods of Foreign make, for Rosenberg & Wolff keep a large variety.

8. Thou shalt not purloin from the Regulator for Rosenberg & Wolff sell so cheap it would be a sin.

9. Thou shalt not baar false witness, but honestly acknowledge that you can get better suited and for less money, at Rosenberg & Wolff's than any other store.

10. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbors goods or his bargains, for Rosenberg & Wolff can give them to you likewise; therefore, take counsel, and by only of Rosenberg & Wolff the Once Price Men.
