Agricultural.

THE IMPORTANCE OF AGRICULTURAL KNOWLEDGE

At the present time, when the producing class and the fertility of the soil are proportionate to the consuming class, and prices of food are on the increase, the importance of increased agricultural knowledge cannot be over estimated.

There are over ten hundred millions of persons constantly dependent upon the products of the soil for their very sustenance in life, and while in most of the vocations demanding active industry, there is a surplus—in that of agricultural there is a great and growing deficiency.

While this lies at the foundation of all other arts, the investigation of the principles upon which the successful practice of this art depends, ought to command the attention of the greatest minds.

In the history of every country a period occurs when the demand for food, at the economical rate, becomes very urgent, and consequently like other important pursuits, calls into requisition those agencies which tend directly to an improvement in the productive powers of "Mother Earth."

When a tract of land is thinly peopled, like newly-settled districts of the United States, a very defective system of culture will produce food enough not only for the wants of the inhabitants, but a large amount for exportation to other countries. When the population becomes more dense, a more scientific and thorough system of culture must be adopted. While the population of our country is rapidly increasing, there is not a corresponding increase in the products of the soil, in the same ratio; but on the other hand a diminution in some of the most important cereals.—Stock Journal.

ARTIFICIAL RAIN.

In England, where ancestral pride in land is aided by fixed and princely incomes, experimental agriculture is carried on as an enlightened and congenial employment of capital and occupation of leisure. Draining has been pushed to such perfection there as to demonstrate that it may be overdone; and now surface irrigation is receiving the attention of landholders. At Stoke Park the system of irrigation with pure water has been tried with marked success. The surface experimented on is a tract of twenty acres, in grass, and the water has been applied in artificial showers, in the night, every night during the season of 1871, except when natural rains made artificial rains unnecessary. The apparatus consists of pipes laid in the ground, supplied from an elevated reservoir, into which the water is pumped by machinery.

The figures in the English experiment are as follows per acre: Interest (5 per cent.) on cost of machinery and pipes, $7.50; superstructure, and fuel, $7.50; manure and other top-dressing, $67.50; cost of harvesting, $12.50; total expenses, $95. The value of the products of each acre, being on crop of grass and grazing in the autumn of 1870, and two crops of hay in 1871, is stated at $200; profit is thus $105 per acre. On ground in the same tract and of the same character, treated in the same manner, except the irrigation, the net profit per acre was $45. The interest on the apparatus for twenty acres represents a capital of $3.000. Probably the same work could not be done for the same money in this country. But the same engine-power could be used for a much larger area than twenty years.—Exchange.

COOKING POTATOES FOR SWINE.—As the season for digging potatoes is at hand, it is well to consider the most economical mode of dealing with the small ones. Often farmers are so mistaken as to save them for seed; but as the seed is, so will the crop be. Plant small potatoes, and the crop will be "small potatoes." Small potatoes may be fed to hogs in such a manner as to return a fair value. But they must not be fed raw. The results of all the experiments we have heard or read of, as well as of those made by ourselves, show that potatoes are much more profitable when fed cooked than when fed raw. The extra labor and fuel are well paid for. A good plan is to boil them in a large iron kettle, set in an archway of rough stone (which economizes fuel), and boil a few bushels at a time. When cooked they are dipped out, with all the water, into a barrel, and a peck of corn-meal mixed with each bushel of potatoes. The meal is thus thoroughly scalded. When the mess is cold, it may be fed. If two barrels are kept, one will be always cool and will be somewhat fermented, while the other is preparing. We would not advise any warm feed to be given to hogs. It has generally resulted in producing a diseased state of the liver, and consequently unwholesome pork. Fermented food, on the other hand, seems to be agreeable to them, and wholesome.

THERE are sections of the country where three out of every four farmers are in debt—their land covered with either judgement or mortgage—paying interest and paying taxes on the capital of others. This is a great drawback to the farming interests of the country—improvements in land, in buildings, in implements, and in live stock, all impeded by it. There is such a thirst for land—more acres than we can pay for, or properly cultivate, that we waste our energies in trying to overcome difficulties that we have voluntarily placed in our own paths. We are so sanguine, that we get wedged in the trap before we see where it leads to, and then find a difficulty in backing out, without receiving severe scratches; so we try to push along with the sores bleeding, to the end of the chapter, which is often brought to a close by either death or the sheriff.—Eaton (Md.) Journal.

COWS WINTER THEMSELVES.—Many farmers are accustomed to dry off their cows early, milking them only about eight months. We think it improves the milking qualities of the cows to milk them ten months, but they must be well fed.—We have a neighbor, who ten years ago, found himself short of hay in the fall, and lamented that he should have to pay out nearly all the product of his cows through the summer to purchase hay at high prices to winter them.

He had a moderate amount of straw, and we suggested that the product of his cows from the first of December, if well fed, would pay for all the corn and meal, middlings, etc., necessary to winter his cows in fine condition. He tried this, keeping account of purchase of feed and sales of butter, and found that the butter came out ten dollars ahead in the spring.

IMPORTANT TO ALL WHO VALUE THEIR SIGHT!
The sight of the aged assisted, the weak strengthened and the perfect preserved.
PHILADELPHIA OPTICAL INSTITUTE,
For the manufacturing of
CONCAVE CONVEX, CRYSTAL LENSES, LONDON
SMOKED AND TINTED GLASS FOR WEAK OR INFLAMED EYES.
The Concave Convex Crystal Spectacles, made by the above institute are now a long time before the public, and the rapid and increased demand for them combined with the universal acknowledgment of their clearness in vision and ease to the eye, shows plainly that they are superior to any other glasses in the market.
The majority of Spectacles, (mostly imported) and no matter how fine the frames, contain but a poor and worthless article of glasses, (generally cast or pressed) they are made to be sold only, without any calculation respecting benefit to the eye, and therefore the great complaint of poor and weak sight. Thousands are using glasses now which tire and fatigue the eye, where the objects get dim after short usage, or require an intensely strong light and therefore destroying the sight, which, were they properly suited, would be preserved a life time.
The advantages claimed for the Concave Convex Crystal Glasses are the following:
The Lenses are ground of the best material, pure and hard, and made only for optical purposes, they are therefore not liable to get scratched or dim.
They confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision not found in any other glass.
They can be used equally well by day or candle light without tiring or fatiguing the eyes.
They are ground mathematically true in the concave convex mirror, according to the philosophy of nature, and shape of cornea of the eye, therefore assisting nature only instead of forcing it.
That the lenses are centered correct into the frames.
They can be used longer than any other glasses without changing to a higher power.
The frames are made strong and durable by experienced workmen and warranted to give satisfaction.
Dealer in Watches, Jewelry and Silver Ware, Towanda, Pa., has the sole Agency for these glasses in Bradford county. No Peddlers employed.

RHEUMATISM—NEURALGIA!
$500 WILL BE PAID
to any person producing any Medicine showing half as many living, permanent cures as Dr. FITLER'S VEGETABLE RHEUMATIC REMEDY. Used inwardly only. A pleasant Medicine, free from injurious drugs. Warranted, under oath, to have permanently cured 95 in every 100 patients treated in the past ten years. (See testimony). It is the scientific prescription of Prof. Jos. P. Fitler, M. D., a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, A. D., 1833,—now one of Philadelphia's oldest regular physicians, and Professor of Chemistry and Toxicology,—who has made Neuralgia, Chronic and Inflamatory Rheumatism the specialty of his entire professional life—a fact vouched for by the signatures accompanying each bottle, and other testimonials of many prominent renowned physicians and clergymen. To protect sufferers from poisonous quack nostrums and useless expenditure of money, a legal signed guarantee, stating exact number of bottles warranted to cure, will be forwarded gratis to any sufferer sending by letter a full description of affliction. In case of failure to cure, amount paid positively refunded. Medicine sent anywhere by express, collect on delivery. Afflicted invited to write for advice; all information and medical advice sent by letter gratis. Address Dr. J. P. FITLER, 29 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, Pa. The Remedy is sold or obtained by Druggists.
