The Business of Enameling Female Beauty.

A New York paper says: The enameling female faces and busts is now a branch of masculine business and is quite lucrative. A chiropodist on Broadway devotes a good deal of time and attention to this line of trade, while a man named Sausson imitates his example. The belle who would enameling go is first examined with a microscope, and any rough hair or fuzz which exist upon the cheeks or bust is at once removed with liniment or plaster, medicated soap or scissors or tweezers even. Being thus prepared, the cheeks or bust are coated with a fine enamel, which is composed of arsenic or white lead or other ingredients made into a semi-paste, and pleasantly scented. An ordinary coat of enamel will endure for a day or two; but to render the operation of any permanent effect the coating process has to be repeated twice a week for varying periods, according to circumstances, and penceling of the eyebrows, so as to render the contrast between them and the whitened face more striking, is sometimes included in the enameling process, while the eyebrow is also trimmed or shaven, just as the moustache in a man. It costs a good deal of money to be well enameled. The prices of enameling vary, but the average price-list of the various stages is about as follows: For enameling the face to last once or twice, from $10 to $15; for enameling the face and bust temporarily $15 to $20; for enameling the face to endure one or two weeks, from $15 to $25; for enameling the face and bust, to last about the same period, from $25 $35; for permanently (this is for six months) keeping the face in a well-enameled condition from $200 to $350; and for keeping the face and bust both in the same pleasing state, from $400 to $600. So that from its very cost alone enameling should become fashionable. A married belle of the Fifth Avenue Hotel, two married belles of the Metropolitan Hotel, a well-known actress, and three or four prominent young ladies of Madison Avenue, are, at the present date, the most enameled of the darlings of society; but the fashion is extended. In due time enameling will be cheapened, and at last, doubtless, there will be enamelists not only on Broadway but on the Bowery.

Frank Blair's Latest Appearance.

The officers of the Army and Navy of the Gulf lately partook of their annual banquet at Long Branch. The affair was arranged on a grand scale, only one event occuring to mar the pleasurers of the time. It was this: When Major General Frank P. Blair was called he said he would say a word for a people who had not yet had a voice raised in their behalf. "I will speak of the people who were once our enemies, and I know that when I speak of them before soldiers I speak before those who will heartily respond. Those against whom we contended, whom we aspersed as rebels, and whom we triumphed over as well. They were great and generous people, they were worthy of the steel of our best. We have heard here of Farragut and of Sheridan, but we shall yet hear of Lee and Stonewall Jackson. [Hisses and cries and great confusion.] Who is it dissents? [Number of voices—"We dissent," "I dissent," "Think of Andersonville and Libby Prison,"] It would be little merit for us to have triumphed over a mean enemy. [The speaker was again interrupted by a storm of hisses.] I speak of them as our late adversaries. [Cries of "Traitors."] Are there no voices to be raised for them? [Cries of "Yes" and "No," great confusion, and cries of "Traitor."]

Admiral Farragut here decided that to introduce anything which interrupted the harmony was out of order.

General Blair sat down with a flushed face. It is due to him to say that he had apparently enjoyed the hospitality of his hosts, before he arose to speak, to a degree that rendered it difficult for him to express his ideas with his usual clearness. His conduct was universally condemned, and especially by his best friends. The excitement produced by this little episode soon blew over, and General Blair left the room.

Freak of a Lunatic.

An insane man in White Pigeon Mich., recently burned $1,100 in greenbacks and buried the ashes. He had just received the money for four years service on a farm which he had suddenly taken a notion to leave. He explained that he used the money in this singular and unprofitable way "to help him through purgatory." He had given no indication of insanity before.

At Richmond, Indiana, a lively war is being waged against tavern keepers by the the friends of temperance allied to the City Councils. On Wednesday last the latter body advanced the annual license fee from fifty dollars per year to ten times that amount, and came very near making it one thousand dollars. This large tax is in addition to one of fifty dollars imposed by the State authorities, so that it will be unprofitable in Richmond to traffic in rum.

ANDREW JOHNSON once made a speech at Greenville to an association of tailors, who bore a banner representing Adam and Eve making their fig-leaf aprons, and in the course of his remarks he said: "Our father and head was a tailor." These words were reported in the newspapers: "Our Father in heaven was a tailor."

THE New York Times is said to have received, since Mr. Raymond's death, an avalanche of propositions from would-be editors. They are a classified as follows: Persons willing to be managers, 6,259; financial editors, 5,670; leader writers, 665; theatrical critics, 2,076; reporter, 1; night editors, 0; errand boys, 0.
