Our Special column is decidedly interesting in a local point of view, and profitable reading to outsiders who want to save money.

Mrs. S. J. Brown makes hair-switches, curls and frizzes, to order. See her card in this paper.

No imperfect materials put into the garments manufactured by Wanamaker & Brown of 6th and Market, Philadelphia.

Fraudulent fruit tree agents are said to be swindling farmers in some the western counties of this State. Farmers, look out for these sharpers!

Old "Prob." has evidently traveled with a circus. The way he has been throwing backward and forward somersaults of late is not often seen outside the ring.

Farmers! Lytle has a car-load of Lime Plaster, from Huntingdon, in room opposite the Opera House, formerly occupied by Gratzer & Lyle.

Easter Sunday, this year, falls on the 9th of April. Eggs are plenty and cheap, and those who fail to secure a good supply for that day, will have no one to blame but themselves.

A sure sign that Spring is approaching and garden-making time will soon be here, is evidenced in the fact that "little onions" are already exposed for sale in our grocery stores.

Prepare to give the potato bug a lively time this Summer, as a prominent agricultural paper says all the signs point to a vigorous campaign on the part of this vivacious little cuss.

Joe Lehman, of Strouse, Lehman & Co., Philips'urg, has leased the corner store-room of the old Western Hotel building, in this place, and will shortly open out a full stock of clothing, hats, furnishing goods, etc.

Altoona has the Centennial fever. And the Mayor of the city has issued a call for a public meeting, to take into consideration the subject of a proper celebration on the coming Fourth of July. Let Clearfield follow suit.

Conductors have nothing to do on the Pennsylvania Railroad since the train agents have got on, except to walk around and see if nobody gets on the train at stopping places. It is easy that they regard the arrangement with great deal of suspicion.

An epizootic-troubled individual at our town, who sells half-a-dozen handkerchiefs daily in an attempt to keep his nasal channel clear, says the weather a week ago was fit for August, and since then it has hardly been fit for anything but developing bad colds.

Mr. R. B. Taylor, of this place, with a number of carpenters, leave this week for Cape May, N. J., where he is going to build a new hotel for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The building, which will be quite large, is to be finished by the 1st day of May.

The Clinton Republican says that there has been discovered on Shuman Zimmerman's farm at Heckley, Centre county, said to be equal to the finest Italian marble. It possesses a brilliant bronze surface, and is susceptible of an abundant polish.

List of letters remaining unclaimed in the Postoffice at Clearfield, for the week ending March 20th, 1876:

Bell, George G.	Reuteh, Franklin
Cox, Wm. W.	Wiser, Miss M. E.
Flaherty, F. D.	Watson, Miss Frances
Frank C.

P. A. GAULIN, P. M.

Winter commenced in earnest in this place on Thursday last. The ground is now covered with snow to the depth of about three inches, and it is still snowing. This is the season we have had this Winter, and logging is improving it by getting their timber to the banks of the river.

It is going to be popular to take visitors to the Centennial. It has been decided that a small section of Third street, as it appeared during its muddiest condition last Spring, is to be taken down and placed on exhibition. Clearfielders should not care about being imposed upon for recognizing it during their visit to the show.

Some may smile over the past Winter, when they hear how you didn't have to buy a new stove, and all that, but when you will shortly have to pay twenty-five cents for a ton of coal on the Fourth of July to cream an ancient mail ice cream, you will change that smile for a look of extreme disgust and cuss the weather in broken English.

In another column we publish a letter from John Wanamaker, President of the Philadelphia Christian Association, of Philadelphia, in regard to the scarcity of labor in that city. Persons who have been thinking of going to Philadelphia in search of work, should read the letter carefully, as it is from a responsible and reliable man.

Daniel Drew—"Old Uncle Dan'l"—in his early years has fought the "bulls" and "bears" of Wall street, has gone into bankruptcy with shrinkage in some of the old man's shoes the business and the veteran confess. His indebtedness is stated to be some two or three small sums intended to cause the failure to be reported to be so rich—but in his case, as in others, his fortune was larger by report than fact. Mr. Drew gave a quarter of a million to Drew Theological Seminary, which sum he expects to have secured to the institution.

THE LAST SURVIVOR OF THE BRADY FAMILY.—Mrs. Nancy Eckert died at the residence of her nephew, Mr. Frank Porter, in Clinton twp., Dauphin county, says the Williamsport Bulletin, on Friday, the 10th inst. She was the widow of Mr. George Eckert, of Lewisburg. Deceased was born at Milton, Pa., Feb 22, 1806, and was the last survivor of the Brady family of the West Branch valley. She was a daughter of John Brady, the "boy hero" of the battle of Brady's Bend, and grand daughter of Capt. John Brady, one of the distinguished West Branch heroes of 1779, who was killed by the Indians while in defending a settlement near Muncy, in 1779, and to whose memory the citizens of the valley are now erecting a suitable monument. Her remains were taken to her residence at Lewisburg for interment.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.—A Young Man Seeks to Avenge his Brother's Death, but Fortune's Frown Fails.—About dark, on Monday evening of last week, as we learn from the Johnstown Tribune, a daring attempt was made by one John Kirby, a brother of the unfortunate young man recently killed at Hawes' Cement Mill by a pistol shot, to assassinate Mr. Henry Anderson, the watchman at that industry, and at whose hands deceased met his death.

Since Mr. Anderson's release from jail, on a writ of habeas corpus, he has been filling his old position as night-watchman at the Cement Mill, giving entire satisfaction to his employer by his faithfulness, as he has always done. His trial is soon to come off at Ebensburg, and the attempt made last week by young Kirby to take the law into his own hands and punish the slayer of his twin-brother, according to his own ideas of right, is severely to be condemned, and was dastardly in the extreme.

The particulars of this outrage upon law and justice are substantially as follows:

John Kirby, the attempted assassin, had been absent from his home in Millville borough for a considerable time, and only returned a day or two before his attempt to take Anderson's life. He appeared very much excited over the death of his brother, and talked at different times of his intention to have revenge; but the full meaning of his words was not understood until the evening of the shooting. At about half-past 6 o'clock he approached Mr. Hawes' Cement Mill, knowing that Mr. Anderson would be already on duty. Meeting that gentleman in the yard of the mill, he began a conversation by saying, "That was a bad affair, Mr. Anderson." Mr. A. did not know the young man, and asked him to what affair he had reference. Young Kirby replied, "Why, the killing of my brother; I am John Kirby." Mr. Anderson noticed that the young man's eyes had a wild-beast sort of look, but he talked calmly, his voice being pitched to the tone of ordinary conversation. Anderson quietly undertook to explain to Kirby the exact manner in which the latter's brother had been killed by him. He expressed the deepest sorrow for the deed, but assured Kirby that it was entirely the result of accident, and between him and the victim there had always been the warmest friendship. The young man at this appeared pacified, though the wild look did not leave his eyes. There was some little further conversation between the two, when Kirby, with a perceptible shiver, complained of feeling very cold. Mr. Anderson kindly suggested that he enter the boiler-room of the works, where he could warm himself, and at once proceeded to lead the way to that portion of the building, Kirby following closely behind him. When Anderson had reached the door of the boiler-room he turned suddenly, to motion the young man inside, when he was horrified to see a pistol pointed directly at his head, held in the hand of Kirby, whose face was deathly pale. Quick as thought, Anderson jumped aside, and simultaneously came the report, followed by the hissing words, "Take that! you d—d s—n of a b—h." The bullet passed so close to Anderson's head that for a moment he imagined himself shot, but soon found that the deadly missile had only grazed his cheek. Kirby precipitately fled, without waiting to ascertain the result of his daring attempt to assassinate a fellow-man.

Mr. Anderson went to town immediately after the occurrence, and made a criminal information before 'Squire Litz, of the Sixth Ward, charging John Kirby with an attempt to take his life. A warrant was issued for Kirby's arrest, but although the officers of the law have been unremitting in their search for him, his whereabouts still remain a mystery. This is a most outrageous occurrence, and young Kirby should be captured he will likely be dealt with severely. It is to be hoped that he will be speedily arrested.

ONLY A MILLION SHORT.—Those once famous, but now defunct bankers, Wm. M. Lloyd & Co., of Altoona, who for years handled nearly all the money used in four or five of the surrounding counties and had the outside world to believe that their assets amounted to millions, have at length shown their hands, by filing an account in bankruptcy at Pittsburg, on the 16th inst. The list of names of the creditors is the longest ever filed in the United States Court for the Western District. The following is a condensed list of the plundering concerns:

W. M. Lloyd & Co., Altoona, Pa.	$ 503,900 68
Lloyd & Co., Ebensburg, Pa.	170,714 74
Lloyd, Hamilton & Co., New York	86,317 42
Lloyd, Caldwell & Co., Tyrone, Pa.	149,912 78
Huff & Co., East Liverpool, Ohio	21,355 03
Lloyd, Huff & Coit, Latrobe, Pa.	92,231 66
Grand total	$1,026,432 34

Over a million short! Now, who has got the money? When these concerns failed, the misfortune was charged to the New York branch, which, according to this showing, squandered less than $100,000, while Ebensburg and Tyrone done far worse, and the Altoona branch, where the head-centre of loyalty and Godliness resided, "went five times better." It will be observed that this schedule does not contain a statement of the houses at Osceola, Bedford, nor Renovo, which we have no doubt will add a couple of hundred thousand more to the account. It looks as though Wm. M. Lloyd & Co. attempted to imitate Jay, Cooke & Co. The assets of the Ebensburg concern show most conclusively how the late cashier of that bank, Sam. Cleary, was twice elected to the Legislature. That he took the money of the depositors to corrupt voters is pretty clearly set forth in the Ebensburg branch. Well, Lloyd & Co. have just as much right to rob the people of their earnings as Grant, Babcock, Belknap & Co., and while the people are foolish enough to vote for such loyal scoundrels and corrupt bankers, they deserve to be robbed and plundered of all they possess.

COMMITTED FOR LIFE.—We copy the following from the Williamsport Sunday Times: Barney McCue, the murderer of John Doctor, whose career out of prison was a remarkable one, and who, since his arrest, had a still more remarkable experience, was on Thursday morning (March 9th) taken by Sheriff Piatt to the Eastern Penitentiary at Philadelphia. The prisoner was twice sentenced to be hung, and has faced the murderer's doom since the date of the killing, in October, 1874. Through the unremitting efforts of firm friends, and after months of anxiety and suspense, the Board of Pardons finally, in December, 1875, commuted the death sentence to imprisonment for life. But a further delay kept Barney in the county prison until last week, when official notification was received by the Sheriff to convey the prisoner to the abode where his life will be hid from the world, and where, within the cold walls of the penitentiary, the doomed man will find a living tomb.

A large crowd of persons was assembled on Third and Pine streets to witness the departure of McCue, and many curious eyes were upon the man thus doomed. Barney, on emerging from the jail, knocked the ashes out of a pipe he had been smoking, and with a farewell gaze upon the prison entrance, descended the steps, walking with a firm step, by the side of the Sheriff. He had been shaved previous to leaving his cell, and presented a very respectable appearance, though long confinement had bleached his face very much. He has for several weeks past expressed a desire to go to his new home, stating that the dull monotony of jail life was disagreeable, and that he preferred enjoying himself at some vacation, which he will be favored with in its fullest extent, at hard labor within the solid walls of the Eastern Penitentiary.

COURT.—Judge Orvis having arrived in town on Saturday night, the March term of our Court convened on Monday morning at 10 o'clock, with Messrs. Foley and Read on the Additional Bench. The prevailing snow on Monday seems to have detained everybody, and consequently but little business was done. The Grand Jury was sent to its head-quarters in the afternoon, and the balance of the day was consumed in the granting of license, a list of which will appear in our next issue. From what transpired in the Court-room, it was pretty evident that the temperance element in the county was pretty well and systematically organized on this subject. The long list of names to remonstrances, and the witnesses on hand for the occasion, demonstrated the fact that the temperance element was on the alert.

Messrs. Shortlidge & Co. advertise the celebrated Cayuga Land Plaster in to-day's issue. For particulars, see their card.

GOOD SPARS.—Jesse M. Harter, of Cherry Tree, Indiana county, has a spar raft in the water ready to run to market that is worth seeing. The largest spar is ninety-two feet in length, thirty-six inches at the butt, and twenty-seven inches at the top. Two other platforms average eighty-five feet in length, and thirty inches at the butt. This is considered to be the best spar raft ever run on this river, and it is to be hoped that Mr. Harter will get it to market without accident.
