Agricultural.

MULCHING.

Wherever there has been opportunity, we have uniformly advocated mulching for all kinds of small fruit and for fruit-trees. It is probably more efficient than manure or cultivation, because supplying an abundance of moisture and an equalizing temperature about the roots, which is of the very first consequence. The St. Louis Journal of Agriculture echoes our sentiments exactly, and we quote its opinions entire:

Mulching, as commonly understood, is covering the ground with partly decayed straw, corn-stalks, or coarse litter. This, when of sufficient thickness, keeps the ground under it cool and moist, even in our hottest and dryest summers. Every newly-planted tree should be mulched; and if rotten straw is not to be obtained, undecayed straw answers well, and should be piled up to the lower limbs if not too high, and a few shovelfuls put on to keep the wind from blowing it away. The object of piling it so high is to shade the trunk.

A newly-planted tree has not the life and vigor that it had before removing; the sap circulates sluggishly, and the branches being partly removed permit the sun and the southwest wind to have free access to the trunk. The sap-worm—or, as some call it, trunk-borer—seems to like this condition of things, and attacks the tree, feeding upon the sap or tender, newly-formed wood. This taking the life-blood from the tree soon finishes it; or it maintains a sickly existence for a year or two—perhaps for a number of years—and is a long time recovering from its removal, if it ever does. This worm is probably the death of more trees than the real borer. It is a flat-headed worm, very much like the worm so common in the hickory. It invariably commences its operations on the south or southwest side of the tree. The first indications of it are discolored spots in the bark. These, if examined carefully, will bring to light the rascal who has done the mischief.

This worm is found in the maple, elm, and perhaps other shade-trees; it is also found in the pear, plum, and occasionally in the peach. I will not attempt to give its scientific name, although the insect is well-known to the entomologists. A thrifty, growing tree is seldom attacked.

Now mulching the newly-planted tree thoroughly will enable it to go through our usually hot, dry summers without injury. Thorough cultivation of trees, without mulching, will not insure the lives of as many trees the first year as mulching without cultivation. I fully believe, if every newly-planted tree was well mulched before the hot, dry weather of summer, ninety per cent. of the trees, as usually received from the nursery, would live; while, with trees taken up and set out as they should be, ninety-nine out of every hundred would live and make good thrifty trees.

I also fully believe that a thorough mulching of a newly-planted tree or four-year old tree, which would cost but a few cents, is worth a dollar to it; in fact, it is almost impossible to make any but young trees live and do well without it through a hot, dry summer.

The writer has practiced planting trees for the last fifteen years; and, while he has always advocated mulching, has sometimes failed in practice, though he has always intended to mulch every tree set out; yet, during the hurrying of corn planting and tending, it has been occasionally neglected.

Last year, being short of material for mulching, some fifteen or twenty trees were left unmulched; and, though they had been taken up carefully, planted immediately, and well cultivated—the orchard being in corn—one third of them were more or less injured by the sap-worm, while two were entirely girdled and had to be replaced. He intends hereafter to make an invariable rule, and keep it, to mulch every newly-planted tree, and advise every one to go and do likewise.

LOSS IN STACKING HAY.—A farmer of sound judgement, and large experience in cutting and storing hay, estimates his own loss at twenty-five per cent. He cuts probably a hundred tons a year, and stacks a fifth part of it for the want of barn-room. He has very properly made up his mind to build a new barn. We think this estimate is not wide from the mark. There is a large loss from moulding at the bottom of the stack, and old rails, boards, or straw will not wholly prevent it. Then the whole external surface for three or four inches is wheather-beaten, and losses much of its sweetness; and it is not improbable that the loss of aroma extends through the whole stack.

The conviction is universal among intelligent men that barn-stored hay is worth much more than that which is taken from the stack. Why then follow this wasteful practice? Look at the loss to this farmer who cuts one hundred tons of hay, worth $2,000. According to his own estimate, he pays $100 a year, for the privilege of stacking one-fifth of his crop. This is but a small part of the loss where the hay is fed out at the stack. It costs at least a third more hay to keep cattle without shelter. These are strong arguments for more barn-room.—Ex.

USEFUL HINTS.—A bit of glue dissolved in skim milk will restore crape.

Ribbons of every kind should be washed in cold suds and not rinsed.

If your flatirons are rough, rub them with fine salt and it will make them smooth.

A bit of soap rubbed on the hinges of doors will prevent their creaking.

Scotch snuff put in holes where crickets come out will destroy them.

Wood ashes and common salt wet with water will stop the cracks of a stove.

Strong lye put in water will make it as soft as rain water.

Half a cranberry, it is said, bound on a corn, will soon kill it.

If you wish to avoid a cold keep your mouth shut. The same plan also keeps the teeth from getting sunburnt, and people from noticing them if they are.

IT is stated that there are already three thousand steam ploughs at work in England, some of them with stationary engines capable of driving from three to six ploughs each.

AN Ohio agricultural journal is responsible for the statement that "handsome apples are sometimes sour!"

WHOLESALE GROCERY AND PROVISION HOUSE OF

F. S. M. & CO.

113 MAIN STREET, TOWANDA, PA.

The undersigned, encouraged by the success which has thus far attended their new enterprise, desire to make acknowledgment for the very liberal patronage they have received, by giving their customers the advantage of their years' experience, together with the benefit of their greatly increased facilities for doing business.

They keep constantly on hand a very large and complete assortment of everything in their line, and are daily receiving such additions to their stock as the wants of their trade requires.

They have now in store, Sugar, Syrup, Molasses, Coffee, Rice, Tobacco, Fish, Salt, Cheese, Fruits, Crackers, Candy, Matches, Brooms, Wrapping Paper and Twine, Flour Sacks, Seeds, and a great variety of other goods, which have been recently bought at the lowest point in the market, and are offered at wholesale, at rates to correspond.

They desire to call especial attention to their large stock of Fine Teas, which they are selling at New York Jobbing prices,—guaranteeing the quality in all cases.

Have also on hand a good assortment of Flour, Pork, and Kerosene Oil.

They still continue to have the benefit of a resident Partner in New York, who is constantly in the market, and prepared to turn to our advantage any favorable changes in the price of goods.

THE TOWANDA REGULATOR

CLOTHING STORE!

Adjoining Patton's Block.

ROSENBERG & WOLFF,

Would respectfully announce to the citizens of Towanda and vicinity, that they have opened the above Store, under the name of "The Towanda Regulator," with a splendid assortment of

READY-MADE CLOTHING!

Gents' Furnishing Goods, Hats, Caps, &c., &c., which they argue the said citizens cannot be excelled in style or elegance, and that the prices are so low as to astonish everybody. Rosenberg & Wolff hope that by strict attention, and fair dealing with the people of Towanda, they will obtain their patronage and support. They also beg to subjoin the following Commandments for their guidance:

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS.

Keep them, and Happy will be Thy Days.

1. Thou shalt have no other place to buy clothing except Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Regulator, Main Street.
2. Thou shalt not choose any other merchant; thou shalt not listen to their speeches, for Rosenberg & Wolff are no Chatham-st. dealers, but sell at one price, and reliable, and will serve you unto the third and fourth generation.
3. Thou shalt not seek in vain any more for cheap raiment, for they can be found at Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Store.
4. Thou shalt bear in mind that we sell only on six days of the week, and don't desecrate the Sabbath by keeping our doors open and hanging out a show, for, on the seventh day, Rosenberg & Wolff, and their clerks, desire to rest from their labors.
5. Thou shalt honor the way Rosenberg & Wolff deal, and long may be thy days to enjoy its benefits.
6. Thou shalt not commit an impropriety—of buying of Chatham-st. Dealers, but come directly to Rosenberg & Wolff's One Price Regulator, Main street.
7. Thou shalt not seek in vain for goods of Foreign make, for Rosenberg & Wolff keep a large variety.
8. Thou shalt not purloin from the Regulator for Rosenberg & Wolff sell so cheap it would be a sin.
9. Thou shalt not bear false witness, but honestly acknowledge that you can get better suited and for less money, at Rosenberg and Wolff's, than any other store.
10. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's goods, or his bargains, for Rosenberg & Wolff can give them to you likewise; therefore, take counsel, and buy only of Rosenberg & Wolff, the One Price Men.
