ARTIFICIAL TEETH.

Dr. A. M. Hills would inform his friends and patrons that he is now putting up Artificial Teeth for TEN DOLLARS PER SET.

By a new and greatly improved process of polishing Rubber Plates, he can give a much stronger plate with less thickness—the plate being all over the palate of an equal thickness, renders it much more elegant to the patient than the old style plates. As I have the exclusive right to use this process in this county, no other Dentist can put up as good plates by any other mode.

THE REPUBLICAN.

CLEARFIELD, PA

THE RECONCILED.

The Pittsburg Telegraph, in alluding to the political marriage of two eminent statesmen, says:

"The conciliation—yes, 'conciliation' is the word—between Conkling and Blaine marks an epoch in history. It is nearly a decade since the vendetta began. Neither was a Senator then. Some sharp words had passed between the two, and Blaine accused Conkling of a great many uncomplimentary things, among them that he had taken pay from the State Department for acting as Judge Advocate. Conkling did not deny this, but informed the gentleman from Maine, in withering tones, that he would 'have nothing more to do with him.' To this Blaine replied with such epithets as 'haughty disdain,' 'grandiloquent swell,' 'supereminent, overpowering, turkey-gobbler strut,' and so fourth. This 'strut,' he said, had been acquired since a prominent orator compared him (Conkling) to Henry Winter Davis, and then, with a dramatic stride, similar to that with which he produced the fateful letters in his own famous investigation, Blaine roared out, like a bull of Bashan: 'Hyperion to a satyr! Thersites to Hercules! mud to marble! dunghill to diamond! a single cut to a Bengal tiger! a whining puppy to a roaring lion! Shade of the mighty Davis, forgive the profanation of that loose satire!' and yet these men are conciliated."

The editor of the New York Times draws the following picture of the almost tragic scene:

"The two foes—foes only in name—stood near each other one day, when the ponderous and oleaginous Senator David Davis approached them, put a pudgy arm about each, drew them together, and said: 'Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?' 'Why, indeed?' said Blaine, the manly tears coming down his cheek. 'Have you a strawberry mark on your left elbow?' asked Conkling in his deepest bass notes. 'I have, I have,' cried the Senator from Maine, sobbing violently. 'Me brother! Me long-lost brother!' cried Conkling wildly. 'Come to me arms!' They embraced with rapture, while Senator David Davis, his voice husky with emotion, hoarsely whispered, 'Bless you, bless you, me children.' The Senate was dissolved in tears at the sight. Gordon laid down the bowie knife with which he was picking his teeth, and applauded violently.

"OLD SI" ON THE SITUATION.

HOLDING A FULL HAND IN THE SENATE —"GWINE WITH THE BIG FLEET."

A negro was lamenting at the depot over the disbandment of the Republican party in Georgia.

"Dat's de fust time sence I'se kno'd dem dat dey act out dere prinserpals," remarked Old Si.

"Jess listen at dat now!" said the colored Jeremiah. "Goin' fishin' hex addled de ole man's brains!"

"Nebber mine 'bout de fishin'; I kin prove what I sez," replied Old Si.

"Lemme hear dat."

"Well, de 'Publicans all de time sayin' dey's de niggers' bes' frien's! Well, de fust time dey's showe'd up on dat line was dis busin' up de party an' lettin' de niggers steer der own flatboes."

"Whar dey gwine to steer 'em?"

"Ebbery nigger for hisself, is de way I'se shootin'! De ribber's wide and an' de san' bars plenty, but dis nigger's bote's gwine wid de big fleet, yer heah me?"

"An' which way's dat?"

"All de Dimmocrat channil, long way's ahed an' er safe wha'f in sight! We's done got de big house in Kongress, hol's er full han' fer de odder, 'nuff to git pick'd up ef de krew on dis bote flings him overbo'de! How's dat?"

"Dat looks mouty epidemic, fer er fack."

"An' dat ain't all! When you niggers sees so many ob dese late 'Publican parties dippin' long easy, close in ter shore, and tryin' ter be dar an' lan' wid de crowd, hain't it time dat you wug scrougin' yo' canoes in wid de big yawls?"

The crowd applauded the idea, and Jeremiah said, as he left:

"I feels floatin' in dar now!"—Atlanta Constitution.

CLEAN THEM OUT.—The Philadelphia Times, in alluding to the cheap and corrupt Judges who have been shoved on the bench in the Federal Capital, says: "The committees of Congress in charge of the affairs of the District of Columbia, can't fail to appreciate the necessity of a prompt reorganization of the Judiciary of the District. The judiciary antics of Judge Humphreys exhibited within the last few weeks, imperatively demand his displacement from the bench; and it is not doubted in intelligent circles throughout the country, that the present Judiciary of the District was organized more in the interest of party than in the interest of public justice. It is one of the many blotches of the tidal wave of party passion that was bred by war and reconstruction, and the honor of the nation requires that the temple of justice in the Capital should be cleansed.

ADVANCE IN NAILS.—The Western Nail Association held its usual monthly meeting in Pittsburg on Wednesday of last week, and some interesting business was transacted. The Association is composed of all the nail manufacturers west of the Allegheny mountains, and a large number of the members were present, as it was announced that there was likely some change in prices would be made. After some discussion it was decided to advance the price of nails from $2.15 per keg to $2.35, and also to close all mills within the limits of the Association for four of the next eight weeks, to curtail the production

THE BRAVE MAN.—The editor of the Philadelphia North American, in speaking of the late Gordon-Conkling "bout" in the Senate Chamber, crucifies Gordon in this way: "The duelist is no longer a hero, but a murderer. The man who goes about with a chip on his shoulder daring somebody to knock it off, is no longer alluded to as a man of courage. As a matter of fact we know that such men are not men of courage, for we have learned that they only solicit such men to quarrel as have no reputation for personal prowess."

John McConaghey, aged about 66 years, left the residence of his brother, James, in Noyes township, Clinton county, on the 28th of November last, without giving notice of his departure. Any one having a knowledge of his whereabouts will confer a great favor by addressing a postal card to James McConaghey, Renovo, Pa.

A patent has been taken out upon almost everything of value, but there is a fortune awaiting the man who patents a boot jack that will kill two Thomas cats at once.

Senator Blaine, it is reported, is going to the Hot Springs of Arkansas to drive the malaria out of his system. Mr. Robeson is going with him.

The rice crop of this country is coming to the fore again. South Carolina has an estimated yield of 44,000 tierces this year, and Georgia 26,000.
