Important to Travelers Going East.
THE early hour, three o'clock in the morning, at which the EXPRESS TRAIN starts for the East, from Pittsburgh, had made it very inconvenient for travelers going by that train, compelling them to be aroused at a most uncomfortable time, (say 2 o'clock A. M.) or else to remain up all night. This inconvenience is now obviated by a late arrangement. That Express Train now breakfasts regularly at LATROBE, instead of Hollidaysburg—so that travelers East can leave Pittsburgh at 5 o'clock P. M., by the Accommodation, which arrives at Latrobe at 7½ o'clock P. M., have pleasant quarters there over night at the large and elegant Hotel of Mr. ELDER, breakfast comfortably with the other passengers in the morning, and pass on East by the Express, having DAY TRAVEL ALL THE WAY from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia or Baltimore. Every provision is made at the Hotel, for the accommodation of guests and visitors by those trains. fel7:tf

HIGHLY INTERESTING AND IMPORTANT!

FROM EUROPE BY THE ARCTIC.

RENEWAL OF THE AUSTRIAN DEMANDS ON TURKEY.

The Collins mail steamship Arctic, Capt. Luce, arrived at New York at half past six o'clock on Saturday evening. She left Liverpool at half past one o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, the 13th inst.

The Rev. M. P. Parks, passenger by the Arctic, of New York, died on Thursday night, the 21st.

The news is full of interest. Count Nesselrode has issued a new circular, more impudent than the last; yet the Bourses manifested no particular alarm. Matters appear to be becoming more and more complicated, yet the public of Europe will not open their eyes to the possibility of war. Austria has seized the opportunity of again demanding from Turkey the concessions refused to the late mission of Count de Leiningen. This, if authentic, forbids the idea of Austria's neutrality in any coming struggle.

We have detailed accounts of the recent riot in Smyrna, in which the Captain of the United States sloop-of-war St. Louis appears to have acted as an American ought to act in such cases.

Cotton was quiet and steady.

Breadstuffs were in less demand, with prices slightly declined.

Consols closed in London, on the 12th inst., languid—money and account 97⅞@98.

ENGLAND.—In answer to a question put in the House of Lords by Earls Malmesbury and Derby, to the Earl of Aberdeen, asking whether the government had received any information of the occupation of Bosnia by Austrian troops, the latter stated that no such information had been received, nor had any despatch from the Austrian government implying the probability of such occupation. Lord John Russell, in the House of Commons, made a similar statement, adding also that he believed the report had arisen from the movement of troops to Peterwardien, which is within Austria's own territory. He also said, in answer to Mr. D'Israeli, that the new circular, purporting to be Count Nesselrode's, was an authentic document, but the Russian government could not substantiate the assertion it made, that the entry of the Russian troops into the Danube provinces was caused by the appearance of the English fleet in Turkish waters. Next evening, Lord Lyndhurst asked the Earl of Clarendon if he concurred in these views. The Earl replied that he considered there was a wide difference between the situation of the fleets in Basika Bay and that of the Russian army in the provinces of the Danube; for while one was neutral ground, the other was not, and the presence of the fleet in the Turkish waters could be no offence to Russia.

With respect to the course of Britain on the Eastern question, we cannot do better than quote the words of the London Times, which says, editorially, (date the 11th):—About the middle of last week, and immediately after the receipt of the intelligence that the Russians had crossed the Pruth, a proposition was adopted by the British government, to which we presume that France has given her assent, containing such an amount of concession as the Porte may, in the judgment of its allies, be advised to make, and the Russian government may, if it think fit, accept.

Without entering more particularly into the nature of this suggestion, we may observe that it has repeatedly been said that nothing need prevent the Porte from making a collective declaration to all the powers as to the rights of its Christian subjects, and that the Porte would also be ready to renew by a fresh engagement, though not to extend, the rights already claimed by Russia under existing treaties. On some such terms a fresh negotiation may perhaps be opened; and if Russia accede to them, little doubt need be entertained of its prompt success. Supposing that this proposition is now (July 11) on its way to St. Petersburgh, a week or ten days more may elapse before the acceptance or rejection of it can be known here.

The Morning Chronicle of the 11th instant, has an editorial narrating the singular fact if true, that Russian emissaries are spread throughout the northern dependence of China, endeavoring to convert the allegiance of the Buddhists to the sovereignty of Nicholas. The information is derived through French missionaries.

Prince Albert has the measles. The Marchioness of Anglesey is dead. The Queen's visit to Dublin is postponed on account of Albert's illness.

FRANCE.—The London Times, writing editorially and ostensibly from exclusive information, asserts that the rumored conspiracy against the Emperor's life was really founded on fact. Some weeks ago, as the Emperor and Empress were on their way to the Hippodrome, a plot was laid for intercepting the cortege. One of the horses in the carriage preceding that of the Emperor was to have been stabbed; and in the confusion that was expected to follow, a more decisive blow was to have been struck. This plot miscarried at the very moment of its execution, for on the occurrence of the stoppage in front, the Imperial carriage was driven rapidly on, and the Emperor escaped molestation. Many persons supposed to be implicated in this conspiracy were arrested, and are said to have been secretly sent out of the country.

It was on account of having failed to unravel this plot that M. de Maupas was removed from the Ministry of Police, and his office abolished. Suspicions were entertained that other members of the secret society to which the alleged conspirators belonged would renew their attempt, and a close but quiet watch was kept upon their movements. At the door of the opera, the other night, several of them were recognized pressing near the person of Napoleon, when the police dexterously raised a cry au voleur—thieves!—and arrested their men without disturbance. The police said nothing about it, but it crept out that the persons arrested were armed with pistol and poinard, and doubtless meant mischief. The public records merely announced (as stated per last steamer) that several members of secret societies were arrested in an attempt to disturb order at the opera. The trial of the prisoners concerned in this affair will shortly commence before the Police Correctionelle, which proceeds without a jury. The members of the secret societies are affiliated together, under the name of the "Invisibles."

The Progress Industrial de Lyons, of July 3d, says, that the mulberry tree is at present attacked by a disease, which is seriously injuring the rearing of silk-worms. The scientific societies talk learnedly on the subject, but have not devised any remedy. It made its first appearance this year in the Bouches du Rhone, about May 20th, and is now complained of in the department of Vaucleuse. The infection seems analagous to that which has lately injured the vines, but happily it is not universal, and in many quarters the rearing the worm was in advance of the first manifestation of the disease. The commercial circulars of the Lyons silk merchants say it is probable that the present scarcity and high price of thrown silk will be maintained for some time, but a rise of any duration is unlikely.

The news of the crops from most parts of France, has again become favorable. To provide, however, against all contingencies, the government had purchased large supplies of breadstuffs in England and elsewhere, which purchases, we presume, are now over. Grain harvest will be rather late in France; but it is estimated that if the abundant crops of Algeria be gathered in, they will supply 800,000 hectolitres of wheat for imports into France.

HOLLAND.—A document has been published which, it was anticipated, would much assist in putting an end to the difference with the Papal Government. It consists in a note from Cardinal Antonelli, authorizing a modification of the oath required to be taken by Catholic Prelates, who have also permission accorded them to reside out of their diocese.

GERMANY.—The Grand Duke of Weimar died at Weimar on the morning of July 8th.

The German press, with the exception of the Neue Preussiche Zeitung and the Frankfort Post Zeitung, is decidedly opposed to the pretensions of Russia.

DENMARK.—Eighty four cases of cholera were reported at Copenhagen, July 1, but the disease does not spread rapidly. A letter from Copenhagen says, there is little doubt that the harvest in Sweden will be bad, and the price of grain is already rising in that country.

RUSSIA.—Proclamation of the Commandant to the Moldovians—Nesselrode's last Manifesto—Russian Commercial Prospects, &c.—Prince Gortschakoff, the Russian Commander-in-Chief of the invading armies, has addressed the following Proclamation to the inhabitants of Moldavia and Wallachia:

Proclamation.—His Majesty the Emperor, my august lord and master, has ordered me to occupy your country with the armies, the command of which he has deigned to confide to me.

We come among you neither with projects of conquest, nor with the intention to modify the institutions under which you live, nor the political position which solemn treaties have guaranteed to you.

The provisional occupation of the principalities, which I am ordered to effect, is for no other purpose than that of an immediate and efficacious protection in grave and unforeseen circumstances, when the Ottoman Government, distrusting the numerous proofs of a sincere alliance which the Imperial Court has never ceased to give it, since the conclusion of the treaty of Adrianople, replies to our most equitable proposals with refusals, and opposes the most offensive suspicions to our disinterested advice.

In his magnanimity, in his constant desire to maintain peace in the East, as well as in Europe, the Emperor will avoid an aggressive war with Turkey so long as his dignity and the interests of his empire shall permit him so to do.

On the day on which he obtains the reparation which is due to him, and the guaranties which he has a right to claim for the future, his troops shall return within the frontiers of Russia.

Inhabitants of Moldavia and Wallachia! I also execute an order of His Imperial Majesty in declaring to you that the presence of His Majesty's troops in your country shall not impose on you any fresh charges or contributions; that the forage and rations for the troops shall in due time, and at a rate appointed and agreed on in advance by your governments, be paid for from our military treasury.

Look tranquilly to the future! Engage with security in your agricultural labors and commercial speculations! Be obedient to the laws under which you live and to the established authorities. It is by the faithful discharge of these duties that you will acquire the best claim to the generous solicitude and the powerful protection of His Majesty, the Emperor.

(Signed) GORTCHAKOFF.

The new manifesto of Count Nesselrode was published in the Journal of St. Petersburgh, June 20 (O. S.) It is an important document. The following is a synopsis:

"The note is entitled "Russian Notification to the European Powers"—Circular—and is addressed to "Mr. ——, diplomatic agent, &c."—Commences by reminding that his (Nesselrode's) circular of May 30, notified the rupture of Russiah diplomatic relations with the Ottoman government—that Russia had narrowed its demand to the simple signature of a note, which, except in what particularly concerned the holy places, did not contain in respect to the general guarantee claimed in favor of the church, anything more than a simple confirmation of what Russia has possessed—that if this demand was not complied with within eight days, by the Porte, measures more decisive than simple rupture of relations would be taken; and in making this ultimatum, Russia has given particular explanations to the great powers—had especially requested of France and England not to complicate the difficulties of the situation by their attitude.

This two-fold request was unheeded; Turkey refused the ultimatum, and the two maritime powers not having thought fit to defer to the considerations recommended to their serious attention—they had sent their fleets into the waters of Constantinople. By that advanced attitude the two powers have placed Russia under the weight of a threatening demonstration; which, as they were forewarned, has added new complications to this crisis. Consequent on this refusal and this demonstration, the Russian troops stationed in Bessarabia had entered the principalities, not to make an offensive war upon the Porte, but to substitute for moral guarantees a material guarantee, and to re-establish the equilibrium of the reciprocal situations by taking a military position, inasmuch as Russia regards the presence of the fleets in Turkish waters as a maritime occupation.

But, further than this, Russia has no intention to hold the position longer than honor and security require, and as soon as Turkey shall have accorded satisfaction, and the pressure exercised by the two powers shall cease, the Russian troops shall return within their own confines. But Russia does not in the least conceal how full of meaning is the attitude which she takes, and what consequence may follow from it, should the Turkish government compel her to come out of the limited and narrow circle in which she desires to remain; but the position into which Turkey thrusts us (Russia) by pushing things to an extreme, leaves no other course open." The rest of the despatch is devoted to a special pleading of the justice and moderation of the demand of Russia, and the disinterested and fraternal friendship she feels for Turkey. And these considerations M —— is charged to represent to the government he is accredited to under the signature of NESSELRODE

The Wallachian corps of occupation is to reach Bucharest on the 8th inst. It was believed the British would leave on the arrival of the Russians.

At St. Petersburgh commercial letters were to July 4th, but do not describe any alteration in the markets. From Odessa the dates are to June 29. A large business in wheat had again taken place, at rather higher prices; the purchases being for the Mediterranean, chiefly, Genoa and Marseilles. Four hundred and twenty seven cases of cholera were reported under treatment in S. Petersburgh, July 1st; new cases, 57, cured that day, 41; deaths 20.

TURKEY.—The next news from Constantinople would reach Paris and London on the 18th, (day of Arctic's sailing from Liverpool,) or 14th inst. Until then it could not be known with certainty what decision the Porte had taken on learning that the Russians had crossed the Pruth, and whether it had appealed to the assistance of its allies. Should it have done so, the probability is that the allied fleet would have passed the Dardanelles before the arrival of the last instructions from the two governments.

A private despatch from Vienna, however, states that the ambassadors of France, England and Austria, at Constantinople, on the receipt of the news that the Russians had crossed the Pruth, requested an audience of the Sultan, and asked him not to demand that the allied fleets should enter the Dardanelles. The Sultan complied with the recommendation, and confined himself to a protest against the invasion of the territory.

The following curious paragraph comes from Vienna, July 8:

"Great depression prevails in the Turkish capital, but the movements of the troops, and the unceasing coming and going of English, American, French, Dutch and Turkish vessels, give an unusual animation to the city."

A private letter of the same date confirms a startling piece of intelligence, "Avery high personage" [quere, who? Czar or Sultan?] "is said recently to have exhibited symptoms of a terrible malady which is believed to be in the family, and it is even asserted that the propriety of nominating a proxy for a time is already discussed. The rumor that there are two great rival parties in Russia gains strength. The old Russian faction has at its head two Grand Dukes, (Constantine, and probably a younger brother,) and the synod. The so-called German party, which is headed by Count Nesselrode and his colleagues, represents the intelligence and civilization of the nation."

A correspondent thinks that the statement of American aid to the Sultan rests on no better authority than a gossipping letter to the Ost Deutsche Post.

The Porte had declined the formation of a foreign legion. A council of consultation is about to be summoned, composed of the most eminent men from all parts of the empire.

The Envoy of the Bey of Tunis had arrived at Constantinople to express the Bey's regret at the "most unjust demands of Russia," and to tender his assistance in support of the banner of the Prophet.

We mention, merely to omit nothing that looks like news, that the correspondence from Alexandria of the Algemine Gazette states that certain English agents are flattering the Pacha of Egypt with the theory of an Arabian Kingdom, under British protection. The same paper says that the Egyptian continent of 15,000 men, is destined for the occupation of Syria.

The Smyrna correspondent of the Marseilles Stemophere, gives an account of the disturbance in Smyrna, of which we have already had the announcement by telegraph, via Halifax. It appears that M. Costa, a Hungarian ex-aid-de-camp to Kossuth, and who had just returned from the United States, was secreted in the house of a Sardinian, in Smyrna. His whereabouts came to the ears of M. Vekbecker, Austrian Consul General, who, under pretence of searching for a thief, dragged him out, gagged, hand cuffed and conveyed him on board the Austrian brig-of-war Hussar. All the efforts of the other Europeans, aided by Ali Pacha and the native officers, to have the prisoner handed over to the local tribunals were in vain. On the following day the U. States frigate, accompanied by the U. S. Consul, immediately went on board the Austrian ship, and demanded to talk with the prisoner, whom they believed to have a claim to the protection of the United States. The Austrian Lieutenant in command denied that he had any prisoner on board. The Captain of the St. Louis and the Consul then went to the Austrian Consulate, where, after a scene of the most violent kind, M. Vekbecker admitted that the prisoner was on board, and gave a forced consent to see him.

Returning on board the Austrian vessel, the American Captain thus addressed Commander Schwartz—"When I came on board a short time since, your lieutenant lied to my face! The meanest of my cabin boys would not have been guilty of such cowardice! Where is the prisoner? I wish to see him!" As Commander Schwartz hesitated, the American added—"Bear in mind, that if the prisoner claims my protection, and has the slightest right to it, I will remove him myself, and will not allow him to remain another minute on board."—Unfortunately the generous efforts of the Captain of the St. Louis were useless, for the prisoner prevaricated and betrayed himself so much in his replies, that he did not give his defenders the slightest chance to save him. When this was shown on shore, great excitement broke out, and the Italians would have burned the Austrian Consulate had it not been well defended. In their heat they attacked three Austrian midshipmen who were on shore, and killed one.—
