Eating for Health

Listening to a group of ladies talking, the writer is impressed that one of the most absorbing topics of conversation is cooking recipes.

Most of the interest centers around deserts and foods that are mixed and combined with condiments to make them taste good. Civilized races have gotten so far away from the simple food provided by nature, that it is no longer palatable to them, unless seasoned with condiments. Probably no race of people in the world suffer so much from constipation, colitis and intestinal disorders as the Americans.

In our own country malnutrition is evident among the rich as well as the poor. There is no state in which there is any excuse for this. Vegetables of every kind as well as many fruits will grow if planted and given reasonable care. Every little farm should provide milk and eggs in abundance for the needs of the family.

Somehow our boards of health do not get very good results by sending out doctors and nurses to remove tonsils and hold dental clinics. It is like pouring a little water on a burning building. Instruction in the care of the body must begin in the schools and homes.

The prospective mothers should be instructed how to eat properly, in order to put the right material into the teeth of their unborn children. Calcium or lime enters largely into the formation of sound teeth. The expectant mother should eat fresh leafy vegetables, beans, fruit, milk, etc. The diet should be rich in lime and phosphorus. Only in this way will the child form sound teeth.

The baby should have milk; at first breast milk is best; fruit juices and cod liver oil with plenty of sunshine. If this regimen were carried out, the expensive dental clinics could probably be dispensed with in a few years.

When the Deuchland, a German ship, captured a well-provisioned American vessel during the war they thought themselves in luck, for she was abundantly provisioned with white flour, white sugar, polished rice, cheese, meat, coffee, etc. They remained out after the capture for two or three months eating the above mentioned foods.

The result was, that all on board developed scurvy. The officers were not so ill as the men, for they had a little fruit. When the captain put in at an American port, all aboard were sick. Two or three died. The others were fed upon fruit juices, dishes made from wheat and rice polishings, and vegetable broths. Gradually they recovered. But those lusty German seaman had learned the lesson that they could not live upon the deficiency diet that is consumed in so many American homes.

The average child goes to school after a breakfast of hot biscuits (white), a piece of bacon and a cup of coffee if he wants it. The families who can afford that sort of diet could provide milk instead of coffee, whole wheat instead of white flour. Eggs could be substituted for bacon every day or two. Some butter could be served also.

It would cost no more, but the change would prevent pellagra, constipation, and also discourage dental visits.

A supper of fruit, milk, whole wheat bread, or oatmeal would spell the difference between undernourished sick children and healthy ones.

Give the children plenty of bread and cereals that have not been devitalized by removing everything but the white starchy portion. They like fruit.

With a germicidal lamp on guard, mother worries less about Baby and Betty "catching something from each other"—or from anyone else entering the nursery.

Science's amazing new germ killer works like magic. It gives off ultra-violet rays of a wave length spelling "death" for bacteria and molds in the air.

It works fast, too. Turn it on in any ordinary-size room and in only one minute—pfft! . . . 90% of all the germs circulating in the air are knocked stone dead. Its possibilities for making tomorrow's world healthier and happier are tremendous. In homes it will save perishable foods in the refrigerator or pantry—keep dishes on shelves hygienically clean—sterilize baby bottles—keep clothes free of "pass on" germs—put a stop to moldy basement odors.

The germicidal lamp is but one of the electrical industry's many inspiring products for your more comfortable tomorrow. By investing today's earnings in War Bonds you will assure yourself and your family a share in these finer comforts of tomorrow.
