Biodiesel Planners Hire Firm For Study

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On Oct. 1, the Regional Economic Development District Initiatives of Southcentral Pennsylvania (REDDI), signed an agreement with BBI International, of Cotopaxi, Colo., to conduct a study to determine the feasibility of a farmer-owned soybean production facility in Southcentral Pennsylvania.

This opportunity would aim to create value-added opportunities for farmers, soybean meal consumers, and other agriculture-related businesses in the region, while providing an environmentally-safe source of a diesel fuel.

This project developed as a result of a meeting of farmers, feed mill owners, state and federal agency representatives, soybean meal consumers, and distributors of biodiesel. The consensus of the group was to form a steering committee with a goal to begin the evaluation and developmental stages of the project.

The feasibility study will be administered through REDDI. It is to be completed by March 2004, according to planners.
