DR. W. W. KARSHNER'S ELECTRIC BATHS

PATENTED JAN 25 1859

THE above cut is a representation of DR. KARSHNER'S POSITIVE AND NEGATIVE ELECTRO-THERAPEUTIC BATHS, for which he has obtained letters patent from the Patent Office of the United States. These Baths have been in successful operation for the last two years, in many of the principal towns and cities, during which time hundreds of patients have tested their astonishing powers with signal success. Dr. K. challenges the entire medical world to produce any one system or combined set of systems, that will cure as many diseases, and in as short a time, as his Electric Baths alone, when skillfully administered. The scientific minds of all professions are cordially invited to call, examine and test for themselves.

The duration of each Bath, the temperature of the water, and the strength of the electric current, are varied according to the disease, the condition of the patient at the time, and the effects desired. The water is about blood heat, and the electricity so graduated as to produce nothing but pleasurable sensations.

There is no class of Diseases, either Acute or Chronic, to which they are not adapted—which they yield at once to their all pervading and health restoring influence. The aged and decrepid have been led, voluntarily, to testify that they felt many years younger, and slept better than they had done for years. Others have been cured of painful disease in a few Baths.

Nor do their healthful effects seem to be confined solely to the physical man; they have an equally happy influence upon the mental faculties, making them a most efficient means in the treatment of Insanity and all abnormal mental disease.

Among the diseases successfully treated by Dr. K.'s Baths are:

Incipient Consumption, Scrofula, Paralysis, Epilepsy, (Fits,) Insanity, Delirium Tremens, St. Vitus' Dance, Curvature of the Spine, Rheumatism, Mercurial Diseases, Weakness in the Back and Joints, Nervous Debility, Nervous Headache, Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Weak Eyes, Partial Deafness, Dyspepsia, Gravel and other Urinary and Genital Diseases, Falling of the Womb, Leucorrhea, and other Female Derangements.

Fever, Fever and Ague, etc. etc.

These Baths are in successful operation at

BOOK OF THE FAIR.

THE SUBSCRIBER would respectfully announce that, with the approbation and countenance of the Board of Directors

Allegheny County Agricultural Association,

He will publish on Sept. 25, in time for the opening of the

ALLEGHENY COUNTY FAIR,

To be held Sept. 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th, a volume bearing the above title.

THE BOOK OF THE FAIR will contain a full historical account of the origin and progress of the Association, statistics of its various Exhibitions, and much other interesting matter, relative to Allegheny County, and the Cities of Pittsburgh and Allegheny, with Fine Lithographic Views of many of our Public Buildings and Churches.

Also, a fine Octavo View of the Two Cities and Vicinity, now engraving by William Schuchman.

TEN THOUSAND COPIES of this seasonable book will be issued and ready for the opening of the Exhibition.

of the volume will be devoted to a historical and statistical account of the various establishments in which Manufactured articles on exhibition may have been made, with full descriptions of the articles exhibited.

As this book will be in the hands of the majority if not nearly all the visitors to the Fair, the shrewd business man, mechanic or agriculturist will see the great advantage to be obtained in a proper presentation of his wares, patent or stock, through the pages of this volume, by taking and having a neat and correctly written notice thereof intelligently prepared and neatly printed in the paper of the

BOOK OF THE FAIR.

As a medium of introduction to a large number of persons of any business or manufacturing establishment, the volume, from its permanent character, is desirable. As the only will its good offices, during the continuance of the Fair, amply compensate for the expense incurred in obtaining publicity in its pages, but as, from its Historical, Statistical and Illustrated character, it will naturally pass from hand to hand, and be scattered far and wide, it is at once apparent to any shrewd business man that it offers unusual attractions to such as would strikingly command their establishments, wares, patents or stock to the attention of thousands.

As the whole matter of the book must be prepared and printed, and the volume issued some days previous to the opening of the Fair, it will be obvious that all persons wishing themselves or its pages must make application soon to the publisher.

All orders must be addressed to

PITTSBURGH: TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 24.

The Civil War in Syria.

The civil war still continues to rage in Syria. The following are extracts from the Beirout correspondence of the Boston Traveller, dated at Beirout, the 15th ult:

The war is still devastating this beautiful land, and villages, convents and hamlets, which were last month the homes of a quiet and industrious people, are now smoking ruins, and their former occupants who have escaped the sword of the enemy, are burrowing in caves and tombs in a starving condition.

Many wars have occurred between the Druses and Christians of Mt. Lebanon, but the present struggle is unparalled in the history of those people for its horrible atrocities. The blood of every spectator of the shocking barbarities which characterises this revolution, runs cold with horror, and every American would be glad to see a European occupation of the country, if by such means peace might be restored.

The fall of Hasbeyia, an American missionary station, would furnish ample material for a book of horrors. It contains a large Protestant community and a fine church edifice. It is situated near the source of the river Jordan, and has several thousand inhabitants. It was for some time besieged, but the contest commenced in earnest on Friday, the 6th inst., and continued three days. The Druses were defeated and driven back, and the town was wholly occupied by the Christians. Then came the Turkish treachery to give success to the Druses. The commander of the Turkish troops stationed at that place, under a pretence of aiding the Christians, induced them to feign a retreat towards the castle, promising to fire upon the Druses with his cannon. The Christians did as they were desired, the commander fired blank cartridges only twice and then ceased. The retreat became real, and the deceived Christians sought refuge in the castle. Upon their arrival the commander required them to deliver their arms, which they surrendered to him. He then allowed them to enter, after compelling each one to say, "May God give success to the Sultan." He gave their arms to some muleteers, under the pretence of sending them to Damascus, but soon after put them in the possession of the Druses. The unarmed were then turned over to the tender mercies of the Druses who butchered a large number and burned the town, including all the American church property. Several hundreds of the Christians sought refuge with the Moslem Emeers of Hasbeyia, who were enemies of the Druses. They remained in the palace for several days, when the Emeers were obliged to surrender for want of provisions. Thirty of the Emeers were killed, and more than eight hundred Christians were led out and slaughtered like sheep.

Rasheya is another missionary station, and contains a Protestant community. A letter to the Traveller dated June 16th says:

"The plot thickens—and I fear that the doom of this people is sealed. About one hundred of the Hasbeyia refugees arrived here yesterday with blood-stained garments, and with a bloody history of their suffering and the dead bodies of more than twelve hundred of their friends and relatives, they spent a long and terrible night—and, after the feeds who had accomplished this awful tragedy left the spot, supposing that none had escaped to tell the tale, these fugitives reached the coast near Tyre, and came to Beirout in boats.

It was a sad story they told, and as they counted over to our devoted missionaries the names of the Protestants whom the saw butchered, tried their utmost hearts of these pious men sank within them. But two of the native Protestant community were living when the refugees left Hasbeyia, and these were dreadfully wounded, perhaps fatally. The American church and all the mission property was consumed; and those benighted natives who had been brought to a knowledge of the truth by the American missionaries, and so instructed by them as to be able to sustain their own pulpit and schools with native preachers and teachers, were all cut down, and the Protestant mission blotted out. How mysterious are the ways of Providence!

Hasbeyia contains about six thousand inhabitants, and was governed by a family of Moslem Princes of the Great Shehaab family. Seventy Princes of this name were also murdered, together with the Moslem Judge, his son, and about thirty other Moslems, who had incurred the hatred of the Druses.

The English are determined to sustain the Turkish government, and to sustain the Druses, however much it may deplore the enormities perpetrated by them: its policy requires that this empire shall remain in the hands of a weak government, in order that the British possessions in India may not be imperilled. France and Russia would be willing to see the country divided. Austria has but little influence, and the policy of our American Consuls, to protect all American citizens, and to avoid all interference in the politics of the country other than that dictated by humanity for relief of the starving and persecuted Christians.

If the same want of unanimity exists among the Ambassadors at Constantinople upon this question, nothing will be done for poor, suffering Syria, until a Congress shall settle this vexed Oriental question at once and forever.

Horrible Cruelties of the Neapolitans.—As at Catania, the Neapolitans exhibited during the struggle inconceivable deeds of ferocity, which proceeded evidently from superior orders. By care of the municipality, a list has been drawn up of the names of offending individuals assassinated in the interior houses that were kept closed. Among them are women, children, and strangers, and the number is more than six hundred! The details are horrible. In the authentic procès verbal communicated to each of his colleagues, and a copy of which I have before my eyes, the Swiss consul-general relates that, having got himself to look after one of his countrymen, a wine merchant, whose wife and children had been massacred, and whom, individually they had taken off to torture at their ease, he came to a convent of White Benedictines, and that he there beheld the still smoking ruins of the building covering a heap of calcined bodies. The soldiers had shut up all the neighboring inhabitants that had fallen into their hands in the refectory of the convent, and had then burnthem alive. Horror struck, the Swiss consul went to express his indignation to Gen. Lanza, who told him that he lied, and had him shown the door.

The Paris correspondent of the Globe says:—Bloody work must be going on within the citadel and city of Messina, as a steamer has just brought into the Bay of Naples three hundred wounded soldiers, victims of the people or else of their own comrades in open revolt against Bomba.

Doings in Naples since the Grant of a Constitution.—The Naples correspondent of the Daily News, writing on the 30th of June, gives a narrative of events in Naples since the grant of a Constitution. He says:

I have actually been in cafes and other public places, and Neapolitans have dared to speak to me, and discuss political questions with alta voce. True that even now and then a man looks over his shoulder from habit, and lowers voice, but then recovers and laughs at unfounded apprehensions. Now all this shows a general conviction that the old system of government is swept away, but it does not indicate any confidence in the present government, nor is there any—the Neapolitans are full of suspicion; their policy is one of expectation, and I cannot speak too highly of their reserved and dignified bearing at the present moment.

In the course of the evening of the concessions there was a body of cavalry in the Largo of St. Ferdinand, and a strong body of the police had the impudence to show themselves in the Toledo and attack some of the people, and take from them their sticks. At this a struggle took place, and the police were compelled to fly. The troops, who had been always in opposition to the police, acted with great precision, and quieted matters. On Thursday, the 28th, the popular fury against the police, which had been so long pent up, burst out with increased force. There is scarcely a man in Naples, who, in his own person or that of his friends, has not suffered long and bitterly from the barbarities of these satellites of despotism. Capri, Ponza, the Vicaria, and Santa Maria, apparently sent forth their victims to add oil to the fire, not to speak of many other places of confinement; and however we may regret excesses, the Neapolitans would have been more than human if they had not wreaked their vengeance upon the police. About nine or ten o'clock in the morning parties of the lazzaroni went through different parts of the city armed with muskets, sword-sticks, and knives, and carrying a tri-colored flag before them. One after the other they visited all the commissaries of the police, sacked them, and burnt the furniture and the papers in front. Woe to those unfortunates who were found—they were mangled and severely beaten, and in many cases given up to the military.

I saw all objects of any value, and I record it to the great honor of the Neapolitans, that up to this moment I have not heard of a single theft, nor can I verify the murder of a single policeman, though several are reported. Of course, not a single member of that body is to be met with—they have completely disappeared. Some are said to be in the station, and if the Governor is not wise, it will visit them of as near to our

of the islands hitherto tenanted by some of the criminal prisoners. There they would be safe, because there is a military guard. Of course these excesses, however much to be expected, must be put a stop to, and every street and square was speedily filled with soldiers and artillery. The state of siege was ordered. Sentinels were placed at the corners of the Vicoli, and at one moment it appeared to me that a bloody engagement was visible.

The captured vessels, the Utile and Charles and Jane, were released and on the word of Villamarina that they should go direct to Genoa, men and all, they were not accompanied by a Neapolitan vessel. The release was made in the form of a favor and in very flattering terms, to the Minister of the United States, who refused to accept it as a favor, stating that the affair was no longer in his hands, and entering a protest, which was accepted by Di Martino.

AN EXTRAORDINARY MEYEOR.—Last evening, about half past nine, a very extraordinary meteor made its appearance in the heavens. The writer was riding in Broad street, below the city, and had a fair view of the phenomenon in its whole course. It arose in the northwestern part of the heavens, from a cloud which was not revealed until the light of the meteor made it visible. When an object, about the size of the full moon, and as bright, suddenly started from the cloud, traversed in a direct easterly line, the whole extent of visible space, dropping fire, apparently, in its course, like a rocket, till it passed so far eastward as to resemble a red ball, about twice the size of the planet Mars, visible in the southeast. So soon as it disappeared, a flash of heat lightning revealed a cloud to the eastward, low down in the horizon, which continued to emit flashes of light for half an hour afterwards. The phenomenon at one time seemed to separate like a rocket, when it bursts, but the larger portion keeping in a straight course towards the eastward. It was witnessed by many persons, and caused considerable wonderment for the time, and was certainly the most extraordinary appearance that we ever saw in the heavens. Its motion was not so fast, apparently, as that of a rocket, though its height and the vast extent of space that it traversed, proved that its velocity must have exceeded that produced by any known force which we are acquainted with. The phenomenon, from all appearances, must have been electrical.—Phil. Ledg.

An exchange says the most profitable use that nine-tenths of all the dogs in this country could be applied to is to mix about five dogs with a barrel of lime and ten cart loads of muck in a compost heap. A barrel of wood ashes may be added to help the decomposition of the bones.—We believe that a dressing of this compost, applied to sheep pastures, would greatly enchance the production of wool.

The population of the city of Vicksburg under the new census is 4,591, being an increase of 1,186 since 1850.
