SENATOR DOUGLAS feels the necessity, about these times, of keeping himself in the public eye. He has availed himself of the widely circulated Harper's Magazine to reproduce his ideas upon popular sovereignty in the Territories. This he has done totis viribus, and with a vengeance, as eighteen mortal pages testify. In spite of its length, however, it is a vigorous document—a very skillful re-marshalling of the arguments which its author has been using for years in Congress and on the stump in behalf of the dogma with which he is ambitious to have his name and destinies identified. We by no means consider it a fair and complete exposition. It is very one-sided, and altogether inconclusive. But we have no intention of criticising the Senator's course of argument. Our present business is not with his own affirmative positions, but with what he attributes to his opponents, and with the commentary he insensibly furnishes upon his senatorial action in 1854.

He imputes to the Republican party a theory which they do not hold. His language is:

"According to the theory of the Republican Party, there is an irrepressible conflict between freedom and slavery, free labor and slave labor, free States and slave States, which is irreconcilable, and must continue to rage with increasing fury, until the one shall become universal by the annihilation of the other. * * * Thus it will be seen that under the auspices of a political party, which claims sovereignty in Congress over the subject of slavery, there can be no peace on the slavery question—no peace in the sectional strife."

The allegation here is that the Republican party have committed themselves to a crusade for the annihilation of slave labor. It is a most unwarrantable charge. Mr. Douglas advances nothing to sustain it but the resolution of the Republican National Convention that "it is both the right and the duty of Congress to prohibit in the Territories those twin relics of barbarism, Polygamy and Slavery," and a brief passage from Senator Seward's Rochester speech. The first proof offered has not even the poor merit of being specious. The dullest intellect must discern that opposition to Slavery in the Territories is no evidence of an intention to attack it elsewhere. But it is particularly presumptuous in Mr. Douglas to connect the two, when he knows perfectly well that the Address which summoned the Convention together expressly "disclaimed any intention to interfere with Slavery in the States where it exists, or to invalidate those portions of the Constitution by which it is removed from the national control." In regard to the other evidence cited, we are sorry to see that Mr. Douglas descends to the same suppression practised by many a trickish politician, whom he ought to despise and not imitate. He quotes Mr. Seward's declaration that there is an "irrepressible conflict between opposing and enduring forces," and that the time must come when the States must be all free or all Slaveholding. But he entirely passes by and ignores Mr. Seward's explicit disavowal of all desire for political interference. Mr. Seward thus said [...]

"It remains to say on this [...] to guard against misapprehension. If these States are again to become universally slaveholding, I do not pretend to say with what violations of the Constitution that end shall be accomplished. On the other hand while I do confidently believe and hope that my country will yet become a land of universal freedom, I do not expect that it will be made so otherwise than through the action of the several States co-operating with the Federal Government, and all acting in strict conformity to their respective constitutions."

Now Mr. Douglas in omitting this, has done his brother Senator a gross injustice. No candid man who has read the Rochester Speech, can mistake its import. What Mr. Seward maintained was, that Slavery has elements of weakness that must inevitably produce its final extinction, unless it can strengthen itself by securing the positive aid of the Federal Government, so as by gradual encroachment to universalize the system, and thus bring the whole country to identify its interests and destinies with the perpetuation of the institution. His position was that Slavery could not remain stationary—that, by its own internal necessities, it must either increase or decrease, or recede—and that the special business of the Republican party was to withstand its aggressions. Mr. Seward did not say anything or imply anything which signified that political power or party power should be made to operate against the institution within its present limits. The language he did use conveys just the opposite sense and Mr. Douglas has done wrong to misrepresent him.—N. Y. Cour. & Enq.

DESTRUCTION OF THE CITY OF ERZEROOM.—Late English papers announce the entire destruction of the ancient city of Erzeroom by repeated shocks of earthquake within the last three months. A letter from one of the Missionaries of the American Board, received in Boston, gives a vivid description of the first great shock:

"The first shock, which was not very severe, was felt about 8 o'clock A. M., June 1, and at 10 o'clock A. M., the following day (June 2d) came the fearful earthquake which laid in ruins two thousand houses, nearly destroyed fifteen hundred more, and injured some twelve hundred others; leaving (according to the accounts of Turkish officials) over thirteen hundred houses unharmed. But I do not believe that there are one hundred houses in Erzeroom as sound as they were before the earthquake. The shock was not only felt throughout the city, but in the villages on the plain, and even at Hassan Kaleh, twenty miles to the east.

"According to official returns, three hundred and eighty dead bodies have been taken out from the ruins, about two hundred wounded, and sixty are missing. The heavy shock, which did the mischief, is said to have continued about eight seconds, and it was followed by three others, less severe, the same day. Shocks, more or less severe, were also felt at intervals during eight consecutive days, since which there has been perfect quiet, and the work of building and repairing is now going on as rapidly as possible.

"The course of the earthquake seems to have followed the direction of the mountain ranges, viz: northeast and southwest, and the greatest destruction was in the upper part of the city, or nearest the foot of the mountain. Buildings firmly constructed or newly erected were injured comparatively little, while others by their side were levelled with the ground. The Armenian, Papal, and other churches, all of which are in the lower part of the city, were but slightly damaged, while mosques in other quarters were badly injured or ruined, and a large number of minarets were thrown down.

"It is a singular fact that the destruction was almost entirely confined to the Moslem quarters of the city, and only twelve Christians lost their lives. None of our Protestant friends were injured, though several barely escaped with life. One woman, sister of our native preacher, B. Hohanes, feeling the waving to and fro of the house, seized her two little children and escaped, in time to see the roof and wall come down with a crash where she had been sitting. Part of another house, adjoining ours, was crushed, but no one was harmed. The two mission houses were injured, but not very seriously.

"The population of nearly the entire city was turned out of doors, and it was indeed a sad sight, as I rode into town last Saturday morning, to see the outskirts covered and the streets lined with tents, some of canvass and others of bits of cloth and carpeting, the remnants left to the poor after the general desolation."

HIDDEN GOLD.—The Mansfield Herald relates a singular case which occurred a few days ago in the Northern part of Richland county. A returned Californian brought home $16,000 in gold, and buried it for security against thieves. He let no one know the place. Soon after, in riding a young, fractious horse, he was thrown and his neck broken. So far search for the money has proved fruitless.

POLICE TORTURE IN NAPLES.—The Times' correspondent writes from Naples on the 6th inst: "I have nothing very new from Sicily. The state of siege continues in Palermo, and at Messini two gross cases of torture by order of an inspector of police had occurred. Soon after the recent demonstrations a man of energy was sought to fill that office, and Giuseppe Toscano was chosen. Without going into all the details, a young lad called Casella was examined by the inspector in a criminal case. As he appeared to withhold his evidence the inspector beat him ferociously, and then had him tortured in the following manner: First, manacles were put on him, and then a thin cord was bound tightly round the wrists. His cries were tremendous: "Kill me! Kill me!" The inspector ordered the instrument of silence to be put on. A piece of wood was then put in his mouth, and tied to the back of his head. During the torture a young advocate entered the office, and claimed the protection of the law for Casella, but was thrust out with insults. I have seen a copy of the statement of the case which had been presented to the Swiss instructor with a demand for justice. I have seen also a copy of the certificates of the medical men who were appointed to examine the boy. It speaks of blows on the temple and the arms, and great injury to the wrists, threatening the loss of the use of his hands, as sensation and motion had been stopped. The other was that of a cloth merchant, who refused to give himself up to the police unless the cause of his arrest was made known to him. In fact, he undressed, got into bed, and refused to move. How or with what instruments the police wounded him is unknown, but certain it is that he leapt out of the window, naked as he was and bleeding, and ran through the streets calling for justice. I am informed that the vice-consuls of England, France and Austria have reported the circumstances to their chiefs."

THE LAST MILLION SURRENDERED.—The last bond for a million of dollars, deposited in the Treasury Department by the Sunbury and Erie Railroad Company, for the faithful performance of the stipulations entered into with the State when they purchased the State canals, has been surrendered to that company by order of the Governor. As we previously announced, Messrs. Daugherty and Hague of this place, and Michel of Clinton, were appointed a board of viewers to examine the progress of the work between Erie and Warren, on the western Division, and report whether the road was in proper condition. They reported in the affirmative, and consequently the State relinquishes the last security in her possession for the completion of the work.—Har. Tel.

REV. DANIEL DANA, D. D., died on Friday at his residence at Newburyport. He had nearly reached his ninetieth year. Mr. Dana was an admirable scholar of the old school of classicists and divines, an extremely elegant and forcible writer of English, and has always been one of the chief lights of the Presbyterian Church. Few clergymen were better known—none more endeared to a very extended circle. Dr. Dana was for many years minister of the First Presbyterian Church in Newburyport, afterwards President of Dartmouth College, and finally a resident of his early home; where, while unable to fulfill the regular duties of the ministry, he long officiated as a home missionary.

SALE OF VIRGINIA WATERING PLACES.—The Fauquier White Sulphur Springs were sold last week. Seven hundred acres of land attached to the property were sold to Col. Wm. J. Green for $21 per acre. The remaining portion of 410 acres, and the buildings included, were sold to Mr. Haggin, of Caroline county, for $32,000. The watering place known as the Rockbridge Baths, in Rockbridge county, was sold to Wm. A. Mann, for $21,000. The Cold Sulphur Springs, in the same county, were also exposed for sale, but bid in by the proprietor at $20,000.
