Agricultural.

How to Hive Bees.—On this point the Rural American, says: When honey bees swarm they will cluster, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, if trees or suitable shrubbery be near the apiary, without the ringing of bells or rattling of tin pans. But if a swarm has sent out scouts previously to swarming, and has settled in a hollow tree in the woods to go to, they are often inclined to go direct to such trees without clustering, and in such cases their flight may be arrested sometimes by making such a din, by the rattling of tin pans or the ringing of bells, that the hum of the queen is lost, when the bees will descend and cluster immediately. If water be thrown among them to fall like rain, which may be done when their flight is low, that will cause them to alight. So will the report of gun fired near them.

Bees generally remain from one to twenty-four hours. Indeed, if not hived, they will sometimes remain and die where they cluster, dwindling away by degrees, consequently it is best to have hives ready, and hive them as soon as possible; and they may be carried immediately to the stand where they are to remain for the season, or they may be left till evening, and then removed. It does not make much or any difference, which way is adopted.

Land Drainage.—An article in Colman's Rural World, signed "R H. A.," hits the nail on the head, when it says that thorough drainage of land is the only security the farmer has against loss by "too much rain or a want of it." Some deem it an absurdity to assert that draining the water from the soil can be beneficial to crops, during a protracted drought, yet such is the fact, as every one knows who has tested the matter on soil where the texture was such as to hold the water a foot or more below the surface· Such land, before draining, becomes baked and hard; no fertilizing influences come up to invigorate the roots and develop plant growth; but draw this water off, and a speedy change for the better will be seen in the character of the soil, and in the plants whose seeds were committed to it. As the country is more and more divested of forest coverings, the drier will be the fructify-of season, and the greater necessity of drainage to counteract the influence of drought. But the benefit of drainage does not stop here, for, in the event of a wet spring, seeding can be forwarded two or three weeks as a consequence of it, while vegetation will be aided during the entire season, whatever its character may be.

Summer Fruits.—Acids promote the separation of the bile from the blood, which is then passed from the system, thus preventing fevers, the prevailing diseases of summer. All fevers are "billious;" that is, the bile is in the blood. Whatever is antagonistic of fever is cooling. It is a common saying that fruits are "cooling," and also berries of every description; it is because the acidity which they contain aids in separating the bile from the blood; that is, aids in purifying the blood. Hence the great yearning for greens, and lettuce, and salalds in the early spring, these being eaten with vinegar; hence, also, the taste for something sour, for lemonades, on attack of fever. But this being the case, it is easy to see, that we nulify the good effects of fruits and berries, in proportion as we eat them with sugar, or even sweet milk or cream. If we eat them in their natural state, fresh, ripe, perfect, it is almost impossible to eat too many, to hurt us, especially if we eat them alone, not taking any liquid with them whatever.

Good Feed for Good Butter.—I once bought a dairy of twenty tubs of butter all made from the same cows the same season and by the same person. Some eight tubs were good, sound, yellow butter; some eight more of it was very light colored and soft, with a disagreeable flavor: some four tubs shaded down from yellow to white, and the color the index of quality. Careful investigation developed the fact that the good butter was made from grass feed: and the poor, later in the season, when the grass had failed from drouth, and the cows lived upon briars and leaves. A man changed the feed of his cows from corn meal and hay to potatoes and hay; it lessened the quantity of butter, and the color was lighter. Hence the importance of good feed. It is profitable to feed corn meal at all times except when the grass is new and plenty, and it is not lost then. A piece of land five rods by two to each cow, sowed with Southern corn will supply the deficiency of the pastures in the last of the season for two or three months, and save the mowings more than the cost.—St. Johnsbury (Vt.) Times.

To Train a Horse to Stand.—The American Stock Journal contains the following directions: Take your horse on the barn floor and throw a strap over his back and fasten it to his right fore foot; lead him along and say "whoa," at the same time pull down the strap, which throws him on three feet and makes him stop suddenly. This is the best way known to teach whoa, though you can put on the war bridle and say whoa, and give him a sharp jerk that will stop him about as soon as the strap to his foot. Then put him in harness with the strap, and drive him up to the door. The moment he undertakes to move, take his foot and say whoa. Get in your carriage and get out again; rattle the thills, make all the noise getting in and out you can; give him to understand, by snatching his foot each time he moves, that he must stand still until you tell him to go; and after a few times you can put the whole family in the carriage and he won't stir out of his tracks.

Taking Milk to the Factory.—At a late meeting of the patrons of the Sycamore Cheese Factory, the proprietor, in the course of some excellent remarks on the above subject, said:

A large portion of the milk has been brought to the factory in lumber wagons—the cans not sufficiently protected from the sun, and in almost all cases the morning's milk not sufficiently cooled. As a consequence we were troubled from the latter part of June to the first of September with the dread of all cheese makers, floating curds. Milk, after being carefully cooled, should be hauled to the factory, as far as practicable, upon spring wagons, and the cans during warm weather should always be covered with a thick woolen blanket or buffalo robe, to protect them from the rays of the sun.

The sight of the aged assisted, the weak strengthened and the perfect preserved.

PHILADELPHIA OPTICAL INSTITUTE,
For the manufacturing of the
CONCAVE CONVEX, CRYSTAL LENSES, LONDON
SMOKED AND TINTED GLASS FOR WEAK OR INFLAMED EYES.

The Concave Convex Crystal Spectacles, made by the above institute are now a long time before the public, and the rapid and increased demand for them combined with the universal acknowledgment of their clearness in vision and ease to the eye, shows plainly that they are superior to any other glasses in the market.

The majority of Spectacles, (mostly imported) and no matter how fine the frames, contain but a poor and worthless article of glasses, (generally cast or pressed;) they are made to be sold only, without any calculation respecting benefit to the eye, and therefore the great complaint of poor and weak sight. Thousands are using glasses now which tire and fatigue the eye, where the objects get dim after short usage, or require an intensely strong light and therefore destroying the sight, which, were they properly suited, would be preserved a life time.

The advantages claimed for the Concave Convex Crystal Glasses are the following:

The Lenses are ground of the best material, pure and hard, and made only for optical purposes, they are therefore not liable to get scratched or dim.

They confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision not found in any other glass.

They can be used equally well by day or candle light without tiring or fatiguing the eyes.

They are ground mathematically true in the concave convex mirror, according to the philosophy of nature, and shape of cornea of the eye, therefore assisting nature only instead of forcing it.

That the lenses are centered correct into the frames.

They can be used longer than any other glasses without changing to a higher power.

The frames are made strong and durable by experienced workmen and warranted to give satisfaction.

CONSUMERS OF CONFECTIONERY!

COME,

LET US REASON TOGETHER!

How can any person manufacture Confectionery, and sell it at 15 cents a pound, when sugar is worth 16 cents at the Refinery, (unless it is terribly adulterated)?

How can any dealer retail such a vile compound to his customers and have a conscience void of offence?

How can any consumer expect to purchase pure Confectionery at twenty-five and thirty cents per pound when a pure article cannot be manufactured less than thirty to forty cents per pound, consisting of cassia buds, burnt almonds, and such class of goods?

Within a few days we have been offered cassia buds, etc., for fifteen cents per pound, and Chocolate Creams at twenty cents, and the agent acknowledged that they were adulterated ten per cent, with Terra Alba; and it is fact that tons of this cheap Confectionery are made and sold in this country every year, and the consumers are the only persons injured by it.

Now, for the benefit of those who wish a Pure article of Confectionery, we will warrant every article of our manufacture Strictly Pure and free from every ingredient deleterious to health.
