The Alabama Claims.

This subject still agitates the London journals. The Times of May 24th advances the belief that Mr. Motley will make no fresh proposals, and asserts that the only apprehension of disagreement as to the terms of settlement arises from the fact that the politicians of the United States exhibit no disposition to separate the material from the sentimental grievances. The Times contends that the alleged injuries arising from the Queen's proclamation of neutrality were purely accidental, and that the British Government cannot be held responsible for the sympathies of the English people with the South. It concludes: "Let no misdirection of sympathy, but settled reflection and cool communings of conscience settle the question; and on both sides let the alleged injuries be measured and appraised by the proper tribunals. This course may open a way for the settlement of the difficulties, and we shall be rejoiced to find that the Americans have discovered it." The Star (John Bright's organ) asserts "that the unetrality proclamation was a real benefit to the North, and argues that, while general society in England favored the South, the laboring classes undoubtedly sympathized with the American government." The Standard (high tory) is excessively bitter, and boldly acknowledges that it sympathized with the South, and still entertains the same feelings.

Fate of Washington Clerks.

A Washington correspondent of the Cincinnatti Gazette thus confirms all that has been said of the miseries of clerical dependence in Washington. No one who has watched the clerical changes which occur at the opening of any administration can conscientiously advise a friend to accept a government place in Washington. The city is to-day, says a writer, filled with men and women who, at a week's notice, have been discharged without a dollar in hand or resources of any kind, to begin anew, after years of service, in making their way in the world. Hundreds of these are of the most distressing character. Men who have performed department work till totally unfit for any kind of business, find that themselves at middle life with families upon their hands, left wholly adrift. The appointment office of every department is crowded each day with women, who by change, have been stricken in a day into the ranks of paupers. The situation of great numbers of these people is absolutely terrible. Underneath the roar of the capital's political life there is sorrow and suffering among those who but a week ago were in the service of the Government, which in many of its features surpasses the distress which hides itself in the alleys and the garrets of the great commercial cities. Let no young man who hopes for a future in which his powers shall have full play, or in which he shall be independent, seek it through the doors of a Government department.

ABSCONDING principals and defaulting clerks are all the rage. Every day chronicles the disappearance of some one or more of these peculating individuals, who generally manage to carry with them very handsome sums. Anything short of twenty thousand dollars defalcation is considered almost too small for newspaper notice. A hundred thousand dollar affair provokes a ten line paragraph, and half a million or so is deemed worthy half a column. By the way, who ever heard of one of these scoundrels being punished? Defalcations of this character are so frequent and so enormous in amount, that it would seem as though some steps would be taken to bring the perpetrators to punishment, but thus far they appear to ply their vocation with almost perfect impunity. So long as these things are winked at, so long will they continue to increase.

Music in Churches.

The Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia has recently decided that the exclusive power of controlling the singing in Presbyterian churches, including the employment of a choir and an organist, belongs to the "Church Session," and not to the trustees, and hence disallowed a proposed amendment to church charter, which authorized the trustees to appoint an organist, with the approval of the session, a sexton, and any other persons they may think necessary for the interest or convenience of the corporation. The language of the amendment was further held to be objectionable, as being too general, and as conferring powers on the trustees not sufficiently ascertained and limited, to prevent confusion and conflict of authority. —Phila. Ledger.

Gettysburg Monument.

Colonel E. Y. Selbeck, representing the Gettysburg Monument Association applied to the Secretary of War, a few days since, for permission to use a number of hospital tents in store in the Quartermaster's Department of the army, for the accommodation of persons who are expected to be present at the dedication of the monument on the Fourth of July next. Secretary Rawlins granted the request, and at the proper time Colonel Selbeck will make a formal request for two hundred tents. They will afford lodging for four thousand people.

An old man of 60, who recently poisoned himself in New Haven, left a note requesting his minister to preach in his funeral sermon the same discourse that had been delivered over his wife.

THE New York papers complain that servant girls, sewing women and other real laborers are never allowed to have anything to say at the so-called "working women's assemblies" in that city.

IT IS A FACT!

Capable of ocular demonstration, that the prices of Cloths, Cassimeres, Ready-Made Clothing and Furnishing Goods, are less than one-half what they were during the war, at the Merchant Tailoring establishment of

S. S. RATHVON,

Corner North Queen and Orange Streets, opposite Shober's Hotel, Lancaster, Pa.

This is the oldest establishment in this line of trade in Lancaster county, and is selling, at this time, fine Moscow, Esquimaux, and common Beaver Overcoats from $15 to $20; Common Union Beavers from $10 to $15; Common Union Beaver Business Suits from $12 to $15; Good Cassimere Suits from $16 to $20, and fine qualities from $25 to $30. A few suits on hand as low as $10. Cloths, Cassimeres and Trimmings as low as they can be obtained anywhere else, and sold by the yard to those who may wish to have them made at home, or elsewhere.

Overcoats, Dress Coats and Business Suits made to order with dispatch, and in the best and most fashionable manner, as the customer may desire. All kinds of cutting and repairing done at reasonable prices. An entire new stock got up for the Fall and Winter trade of 1868 and 1869, and manufactured in the city of Lancaster. It would be to the interest of the public to call and realize that "IT IS A FACT."
