(ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS ON FIRST PAGE.)

Interesting Occasion—Dedication of a Jewish Synagogue.

The beautiful new Jewish Synagogue "Etz Chayn" Tree of Life, at the corner of Market and Second streets, was dedicated yesterday, with the ceremonies peculiar to the Hebrew faith. The Synagogue itself is a very handsome apartment in the second story of the building. It is plainly but neatly fitted up, and does great credit to the enterprise and taste of the little congregation—only thirty-five members—who have undertaken and successfully carried forward the work. This congregation formerly had their place of meeting in Lafayette Hall. On the destruction of that building, they procured their present location. The building was much dilapidated and needed radical changes. These changes have been made and with results that seemed almost impossible at first.

The new Synagogue will seat about five hundred people with ease. The seats and most of the wood work are grained in imitation of oak and present a very neat appearance. A gallery runs along two sides and across one end of the apartment, and is furnished with seats similar to those below. At the end of the room next to the street, facing the congregation, is the Ark, a high, narrow structure of ash, draped in front with white curtain. In this ark are deposited the three scrolls of the Law, on the curtain are embroidered in blue Hebrew letters the words, "Crown of the Law." Surmounting the ark is a handsome frame of ash wood, surrounding two tables of white glass, on which are blazoned in golden Hebrew characters the Ten Commandments. Immediately in front of the Ark is the pulpit, and in front of this and seperated from it by a railing is the enclosure for the choir. On each side of the Ark is an enclosed seat for the President and Vice President. The Synagogue is lighted by nearly one hundred gas jets about the walls, and a remarkably handsome chandelier of ten lights suspended from the ceiling, the fixtures being the work of Messrs. Jarvis, Halpin & Co. of Fourth street.

Many considered it strange that a Jewish dedication should take place on the Christian Sabbath. It is explained by the fact that yesterday was the last day of the Jewish Old Year. To-day is the beginning of the month Fisari, of the year 5,625, from the creation.

The preparations for yesterday's ceremonies were very tasteful as well as peculiar. In the windows and over the doorways hung beautiful wreaths of flowers and evergreens. Over the entrance below was placed a rich festoon of flowers. The table of the ten commandments and the pulpit were crowned with handsome bouquets, and all the lights were burning, as is the requirement of the Jewish Church during the time of prayer.

At about three o'clock the congregation assembled, the ladies occupying the gallery exclusively, and the men sitting below, each with his hat on, which struck a stranger as a most indecorous proceeding. At half-past three a procession of the members, headed by the Great Western Brass Band, escorted the President from his residence to the Synagogue. First marched the Preacher, Rev. D. Hertzman, bearing the large scroll of the Laws, crowned with a wreath. Next came G. Grafomer, the President, and L. Bergwin, Vice President, each bearing a smaller scroll. Following came A. Abrams, the Secretary, with the choir, consisting of three men and a little boy.

Arrived at the Synagogue the Pastor knocked at the door, demanding that the Laws be admitted to the new House of God. They were admitted, and at the inner door the Pastor and his companions, with the choir, paused and chanted a prayer, "praying in the law," as they termed it. They then marched chanting down the aisle to the pulpit and laid their scrolls reverently on the desk. The band played, and the three scrolls were then borne through the congregation, the Pastor remaining in the pulpit and chanting. The scrolls were returned and the choir joined the Pastor in chanting "Israel, our God is one." The band played again, while the congregation remained standing, after which another prayer was chanted.

Julian Cohen, Esq., of the Pittsburgh bar, had been chosen to deliver the dedication address, and at this point came forward to the pulpit. He commenced by reading the prayer of Solomon at the dedication of the most magnificent of temples, two thousand six hundred and ninety-nine years ago. The speaker then reviewed briefly and in fitting terms the rise and downfall of the first great temple, and later, of the great temple of Jerusalem. He then spoke of the vicissitudes of the Jewish people, saying that in the darkest days of their history it might truly be said of them:

"The wild dove hath its nest;
The foxes have their cave;
Mankind into its country,
Israel hath its grave."

Through all its manifold persecution Judaism has lived, and for more than three thousand years has maintained its unity. In other days, and in other countries, oppression of every form tried to crush it out. Now a better day has dawned. In every land the Jew is recognized now as having rights. This change is due to the growth of the spirit of freedom everywhere in our day, and here, in America, where this spirit has its fullest growth, has been accorded the fullest and most precious liberty to the Jews.

The speaker here reviewed the duties of the Jewish people, and exhorted them to observe them with the utmost strictness. He brought them to firmly stand by their religion, and prevent by the mists of bigotry and prejudice would dee before before the bright sun of the nineteenth century. He contrasted the occasion which they celebrated with the present political condition of the country. The dedication of their new temple was typical of renewed and enlarged liberty for their people, while all over our country roll dark clouds of doubt and despondency. Had, despotic men on every side are endeavoring to destroy the fruits of our terrible war, and bring the sacrifice of thousands of precious lives to naught. Every effort is being made by traitors in high places, and in low, to be ray the country anew into the hands of its enemies. He prayed that the elements of discord in our midst might die, and that the dark and growing spot on our sun might disappear; that we might speedily have rulers whose conduct in life should be based on the precious example of the martyred Lincoln, "with malice toward none, with charity for all."

With a fitting peroration the speaker closed his very able and polished address, which had been listened to throughout with the most earnest attention. Verily if that address and the manner of its reception be any standard, Jewish-American patriotism is no dead thing.

At the conclusion of the address more prayers were chanted, and with the appropriate ceremonies the three scrolls of the Law were deposited in the ark, after which the congregation dispersed.

Stole Her Clothing.

Matilda Jameson appeared before Alderman Lynch, on Saturday, and made oath against Jennie Douglas, a colored girl, for the larceny of a quantity of ladies' wearing apparel from the residence of Mrs. Thomas Jones, in Pitt township. It appears that the parties were both employed in the domicil of Mrs. Jones, Jennie in the capacity of cook, and Matilda to attend to the chamber arrangements. The former was discharged some four days since, but on quitting the house she took with her own clothing, a calico wrapper and silk duster, that belonged to the wardrobe of Matilda. The theft was not discovered until two days after Jennie's departure, when Matilda met her on the street, decked out in the stolen regalia. A warrant was issued for the arrest of Miss Douglass.

Unmailable Letters.

In justice to a branch of the public service which receives much undeserved censure, we call attention to the fact that there are deposited in our city postoffice, weekly, many unmailable letters, which, according to instructions under the postal law, have to be sent to the dead-letter office at Washington. Unmailable letters are specified to be: Letters attempted to be sent with stamps previously used, or stamps cut from stamped envelopes; unpaid letters for foreign countries, on which prepayment is required by the regulations; letters not addressed, or so badly addressed that their destination cannot be known; letters misdirected to places where there are no post offices; and letters wholly unpaid (including drop letters).

Charged With Keeping a Bawdy House.—William Loughry appeared before Alderman Strain, on Saturday, and made oath against Maria Manning, Mrs. McCune and a gay young lady who rejoices in the petite sobriquet of the Kid, for keeping and maintaining a bawdy house in Church alley. The parties accused were arrested and held to bail for a hearing to-day. From William's conduct, we presume he was determined to purge this notorious locality, of all its impurities, and in that way enhance the value of some real estate he owns there.

Charged with Theft.—Eliza Brereton appeared before Alderman Lynch on Saturday and made oath against Samuel Lewis for the larceny of a stove valued at $15, from the premises of the prosecutrix, on Wylie street, on or about the tenth day of August, while Mrs. Brereton was absent on a visit to the county. A warrant was issued and the accused arrested. He was released, however, on giving bail in the sum of $300 for a hearing on Wednesday.

Pittsburgh Female College—Splendid Opening.—The fall term of the Pittsburgh Female College is opening with a fine attendance of pupils, not only from our city, but also from all parts of the country. As many continue to come in during the entire month of September, and even later, the session promises to be one of the most prosperous in the history of the College. The College richly deserves its splendid patronage. Let its halls be crowded.

The Value of a Comma.—The Erie Dispatch editor was in Philadelphia "doing up" the Convention. In one of his letters he says: "Rev. Dr. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, uncle of the arch-traitor John C. Breckinridge, and as thoroughly a loyal man as his nephew, is a malignant breeder of treason."

A little comma placed in the wrong position does great mischief.

Accident.—Mrs. Martin, a la[illegible]ding at No. 102 Carson street, in the bo[illegible] of Birmingham, fell at her own do[illegible] Friday night, and injured herself co[illegible]erably. Her head struck the curb stone, inflicting a wound some two inches in extent.

Held to Bail.—Michael Murray was before Alderman Strain, on Saturday, charged with assault and battery, on oath of John Murphy. Murray was released after furnishing bail in the sum of $300 for a hearing to-morrow.

Special Caution.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has become so popular that various parties have put out articles calling them Mrs. Winslow's. Please take notice that the Mrs. Winslow of the Soothing Syrup is not connected with any other article.

EARLY TELEGRAMS.

Affairs on the Frontier—Indian Depredations on the Frontier—Engagement at Fort Laramie.

NEW YORK, September 8.—A Tribune Leavenworth special says: A report received direct from Fort Laramie states that the Indians on the road in the vicinity of that post have commenced depredations again. Within two or three days of the time he left some fifty or sixty men have been killed and a large amount of property stolen or destroyed. He also reports that the only two tribes on the road who are supposed to be friendly are the Pawnees and a band of Cheyennes.

In the engagements the troops at Fort Laramie had with the savages, the former were obliged to beat a hasty retreat to the garrison, losing some forty men. On the Smoky Hill route they have stopped the stages, and given them seven days to take all their stock off the road.

General Hancock has furnished Major Gen. Cloud with an escort to visit the Pawnees and Omahas for indemnity.

Trotting Match at the Fashion Course.

NEW YORK, September 8.—The bay mare Lady Thorne, and the brown stallion George Wilkes, trotted for $1,500, best three miles in five, at the Fashion Course yesterday. The distancing of the latter, which at the time dampened the spirits of the animals, and they did not make their best time, although it is still very good. The race was won by the mare in three straight heats, her fastest time being 2:29¼.

The Fenian Congress at Troy.

NEW YORK, September 8.—A Herald's Troy dispatch says the Fenian Congress continued their secret session yesterday. From some talkative members it has been ascertained that a vote of thanks, tendered to General Banks for his neutrality resolutions, were tabled. It is said that an effort is being made to persuade General Sheridan to resign and accept the command of the Irish army.

Important from Mexico—Maximilian Abdicates in Favor of Prince Napoleon.

NEW YORK, September 8.—A Times' New Orleans special says that a private letter received from Monterey says that Maximilian abdicated in favor of Prince Napoleon on the 10th.

Arms for the Fenians.

NEW YORK, September 8.—At the headquarters of the Stephens wing of the Fenians in this city, arms and ammunition are being received in large quantities.

Destructive Fire.

BURLINGTON, Ia., September 8.—The machine shops of the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad in this city, were destroyed by fire today. The loss is heavy.
