

An Evening of Tropical Music

An evening of tropical music was presented on February 25, by Mr. Steel. The music was very enjoyable and the necessary atmosphere was provided by palm trees situated in the S.U.B.

Due to bad weather many students were unable to attend the program; therefore, Mr. Steel has consented to a repeat performance which will be held some time in April.

DANCE

On Friday, February 26, the S.U.B. was the scene of a very successful dance sponsored by the Student Government. Entertainment was provided by the Chords. Their music was extremely good, especially after a short intermission.

All rested, the band became livelier and even more entertaining.

The highlight of the evening included Tom Malarkey dancing the Irish Jig to "Oh, Marie."

The dance committee's efforts on the decorations proved very effective and added to the gay mood of the evening.

The students would like to extend their thanks to the chaperons and hope they enjoyed themselves.

We're all looking forward to the next dance.

A tramp had heard that fat ladies were a soft touch. They were so goodhearted that they would give him money without question. He selected one and put on his act.

"Lady," he entreated, "please have mercy on me. I haven't eaten for four days."
"My word!" she gasped, "I certainly wish I had your will power"
