Agricultural.

Robins Indispensable to the Farmer.

BY THOMAS M. BREWER.

The mischief which birds do is often of daily occurrence, is open, palpable, and not to be gainsaid.—And yet these very birds are often really our greatest benefactors. Let us take up first for our consideration the Robin. Where will you find, here-abouts, one more complained of, more generally denounced, than he? Is he not, by common consent, pronounced by most of our fruit-growers the best of horticulturists? Does he not steal our cherries, plunder our strawberries, strip our currant bushes, pilfer our raspberries, help himself to our choicest grapes, and, if we have some rare Shepardia berries, will not the glutton take the whole? And does he not, some one else will add, attack and spoil our handsomest pears? In reply to the last charge we cannot respond affirmatively.—We do not believe it, and if it were true, we would say to whoever made this charge: "My dear sir, it only serves you right. You should not have summer pears on the tree long enough to soften as to tempt a bird to peck at them. Your fruit should have been gathered when so hard that no bird could molest it, and then you would have saved your pears and improved their quality!" But we are getting off our track, and will return to the Robin.

With the exception of the pear-accusation, which we believe to be false, we admit the truth of all these charges,—but what then? What do they prove? Simply that the worst traits in the character of the Robin are those which, unfortunately for his reputation, are the most apparent, and which are brought home to the notice of all who have fruit to be plundered, while his beneficial deeds escape the general observation. The Robin is eminently one of those who delight in doing good by stealth, and alas! his is very rarely put to the blush by finding it fame. The world, as a general rule, is far too ready to recognize the mischief he does, but knows little or nothing of his good deeds, far overbalancing his faults.

Fortunately for the reputation of the Robin, careful and faithful friends have looked into his record, and the result of their investigations proves him to be an invaluable friend to the farmer, and demonstrate by indisputable evidence, that his services are of an indispensable importance.—Nearly eleven years since, the very same gentleman who this last summer signalized his imperfect knowledge of birds by protesting against the European Sparrow's coming to Boston, because it was not an insect-eater, at a meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society introduced a motion in favor of the presentation of a petition to the State Legislature, in the name of the Society, praying for the repeal of all legislation for the protection of the Robin. After an animated discussion, in which it was shown that the Robin was not even then without many friends, the Society, instead of adopting the motion, very wisely voted to look into the matter before they thus committed themselves, and referred the whole subject of the habits of the Robin to a select committee, who were desired to make a thorough investigation. Fortunately at the head of this committee was placed, J. W. P. Jenks, Esq., of Middleboro', an ardent and zealous friend of the bird. He entered upon his duties with an alacrity and an interest, and completed them with a fidelity and a thoroughness that reflect upon him the highest credit. The leisure hours of an entire year were devoted by this gentleman to a careful and minute investigation of the subject committed to his charge.—Day by day, and at all hours of the day, he procured specimens of the birds for the purpose of carefully examining the contents of their several stomachs, for evidences of the general character of their food. Robins were thus obtained by him, both from the villages and from the more rural districts, apart from gardens and orchards. Beginning with the first week in March, 1858, these examinations were continued, with more or less frequency, until the same month of the succeeding year.

Confining ourselves here to such portions of the results as may have a direct bearing upon the points we seek to establish, we find that Prof. Jenks has demonstrated, among other things, that during the whole of March, April, and May not a particle of vegetable matter of any kind whatever could be found in the food of the Robins. Insects, in large quantities, varying greatly as to kind, condition, and development, were during all these months their sole and exclusive food. The larvæ of a species of fly known to naturalists as the Bibio albipennis of Say, formed a large proportion of the contents of their stomachs. Not unfrequently as many as two hundred of these insects, in this stage of development, were taken from a single bird, and for the most part wherever any were found they were the only food in the bird's stomach.—Atlantic Monthly for April.

CURE FOR COLIC IN HORSES.—The death of Robert Bonner's Auburn horse induces a New Yorker to send to the Tribune a remedy which he has never seen fail to cure colic in horses. It is simply to drench them with a preparation of chlorine and permanganic acid, which can be procured at any drug store. He has used it and seen it used repeatedly, and has so much confidence in it that he would be willing to insure the recovery of any horse if it was administered in time.

TASTE OF TURNIPS IN BUTTER OR MILK.—The flavor of turnips cannot be removed entirely from milk or butter when the cows are fed on them, but much may be done to mitigate it. It is said that a tablespoonful (per gallon of milk) of nitre dissolved in as much water as it will take, and put in the pail before milking the cow, and giving no turnips to the cow for two or three hours before milking, will lessen the flavor; as will, also, giving only the center part of the turnip, having the top and bottom cut off.

THE Rural World says the very best success with land it has ever seen was with low, swampy soil, apparently worthless. It was ditched, plowed and thoroughly cultivated, and a wealth was developed which made it lasting and productive, almost beyond account. There are many such swamps.

A TREE that yields no leaves.—An axle-tree.

They also beg to subjoin the following Commandments for their guidance.

COME ONE!, COME ALL!

At Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Regulator, Main Street Towanda, Pa.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS.

Keep them, and Happy will be Thy Days.

1. Thou shalt have no other place to buy clothing except Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Regulator, Main Street.
2. Thou shalt not choose any other merchant; though shalt not listen to their speeches, for Rosenberg & Wolff are no Chatham-st. dealers, but sell at one price, and reliable, and will serve you unto the third and fourth generation.
3. Thou shalt not seek in vain any more for cheap raiment, for they can be found at Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Store.
4. Thou shalt bear in mind that we sell only on six days of the week, and don't desecrate the Sabbath by keeping our doors open and hanging out a show, for, on the seventh day, Rosenberg & Wolff and their clerks, desire to rest from their labors.
5. Thou shalt honor the way Rosenberg & Wolff deal, and long may be thy days to enjoy its benefits.
6. Thou shalt not commit an impropriety—of buying of Chatham st. Dealers, but come direct to Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Regulator, Main street.
7. Thou shalt not seek in vain for goods of foreign make for Rosenberg & Wolff keep a large variety.
8. Thou shalt not purloin from the Regulator for Rosenberg & Wolff sell so cheap it would be a sin.
9. Thou shalt not bear false witness, but honestly acknowledge that you can get better suited and for less money, at Rosenberg & Wolff's than any other store.
10. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbors goods or his bargains, for Rosenberg & Wolff can give them to you likewise; therefore, take counsel, and buy only of Rosenberg & Wolff the One Price Men

NEW YORK, Oct. 10, 1868.

The undersigned takes pleasure in announcing to his numerous friends and patrons that from this date, the charge of the Pacific will be $2,50 per day.

Being sole Proprietor of this house, and therefore free from the too common exaction of an inordinate rent, he is fully able to meet the downward tendency of prices without any falling off of service.

It will now, as heretofore, be his aim to maintain undiminished the favorable reputation of the Pacific, which it has enjoyed for many years, as one of the best of travelers' hotels.

The table will be bountifully supplied with every delicacy of the season.

The attendance will be found efficient and obliging.

The location will be found convenient for those whose business calls them in the lower part of the city, being one door north of Cortlandt st., and one block west of Broadway, and of ready access to all Rail Road and Steamboat Lines.
