Elk County Advocate.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1870.

The extreme cold weather has rendered it almost impossible to work in this office; this, in connection with the Holidays, is our excuse for back date.

In order to meet the requirements of the law for our legal advertisements, we are obliged to issue three numbers this week, and as we can not procure compositors for the occasion, are obliged to use the same matter, on this side, that we used in our last issue.

DEATH'S HARVEST.—On Monday night, says the State Journal, three well-known citizens of Harrisburg died. Their names are Luther Reeser, in the 52d year of his age; Bernard Campbell aged about 38 and Samuel Robinson in the 41st year of his age. The former has held different positions of trust, though of late years he has been engaged in the clothing business in this city. He was a member of the Locust Street M. E Church, and one of the leaders of the choir. He possessed many excellent social traits, and was respected by all who enjoyed his acquaintance.

Bernard Campbell was widely known as the chief-of-police under different municipal administrations, an office for which he was peculiarly qualified. His wife died about one year ago, and now he follows her to the grave.

Mr Robinson also enjoyed an extensive acquaintance and many friends. He was engaged in the restaurant business during the war, and afterwards took charge of the City Hotel.

SHERIFF'S SALES.

RELIGIOUS DEPARTMENT.

REV. C. M. HEARD, EDITOR.

[illegible] to the following to those wives and sisters who are anxious in the work for the Master. None can do work so well as they.

"A lady of good social position in Cleveland, Ohio, while on her way to a meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association, saw in the street passed a beer saloon a young man about to raise a glass of liquor to his lips. Following instantly the impulse—would that Christians always did so!—she left her company, went to the entrance, and stepping in, said to the youth:

"'Do my friend, stop, don't touch it!'

"Startled by the appearance of a well dressed lady in such a place, he turned and asked:

"'What brings you here?'

"'To save you from ruin, she replied.

"'What do you want of me?' he asked, confused by the unexpectedness of the scene.

"'I want you to let me take your arm and go with you to the Young Men's Christian association meeting' she answered.

"'But you will be ashamed to walk with me,' he said.

"'Not in the least; I would be rejoiced to go there with you' she replied.

"Unable to resist her persuasive manner and heartfelt interest in his welfare the young man left the intoxicating place, and went to the meeting. Here prayer specially made for him and her act of humane obedience resulted in his conversion. He became not only a Christian, but one of the most active workers for the gospel in Cleveland.'—Chicago Standard.

In Search of a Boy.

A gentleman wanted a trusty boy as friend came to his office, one day, saying: 'I've got a boy for you—smart, active and intelligent—just the boy that will please you.'

'Who is he?' said the gentleman. The friend told his name. Just at the moment the boy passed the window, and was pointed out to him.

'Oh, I don't want him,' said the gentleman, 'he has a bad mark; I met him yesterday with a cigar in his mouth. I don't want a smoker.'

'All the more we're talking, another gentleman entered the office. 'I understand you want a good, trusty boy?'

'Yes sir; have you got one for me?'

'I think I have,' was the reply.

'Well, sir,' said the gentleman, 'what do you know of him?'

'I don't know much,' said the other, 'he is in my Sunday-school, always behaves, and never smokes.'

'He is the boy for me. The boy that gets his Sunday-school lesson and never smokes can be trusted.'

HOW LONG.—'How long does it take to be converted?' said a young man to his father.

'How long,' asked the father, 'does it take the judge to discharge the prisoner when the jury have brought him in 'not guilty'?'

'Only a minute.'

'When a sinner is convicted that he is a sinner, and is sorry for it; which he desires forgiveness and deliverance from sin, and believes that Christ is able and willing to save him, he can be converted as speedily as the prisoner can be discharged by the judge. It does not take God a long time to discharge a penitent soul from the condemnation and power of sin.'

SCRIPTURE DIET.—The papers are telling a story of a poor and simple-hearted African who once came to Mr Moffat, the missionary, and told him with a lugubrious face, that his dog had torn his copy of the New Testament, and swallowed some of the leaves of it, and that he was greived about it, for the dog was very valuable.

"But," said the missionary, "Why do you grieve so? You can get another Testament, and the leaves will not hurt the dog."

"Ah!" said the savage, "that's what I fear. He is a good hunter and a watch-dog, and the New Testament is so full of gentleness and love that I am afraid he will never be of any service again!"

PRIVATE INTERCOURSE WITH YOUR SCHOLARS.—My experience leads me to give paramount importance to private intercourse with my scholars; it secures me a gradual ascendency over the scholar's heart; we are no longer seperated, but account each other friends. I remember with gratitude the earnest solicitude of my old theacher; and have long been satisfied that no other course can open so complete and desirable a means of speaking the truth as it is in [illegible]
