Agricultural.

The Farmer on the Safe Side.

The farmer is apt to think the professional man, or the merchant, lives an easy and luxurious life. In many instances their family may do so; but with the eminent and successful man of law or science—the artisan or merchant himself—such a supposition is a great mistake. There is not under heaven's broad canopy a more laborious class of men than these.—Labor of body and of mind are theirs, and that incessant. See them early, late, in season and out of season—their whole energies devoted to their several callings without rest or intermission—and far too frequently to the premature wasting of life itself. It is no wonder that such industry directed by good education, (and by this term education I mean the entire training of the boy to manhood in its most extended sense,) and stimulated by a laudable ambition, should lead to success. Yet with all these appliances the labors of such men are often disastrous; and if not so, after a life of anxiety, their toils too frequently end with but the means of a slender support. Compared with these, the toils of the farmer are light.—Physical labor he endures, it is true, and oftentimes severe labor, but his mind is easy. He enjoys sound rest, and good health. He has much leisure; in many cases more than is for his good. He has abundant time to discuss politics, law, religion—every thing, in fact; but on what relates to his own profession, I lament to say, his mind seems less exercised than on any other subject. Now let the same early education be given to the young farmer of an equal acute intellect, that is given to him who chooses professional, mechanical or mercantile pursuits—education each in his own line; let them start fair; apply the same thoughts, investigations, energy and toil, each, in his particular sphere, and beyond all question, agriculture will, in the aggregate, have the advantage—and for this reason, if no other, there are but few contingencies connected with agriculture. Its basis is "the firm set earth," stamped with the Divine promise, that while it remains, seed time and harvest shall continue; while commerce and trade, mechanics and arts are liable to extraordinary and continued accident. Look at the devastations by flood and fire—of ship and cargo upon ocean, lake, sea and river; conflagrations in towns and cities, and the thousand other casualties which almost daily occur, all of which are dead weight upon labor and capital not agricultural, and the risks of the husbandman are scarce one to ten in the comparison. Rely upon it then, farmers, you are on the "safe side". Continue in your noble calling and take your position among the sons of men, as the second creators of wealth.

Farm Proverbs.

Do not keep more live stock on your farm than you can keep well.

House all things as much as possible—animals, utensils, and crops.

Sell when you can get a fair price, and do not store for rats and speculators.

The more comfortable you can keep your animals, the more they will thrive.

A good cow is a valuable machine—the more food she properly digests, the greater the profit.

A few roots daily to all the stock are as welcome as apples to boys and girls.

Iron shoes on sleds last a lifetime. They are really cheaper in the end than wooden ones.

Replace all the bars where you pass often by strong gates and then wonder that you didn't do so before.

Although, in draining land thoroughly, your purse may be drained, yet the full crops that follow will soon fill it again.

Always give the soil the first meal. If it is well fed with manure, it will feed all else, plants, animals and men.

A borrowed tool, if broken, should be replaced by a new one. A nice sense of honor in such matters is much to be commended.

It seems strange that housekeepers don't buy pails and tubs with brass hoops and trimmings. They cost a little more at first but last wonderfully.

How Much Manure do we use on an Acre.—An acre of land contains 43,560 square feet, 4 840 square yards, or 160 square rods. By those who have used guano, it is said 300lbs. is sufficient to manure an acre; 320½ lbs. would give just one ounce avoirdupois to the square yard. One cubic yard would give a trifle over one cubic inch to the square foot. A cubic yard highly concentrated manure, like night soil would if evenly spread, manure an acre very well. A cubic yard of long manure will weigh about 1,400 lbs, a cubic foot not far from 50 lbs. A cord contains 128 cubic feet; a cord and a quarter would give about a cubic foot to the square rod. If liquid manure be used it would take 180 bbls. to give one gill to the square foot upon an acre, which would be equal to about 40 pipes or large hogsheads. It would be a little more specific as to the amount of manure applied.

The Farmer's Barometer.—Take a common glass pickle bottle, wide mouthed; fill it within three inches of the top with water; then take a common Frorence oil flask, remove the straw covering, and cleansing the flask, plunge the neck of the flask as far as it will go, into the bottle and the barometer is complete. In fine weather the water will rise into the neck of the flask even higher than the mouth of the pickle bottle, and in wet windy weather it will fall to within an inch of the mouth of the flask. Before a heavy gale of wind, the water has been seen to leave the flask altogether at least eight hours before the gale came to its height. The invention was made by a German and communicated to a London journal.

Horses and Colts.—The same remarks are applicable to these animals as to neat stock, except that the horse will thrive under much severer exposure than cattle, if he has enough to eat and a shed to go under. It is, however the worst policy to put the toughness of any animal to severe tasks. Horses must be fed up for the hard work of spring. Great care should be taken that colds are not caught from exposeure during sleighing excursions, or after other sweating work; they are very apt to run into confirmed coughs and the heaves, especially at this season. Blanket only and always when warm, rub off dry, withhold food and drink, and litter freely. A horse stable should not be exposed to interior draughts.

ROSENBERG & WOLFF,

Would respectfully announce to the citizens of Towanda and vicinity, that they have opened the above store, under the name of "The Towanda Regulator," with a splendid assortment of

READY MADE CLOTHING!

Gents Furnishing Goods, Hats, Caps, &c., &c., which they assure the said citizens cannot be excelled in style or elegance and that the prices are so low as to astonish everybody.—Rosenberg & Wolff hope that by strict attention, and fair dealing with the people of Towanda, they will obtain their patronage and support. They also beg to subjoin the following Commandments for their guidance.

COME ONE! COME ALL!

At Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Regulator, Main Street, Towanda, Pa.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS,

Keep them, and Happy will be Thy Days.

1. Thou shalt have no other place to buy clothing except Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Regulator, Main Street.
2. Thou shalt not choose any other merchant; though shalt not listen to their speeches, for Rosenberg & Wolff are no Chatham-st. dealers, but sell at one price, and reliable. and will serve you unto the third and fourth generation.
3. Thou shalt not seek in vain any more for cheap raiment, for they can be found at Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Store.
4. Thou shalt bear in mind that we sell only on six days of the week, and don't desecrate the Sabbath by keeping our doors open and hangin out a show, for, on the seventh day, Rosenberg & Wolff and their clerks, desire to rest from their labors.
5. Thou shalt honor the way Rosenberg & Wolff deal, and long may be thy days to enjoy its benefits.
6. Thou shalt not commit an impropriety—of buying of Chatham st. Dealers, but, come direct to Rosenberg & Wolff's Once Price Regulator, Main street
7. Thou shalt not seek in vain for goods of Foreign make, for Rosenberg & Wolff keep a large variety.
8. Thou shalt not purloin from the Regulator for Rosenberg & Wolff sell so cheap it would be a sin
9. Thou shalt not bear false witness, but honestly acknowledge that you can get better suited and for less money, at Rosenberg & Wolff's than any other store.
10. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbors goods or his bargains, for Rosenberg & Wolff can give them to you likewise; therefore, take counsel, and buy only of Rosenberg & Wolff the Once Price Men
