Pittsburgh Gazette. PUBLISHED DAILY AND WEEKLY BY S. RIDDLE & CO., FIFTH STREET, ABOVE SMITHFIELD. PITTSBURGH: TUESDAY MORNING, APRIL 16.

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, April 12.

The town was thrown into intense excitement to-night by the report of the commencement of hostilities at Charleston this morning at 4 o'clock. The more so because of the previous news of peace and landing of provisions at Fort Sumpter. The news came to-night from the Associated Press agent at Charleston, giving all the particulars of the correspondence between Beauregard and Maj. Anderson, and the commencement of the attack by the Secessionists, and Anderson's response from his batteries.

The news was posted at once in all the hotels, and the wildest scene of excitement ensued. Among the Union men here there was general rejoicing that an issue was made at last, while no advocates of Southern rights were to be found.

The rapid shipment of supplies, men and munitions was the result of forethought and previous preparation—the end of means long before matured. The Government continues to receive assurances of the popularity of the measures it has inaugurated. These come from all quarters and from men of all parties. I was talking with a gentleman from Maryland this evening, who assured me that the steps taken to maintain the supremacy of the General Government had done more to stifle secession in his State than all the compromise propositions. He was at home yesterday when a dispatch was received that a conflict had taken place in the harbor of Charleston. About forty persons were present, including Republicans and "every few" Douglas Democrats and Bell Everett men. There was a universal expression of hope that the Government would succeed. This feeling pervades the Border States to an extent that surprises all. The stern realities of an actual conflict appear to have sobered the people and brought them to realize the duties of the Government and their own responsibility as citizens.

Mr. Seward and the President have consulted frequently with the foreign diplomats here concerning the present cond tion of our national affairs and the course of their respective Governments. On the part of the representatives of England and France, it is well understood that there is no sympathy whatever for the South. Lord Lyons says he sees no benefit to be derived by the English Government, or any foreign power, from the supremacy of its people; that there is, of course, no prospect of foreign supremacy on this continent in any event; while England and the United States have become so strongly united in mutual interests, that misfortune to one is disaster to the other in all points of material interests. The Southern Commissioners had reason to discover these facts while in Washington, and have probably given Davis and his compatriots some new ideas not at all flattering to their vanity and visions of ultimate success.

The alleged imperfections and improprieties of the Morrill Tariff, upon which an extra session has been defended, are found to be largely exaggerated, if not entirely unfounded. Mr. Barney assures me that he will find no difficulty in executing the law with his present force, and that its provisions are quite as explicit as such laws are usually made, and that the changes from the previous system are not so violent and general as is supposed. A gentleman from Maryland told me to-day that the new tariff was doing much to keep that State loyal. He represents the iron and coal interests of the State, and he thinks the same beneficial influences will be felt in Virginia and North Carolina, in both of which States the mining interests are feel becoming paramount.—N. Y. Times.

The following is the weekly statement of the condition of the Treasury:

Receipts, including loan	$3,692,703 71
Drafts paid	869,419 60
Drafts issued	708,856 79
Net balance	4,705,999 60

It is well ascertained that the Secretary will have no difficulty in disposing of any amount of Treasury notes that he may desire, in case the revenue should prove insufficient to meet the public expenditures. Being receivable for public dues, and convertible into a twenty year loan, they offer unusual inducements to capitalists.

Senator Sumner called on Secretary Seward to-day, with Mr. Redpath, Agent of the Government of Hayti, and made known the passage of the resolution of the Legislature of Massachusetts, instructing its Senators and Representatives to use their influence to obtain the recognition of Haytian independence.

Senator Sumner stated that this resolution was adopted on the petition of all the merchants of Boston having trade with Hayti, and added his own personal desires to those thus expressed by the Legislature. He said also that Gov. Andrew warmly approved of this policy. It was also suggested that such a recognition was calculated to have a good effect in counteracting the reported Spanish movement against Dominica. The Conference lasted some time.—N. Y. Tribune.

OUR HARRISBURG CORRESPONDENCE.

Owing to the pressure on our columns yesterday we were forced to hold over the concluding portion of our Harrisburg correspondent's letter of Saturday. It is so entirely in consonance with our own wishes and feelings in reference to the subject, that we have great pleasure in laying it before our readers this evening:

Eds. Gazette: I notice that your correspondents all take it for granted that Mr. Penney would not accept a re-nomination. I do not know why. I am convinced that Mr. Penney would not enter the field and canvass for a re-nomination; but I am also convinced that he would not decline, if a re-nomination were tendered him. I believe, with one of your correspondents, that the people should insist upon retaining him in the Senate, of which he is the ornament and pride, and in which he so honorably represents his constituents and the State.

While upon this subject, allow me to append the following excellent but truthful notice from the Lancaster Union. It is a graceful compliment, voluntary rendered:

"JOHN P. PENNEY, ESQ.

The announcement that this gentleman, one of the Senators from Allegheny county, declines a re-election, will be a source of deep regret to those who place a just value upon ability, integrity and consistency of conduct, as well as soundness of principle, in members of our State Legislature. Mr. Penney not only possesses a high order of talent, but a purity of character which not the boldest libeler has dared to assail with any imputation. An accomplished and thoroughly learned lawyer he has a gentleman of most courteous address, so modest and unassuming as though he had no merits and qualifications of the first order, we have never heard a word of disparagement of Mr. Penney, unless the compliment may be so counted of an expression of regret that he had too little of the pugnacious disposition. He is too truly refined in feeling, to delight in the "rough and tumble" of coarse controversy, and he has always been a model of decorum in debate. The public service is greatly a sufferer by the loss of such a man, and it would deeply interest not only his immediate constituency, but the whole people of the State to overcome the declared purpose of Mr. Penney. Such men add a dignity and character to Legislation, of which it has not too many illustrations. We are aware that many things have transpired to render further participation in the department of public life distasteful to a gentleman Mr. of Penney's high qualities and endowments. They are, however, only the more needed on that account to stem the current of decline. It is high time, not only that measures should be taken to preserve the presence of Mr. Penney in our State Legislature, but that the people should awake to the imminent duty of filling its halls with many more of the same cast of character and ability—men who, like him, will industriously observe all projected laws, and by their attention correct defects in the original draft and render them intelligible, as well as resist the passage of such as are detrimental to the public interest. If Mr. Penney has not succeeded in defeating all of the latter class, he has stood up against them with undaunted courage, irrefutable arguments and unsullied integrity, and has been overborne by the power of numbers and combinations, rather than of right. He is just the man to rally around in inaugurating the work of a wholesome reform.

The Rebellion.

The traitors of South Carolina have inaugurated a war against the Government of the United States; without being assailed by that Government they have struck the first blow and called down upon their heads the awful responsibility of all the blood that may be shed. They fight in defense of justice or right; they have not the justification for their battle, that they are defending their homes against invasion, or are suffering any wrongs, or citizens of the United States which they could not have had redressed, in a lawful manner in the councils of the nation. Infamy, deep and damning infamy, the parallel of which is not to be found in the history of the world, is written on all the actions of South Carolina and the States that have followed her in treason from the first step of Secession to the opening by them on Friday of the fire of war upon the Government under which they have enjoyed years of peace and prosperity.

In the meantime, that first ball fired by traitors at Fort Sumter will rouse a feeling in the hearts of the thousands of loyal men who, thank God, yet remain in this Nation, that will result in an action the end of which will be retribution for treason.—Courier and Enquirer.

The Secession of Arizona and the Grand Programme Involved in It.

Arizona has seceded, gone out, left the Union and joined the Confederate States. Arizona!...Where is Arizona? It is the Gadsden country, the territory acquired by the Gadsden treaty, and for which the United States paid, if we are not mistaken, ten millions of dollars to Mexico. Arizona, as yet, is of very little account. Its general character is that of a desert, and its white population is limited to a few hundreds in a few villages. But as this unorganized Territory extends to the head of the Gulf of California, and as its mountains and valleys are known to be rich in silver and gold it has very great expectations of one day being a second edition of California, particularly with the annexation of Sonora and Lower California, which will include that gulf, six or seven hundred miles long, the peninsula, and, on the Pacific, a corresponding line of sea coast.

This prospective annexation and command of the Pacific Ocean is, no doubt, at the bottom of this Arizona secession movement. New Mexico proper lies between Arizona and Texas; so that to make the secession line complete across the continent, from the Gulf of Mexico to the Gulf of California, New Mexico must secede; and she will probably be the next to go. Then, if they can hold their ground, the Confederate States, occupying the north side of our Mexican boundary all the way through to the Gulf of California, will have secured the monopoly of any further acquisition of Mexican soil. This is the game which, we suspect, the appointment of Hon. Tom Corwin as Mr. Lincoln's Minister to Mexico is designed to block. And thus the reader will perceive that this secession or Arizona, though a small affair of itself, comprehends a grand programme of expansion on the part of the Confederate States, which the government of the United States is moving to defeat. To this end it is probable that the troops which arrived here yesterday from Texas will soon be shipped back there again. General Scott's long head in military matters is in this work, and we hope he may live to see the end of it, and the reign of peace once more.—N. Y. Herald.

Stand by the Flag.

That never yet failed us or our forefathers! Its assailants are unmasked, and to their shame be it spoken, were brethren. Reckless of consequences, they demand, that it should be hauled down, knowing well enough in advance, that deliberate acquiescence thus on the part of the Government, at Washington, would give a pretext to foreign powers, to recognize the Government of the seceding States, as the de facto one, and thus enable them to throw their weight into the scale of dismembering this country.

Sink party divisions and give that flag and those who uphold it liberal, hearty, and generous support.

Through IT and its power, we can and shall emerge, from the crisis in our country's history.

While ascertaining its power, to the fullest extent, let those entrusted with its keeping herald also that there are peaceable methods under the Constitution of settling all political disputes, if the people of those States in revolt so vote; so that when those who have forced on the arbitrament of the sword shall elect, they may rest on their arms, and stay a civil war, to avert which the Government at Washington, since November last, has exercised a generous and unparalleled forbearance.

Let our rulers now take heed, that the country claims that all its strength be put forth, not to subjugate the seceding States, but to defend and uphold the Constitution and laws, and protect its property yet in possession.—[N. Y. Commercial.
