THE LATE DUKE OF WELLINGTON—HIS INCOME, HABITS &c.—The late Duke of Wellington had an immense income during life. As Commander-in-Chief, the Duke was entitled to draw forty eight dollars a day, or about 30,000 and as Colonel of the Grenadier Guards, he was receiving 10,000 dollars more. He drew a pension of nearly 200,000 annually and was in possession of property given him by the British government to the amount of $700,000, or nearly $3,500,000. The pension will be continued to be paid to the Duke's two next male heirs, who also inherit his large estates and his titles; but most of his offices and emoluments are to be scrambled for by the nobility and others, and rich places they will be for the disposal of the Ministry.

The new duke, at the time of his father's death, was at Frankfort, whence he was immediately summoned. He has hitherto borne the title of Marquis of Douro, and until the last election he enjoyed a seat in the House of Commons as member for Norwich. He is 45 years of age, and bears a considerable, although not a striking resemblance to his father. He has never taken any prominent part in public affairs, nor is he likely to do so.—The Duke's second son, Lord Charles Wellesley, was with him at the time of his death. He is 44 years of age, and has a seat in the House of Commons, as member for South Hampshire.

The late Duke's personal habits were extremely temperate, if not abstemious.—He slept little, and, whether from old military associations or for health's sake, used a hard mattress and camp bed. He appeared to avoid display in his dress, equipage and attendants, preferring horse exercise to the state and luxury of a carriage; and even when increasing weakness rendered it a task of some difficulty to sit erect upon horse back, day after day he was seen rambling slowly down to the Horse Guards, touching his hat to the crowds assembled round the entrance to catch a glimpse of the veteran warrior.—He household was said to be a model of good order and good management. He incurred no debts; punctual and precise in all his dealings, he was always just, and frequently, though privately, generous.—His Waterloo banquets, which for many years drew around him his surviving companions in arms in his last glorious field, were the only exceptions to his usual indifference to display. On these occasions the plate, massive services of plate and priceless china, pictures, statutes, and all the rich gifts, honors and presents which have been conferred upon him by the sovereigns of Europe were not inappropriately displayed.

THE WIT OF SARCASM.—Sarcastic is thought by some people to be a sign of ability. Such individuals are the crack of Chinese crackers thrown into a crowd continually exploding in every direction but with greater noise than fire. There is there ill breeding than wit in sarcasm, and more ill nature than either. True wit does not consist in abuse but in profound wisdom tersely expressed. Nothing, therefore, can be further from wit than sarcasm, and where they go together one is pressed into the service, and is an illegitimate ally.

Nevertheless, we know many, mostly young persons, who set up for wits on the ill fair of sarcasm. They are usually very conceited, or very foolish, or very unamiable individuals, and by no means the terror to others they imagine. Persons of sense are no more affected by their sarcasms than mastiffs are by the yelp of a cur dog. A real wit never condescends to reply to them. We have known many of such sarcastic persons to our experience, and always found they cured themselves of this childish habit as soon as they grew up; or if they did not, that they remained children in their tempers to the end of their career. It is a mean sort of revenge that seeks to pall another's feelings by sarcasm, for where one happens to be successful it is like the copper shot of the Mexicans, which gangrenes the wound.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE OF A YOUNG LADY.—A Miss Ann Jane Converse, about 25 years, daughter of Mrs. Hiram Converse, living between Leroys and Stafordville, went to the house of Mr. Leon Fortline, in the neighborhood, to spend the night. She, with the family, retired at an early hour, and when called in the morning was not found.

Search was immediately made for her and the only trace that can be found is that early next morning a female resembling her was seen by a man at Bell Mills. She was dressed in black, and is an interesting and amiable young lady, an only daughter, and her mysterious disappearance causes great excitement in the vicinity. The immense wilderness lying north of Sterlingville has been thoroughly searched, with occasional traces reported of the missing girl. At least a thousand men were out each day last week, but up to Sunday night nothing could be found of her.—Watertown Journal.

A FABLE.—Aristotle tells a story of a divine who, by some mysterious law of nature, was condemned to appear at a certain season in the form of a foul and poisonous snake. Those who injured her during the period of disguise were forever excluded from participation in the blessings she bestowed; but if she met with those who in her disguise had aspersed, pitied and protected her, she afterwards revealed herself in a beautiful and celestial form which was natural to her, accompanied their abode with all blessings, filled their houses with wealth and made them happy in love and in children. The fable, in showing kindness and civility to the most degraded and unhappy.

WHATEVER concerns the health and happiness of a people must all times of the most vital importance. I take it for granted that every person will do all in their power to save the lives of their children, and that every person will endeavor to preserve their own health at all sacrifices. I feel it to be my duty to formally assure you that ALL FILLS, according to the opinion of the most celebrated Physicians, are the primary cause of a large majority of diseases to which children and adults are liable; if you have an appetite continually changeable from one kind of food to another, Bad Breath, Pain in the Stomach, Pickling at the Nose, Hardness and Fullness of the Belly, Dry Cough, Slow Fever, Pulse Irregular—remember that all these denote WORMS, and you should at once apply the remedy—

HOBENSACK'S WORM SYRUP.

An article founded upon Scientific Principles; compounded with purely vegetable substances, being positively safe when taken, and can be given to the most tender Infant with decided beneficial effect where bowel Complaints and Diarrhœa have made them weak and obstinated the Tonic properties of my Worm Syrup are such that it stands without an equal in the catalogue of medicines, in giving tone and strength to the Stomach, which makes it an infallible remedy for those afflicted with Dyspepsia, the astonishing cures performed by this Syrup after Physicians have failed, is the best evidence of its superior efficacy over all others.

The Tape Worm!

This is the most difficult Worm to destroy of all that infest the human system, it grows to an almost indefinite length, becoming so coiled and fastened in the intestines and Stomach effecting the health so sadly as to cause St. Vitus Dance, Fits, &c., that those afflicted seldom if ever suspect that it is Tape Worm harboring there to an early grave. In order to destroy this Worm, a very energetic treatment must be pursued, it would therefore be proper to take 6 or 8 of my Liver Pills so as to remove all obstructions, that the Worm Syrup may act direct upon the Worm, which must be taken in doses of 2 Tablespoonfuls 3 times a day. These directions followed have never been known to fail in curing the most obstinate case of Tape Worm.

Hobensack's Liver Pills.

No part of the system is more liable to disease than the LIVER—it serving as a filterer to purify the blood, giving the proper secretion to the bile—so that any wrong action of the Liver effects the other important parts of the system, and results variously in Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia &c. We should, therefore, use such a medicine as might indicate a wrong action of the Liver. These Pills being composed of ROOTS and PLANTS furnished by nature to heal the sick:—Namely, 1st. An EXPECTORANT, which augments the secretion from the pulmonary mucous membrane, promotes the discharge of retarded matter. 2d. An ALTERATIVE, which changes in some inexplicable and insensible manner the certain morbid action of the system. 3d. A TONIC, which gives tone and strength to the nervous system. 4th. A DIAPHORETIC, which acts on all parts of the body. 5th. A CATHARTIC, which acts in perfect harmony with the other ingredients, and operating on the Bowels, and expelling the whole mass of corrupt and vitiated matter, and purifying the Blood, which destroys disease and restores health.

To Females.

You will find these Pills an invaluable medicine in many complaints to which you are subject. In obstructions either total or partial, they have been found of inestimable benefit—restoring their functional arrangements to a healthy action—purifying the blood and other fluids, so effectually as to put to flight all complaints which may arise from female irregularities, as Headache, Giddiness, Dimness of Sight, Pain in the side, Back, &c.

None genuine unless signed J. N. HOBENSACK—all others being base imitations.
