SHEEP WASHING.

Some years ago the good people of the town of L——, Mass., assembled for the purpose of forming a temperance society. After the usual preliminaries, the pledge was submitted to the audience for signatures. At that Deacon Smith arose and addressed them thus:

"My friends, I should have no objections to signing your pledge but for one thing. I have been accustomed to have my plum pudding at Christmas. Now, you all know that plum pudding is good for nothing without good sauce; and sauce is insipid without a little good brandy in it. Now, if you can fix your pledge so that I can have my brandy sauce and plum pudding at Christmas, I will sign it with great pleasure."

After a little arguing pro and con, a clause was added, allowing Deacon S. his brandy sauce at Christmas, but at no other time; and Deacon S. signed the pledge.

Soon after farmer Jones arose and said:

"My friends, I have no objections to signing your pledge if you allow me one thing. I always want liquor in the harvest field to counteract the effects of so much cold water as is usually drank at that time. If you can fix it so that I can have my liquor in the harvest field, I will sign your pledge."

Again after considerable arguing, there was a clause added allowing farmer Jones his liquor in the harvest field, but at no other time.

After farmer Jones had taken his seat, his neighbor, farmer Bent, arose.

"My friends," said he, "I will sign your pledge if you will add one thing to it; that is, fix it so I can have my liquor at sheep washing. I think it very necessary for men to have some good, strong liquor to drink when coming out of the water, after washing sheep, to prevent the bad effects that arise from standing in it so long."

After a good deal of talk, a clause was added allowing farmer Bent his liquor at sheep washing, but at no other time. When all had signed the pledge, the meeting was adjourned for one week.

The next morning one of farmer B.'s neighbors was passing his house, and the old gentleman stepped out just then gloriously drunk.

"Why, Uncle John, how's this?" said the neighbor, a good deal surprised. "I thought you signed the pledge last night."

"So I did," replied Uncle John, "but (hic) I was washing sheep."

He led the way to the barn, the neighbor following. On arriving there he saw standing in the middle of the barn floor a big wash-tub about half full of water, and the old ram tied to it, wet as he could be and shivering with cold. Close by stood a two-gallon jug. Uncle John, pointing to the ram with an air of triumph, said:

"I (hic) washed that (hic) sheep twelve times this morning."—N. Y. Observer.

IN DEFENCE OF MOTHER-IN-LAW.—As a great deal is said and written against mothers-in-law, it is refreshing to find one man who can say something in their defence. This singular character belongs to Fort Wayne Ind.: "I am not a mother-in-law myself, but my wife's mother is, and for her sake I want to say something in behalf of that much abused class of relatives. Since it has become fashionable to rail at mothers-in-law in the public press and in private life, the great American people, with that keen sense of humor peculiar to themselves—and for the possession of which a good many of them ought to be hanged—consider it intensely funny as well as fashionable. I don't. I recognize the fact that my children's grandmother, who is one of their dearest and truest friends on earth, has a claim upon my affections too. There are doubtless exceptions to this rule, as there are to most rules under the sun, but in the main mothers-in-law are entitled to all the respect they receive and a good deal more of the same sort. Generally the man who speaks insultingly to his mother-in-law would not be averse to whipping his wife when occasion offered, or is mean enough to accept his mother-in-law's kindly offices when the children are down with the measles and gives her the cold shoulder afterward. At least it will be safe to say that the man who insults his mother-in law by word or deed will bear watching."

THE NEWSPAPER.—Rev. Dr. Stone, of California, does not agree with the opinion of testy old gentleman, once met in a bank meeting in which there were some charges of mismanagement, and who, on seeing reporters, move that they "be banished," alleging that they "caused most all the mischief in the world." On the other hand, he thinks they are a great power for good. In a recent sermon he said:

"The newspaper is more feared today in Congressional halls and in the high places of corruption and villainy than laws and courts, the strings of conscience and the thunders of Divine wrath. God is a great way off, and the judgement waits; but the ubiquitous reporter thrusts his sharp gaze into all covert and hidden schemes—an unerring detective. The pestilent spy will tell all he sees—tell it on the housetops, print it for a nation of readers. Good! Give us more of this. Long live the reporter. Let every public man who meditates a little piece of painful fraud understand that he is 'shadowed' at each step by this unbought espionage, and though he may not be converted he will be restrained."

CARE OF THE HAIR.—To keep the hair healthy, keep the head clean. Brush the scalp well with a stiff brush, while dry. Then wash with Castile Soap, and rub into the roots, bay rum, or camphor water. This done twice a month will prove beneficial. Brush the scalp thoroughly twice a week. Dampen hair with soft water at the toilet, and do not use oil.

THE true greatness and glory of a country must not be tested by extent of dominion, nor by natural advantages of clime, soil and resources, but by the industry, energy, intelligence, enterprise, bravery, public spirit, refinement, and virtues of its people. The smallest and least populated States have often furnished the most heroic and instructive lessons for approval and imitation.

THE sin you hate, unless God keep you, you will embrace.

SUSQUEHANNA COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

The second winter term of this institution will commence MONDAY, JANUARY 26, 1874.

No pains will be spared to maintain the high standing of the institution, and by carefully looking to the interests of each individual student to make its work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his specialty, and use every facility to make the topics interesting, and to secure the largest possible results in his department.

Classes will be organized in several new studies in Science and Language. Also the classes in English will be remodeled so as to meet the wants of new students desiring to pursue these branches.

To save expense, text books, the same as in the county will be used in the English branches, with the exception of Geography.

To make the sojourn of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his house—situated but a few rods from the Institute building—for boarding purposes, where rooms furnished throughout and provided with clothes closets and other conveniences will be furnished for the young ladies.

The best rooms in the Institute will be furnished and assigned to the young men; all will board at the house of the Principal. There will be a careful supervision on the part of the Principal and teachers of the manner in which students employ their time.

Price for furnished room and board, including fuel, lights, and washing not to exceed six pieces, $4 00 per week. Students will furnish their own toilet and be held accountable for the furniture in their rooms.
