Dentistry.

Dr. J. Murray, of Bridgewater, is determined that no Dentist in the State shall do work better or cheaper than he offers it to his patrons.—He uses the best materials manufactured in the United States. ARTIFICIAL TEETH PERFECTION.—T. J. & H. J. CHANDLER have purchased the exclusive right of Beaver county to use Dr. Stock's Patent by which they can put up Vulcanite or chin or gold Plate, with a beautiful enameled polish; and so light and elastic as to perfectly adapt itself to the mouth; obviating all that clumsy and bulky condition, so much complained of heretofore, and lessening their liability to break 100 per cent. Indeed, no one order, it would be willing to wear the old style plate any longer than they could conveniently get them exchanged. All branches of Dentistry performed in the best and most substantial manner. In filling teeth with gold, etc., we challenge competition from any quarter, and can refer to living subjects whose fillings have stood between thirty and forty years. Among the number Hon. John Allison will exhibit fillings we inserted some 45 years ago; the teeth as perfect as the day they were filled. Laughing Gas prepared on a new plan, freeing it from all nauseas and dangerous effects, making the extraction of teeth a source of pleasure rather than of horror and pain. Prices as low as any good dentist in the State. Office at Beaver Station, Rochester Pa.

OHIO RIVER IMPROVEMENT.

Capt. Geo. W. Riley interviewed at Improvement of Ohio River Navigation. Completed in Pittsburgh and Go to Pittsburgh.

The U. S. Engineer, surveying officer Major Sanders, named the Tidefloat, having returned from Warsaw, was tying up at the Newport Barracks Sunday, and we paid her a visit, with a view to obtaining information from Colonel Wm. E. Merrill himself, in reference to the improvements of navigation in the Ohio river that had already been made, that were in progress, and that were contemplated. Colonel Merrill, in charge of the department of the Ohio River improvements, was not on board, but instead we were favored with the observations of Captain George W. Rowley, commander of the steamer, who is also President of the Pilots' Association at Pittsburgh and is one of the oldest and most competent pilots on the river. We will give the result of an hour's interview, briefly as we can:

The Major Sanders is a long, low rakish (we came near saying piratical) looking craft, which runs the stars and stripes up her jackstaff at sunrise every day, and lowers them at sundown, in accordance with army regulations. She is owned by the Government. Formerly her name was "Tidefloat," but when Colonel Wm. E. Merrill, United States Engineer, took command of the department, vice Colonel W. Milnor Roberts, he had the name of the steamer changed to "Major Sanders," out of respect to the memory of the man of that name and title, who is now dead, and who was the first United States Engineer that undertook to improve the navigation of the Ohio river. His operations to that end extended from 1836 to 1841, but, the extent of the improvements made by him, while they were considered great, are of little use now, and not to be compared with those which we will here chronicle.

We fully understand the whole matter, it will be necessary first to recapitulate briefly some things that were done last year. The previous Congress had appropriated the usual meagre sum for the improvement of the river, and last year Colonel Merrill commenced many projects, some of which are yet incomplete, but will be, no doubt, with two exceptions, completed by the time specified in the contract.

The first point that engaged the attention of Col. Merrill (we say first because it is the first point operated on nearest to Pittsburgh, and we propose to commence at the head and come down the river) was White's Riffle, where there had already been a dam, constructed by Mr. Sanders. This dam was made four feet higher. Then the point of Hogs Bar was dredged off so as to make the channel suitable for towing, by widening it 150 feet. An additional depth of two feet was given to the channel.

The left hand channel at Logstown was shut up by the wing dam from the left shore down to the head of the middle bar. This made a splendid stone wall channel between the main middle bar and a little bar to the right, but the main channel for steamers is to the right of all these bars. An additional depth of 2 feet of water was attained here.

At Beaver shoals the channel was straightened by dredging, and a dam was thrown in from the left hand shore at the head of the island to close up the old channel. The depth gained was two feet.

At Twin Island a dam had been commenced by Major Sanders. This dam was completed, and connected the island with the Virginia shore. This gave an additional depth of fifteen inches, but the work did not stop here. Another dam was thrown in from the foot of Upper Twin Island across the old channel, by Col. Roberts. The channel will be dredged by order of Col. Merrill, and five inches more water will be obtained.

At Wheeling Island a dam was constructed about the middle of the Island s'ilhere across the river, which raised the water on the Wheeling marks fifteen inches.

At Capitini there is a dam from the Virginia shore to the island, which was increased a foot in height at the foot of the island, but it will be dredged to two feet.

At Fish creek a dam had been commenced by Major Sanders to connect the Virginia shore with the island. This dam was completed and gave additional 2½ feet depth of water.

At Collins' bar a wing dam was constructed from the Virginia shore, confining the water within a space of 800 feet, which produced an additional two feet of water, as well as two feet at Shecks' bar.

At Sheets' Riffle a wing dam was constructed that, in connection with the one at Collins' bar, gave two feet more.

At Petticoat Riffle the dam was built up from the Virginia shore, so as to give two feet more water.

At Muskingum Island the island was connected with the Virginia shore by a dam, so that boats never think of trouble there now. Two feet more water gained.

Blannerhasset was formerly one of the worst places in the Ohio river, but now at the head of the island the water is shut off by a dam from the Virginia shore, and a semi circular wing dam 1,200 feet in length has been constructed at the foot of the island from shore to shore. Also a dam connecting the island with the towhead. The result of this engineering will give two and a half feet more water at the dreaded place. The effect was marked. It backed the water up to the pool at Parkersburg four feet, and work was discontinued on the sill for the slack water improvement. They thought the river was rising! Another effect is that Newbury, below, is now worse than Blannerhasset; and boats loaded to the water at that point have trouble at Newbury, which often leads pilots to remark that "Newbury is filling up!"

At Belleville an extension of 600 feet has been made to the dam constructed by Major Sanders in 1841. This gives an additional foot of water.

The point nearest to Cincinnati, and above here, that has been improved under last year's contract, is Buffington—to this day the worst place between here and Wheeling. Here a dam 1,300 feet long, was constructed at the head of the island, and also a wing dam 1,500 feet long. This gives fifteen inches additional depth of water, but there is yet a great waste of water that will be saved by increasing the hight of the wing dam. This improvement will be made next year as well as several others, for which the contracts are now out, or proposals asked for, and the money is already appropriated.

Beginning at Pittsburgh again, the first point to which Col. Merrill will direct his attention with the $50,000 appropriated at the last session of
