Clover—How it Enriches the Land.

We are afraid of clover. We are afraid to raise it largely; afraid to feed it extensively, especially as a main feed; and afraid to plow it in.

This is wrong, very wrong; we are constantly losing by not growing more clover; losing in many respects. Clover, if we could only impress the fact on the general farmer, is a plant that draws from the atmosphere and enriches the land. Other plants do this, but clover more; it has to do with the most vital and important element in manure, nitrogen, the very thing that is the rarest and most difficult to obtain. It improves the soil by its roots alone, if the crop is used for other purposes; this even if a seed crop is taken. How much more benefit, then, if a whole crop is turned down containing so much nitrogen? And you have the manure without working for it. The plant works for itself and for you. We get its strength from a free source, the atmosphere, the great storehouse that gathers from all sources, but most from the energetic farmer.

And you can make this plant work for you on a poor soil. A little manure applied on the surface will do this; and if plenty of seed is sown there will be a thick set. Then it needs but a chance with the atmosphere and plaster will aid this greatly. With warm showers there will be a growth almost surprising. It will be dense, fine stemmed and of fair length, depending somewhat on the season. Cut this when it begins to lodge, which will be about the time when blossoms appear, and then will be avoided all rot or mildew consequent on long, coarse lodging, and the yield will surprise you—two and a half or three tons, and such hay is not made from any other plant. And the second crop will be nearly or perhaps quite as good as the first.—Live Stock Journal.

THE OLD HORSE.—The old horse requires more time to eat his meals and rest his nerves. Of all animals, the old horse is the worst abused. Although he has been our most faithful and profitable servant, yet in his old age the lash is applied to force out his youthful vigor. The older he grows the more he feels the lash. He is often turned out of doors to give place to the colts. Too often the neglect and abuse he is subjected to, because he is a little old, results in a greater loss than is made up in the care for the young horse. The last part of a horse's life may be more profitable, if rightly used, than the first part. There is more comfort and less danger in working old horses. We understand them and they understand us; and we should be as willing to conform to their nature as they are to conform to our wishes. It would be more humane as well as more profitable to use them as they should be, as long as it would pay, and then take them out and shoot them down. But the wicked practice is to knock them about as much as they will bear and pay well, and then trade them off to some more inhuman wretch than themselves. The old servant is gone among strangers, and he receives no sympathy in his last extremities.

THE WALNUT LEAVES.—The fly, insignificant as in size, and devoid of the power of doing any great harm, is one of the most annoying little pests of all the insect tribe. A nuisance to man, the fly is the terror of the horse, whose flesh is made to quiver whenever the foot of one touches him. It is, therefore, an act of humanity to come to the aid of the horse, powerful as he is, against the nimble assailant, the fly. Here is a recipe which is said to be an excellent defence against it. At all events, a trial of it will not involve much expense, nor will it do harm should it prove unavailing as a defence to the horse.

Take two or three small handfuls of walnut leaves, upon which pour two or three quarts of cold water; let it infuse one night, and pour the whole next morning into a kettle and let it boil for a quarter of an hour; when cold it will be fit for use. No more is required than to moisten a sponge, and before the horse goes out of the stable, let those parts which are the most irritable be smeared over with the liquor, viz.: between and upon the ears, the neck, etc. Not only the lady or gentleman who drives out for pleasure will derive benefit from the walnut leaves thus prepared, but the coachman, the wagoner and all others who use horses during the hot months.

This is one of the "insect years." The West swarms with potato bugs, chinch bugs, and locusts; the Hessian fly and clouds of grasshoppers are devasting the fields of Los Angelos county, Cal.; the black caterpillars are worse in Arkansas than ever known before, and are stripping the leaves of the forest; Virginia planters complain that never were the tobacco flies so numerous and destructive as this season; and throughout the South is dismay at the number, size and vorosity of the mosquitoes.

TO DESTROY WEEDS.—A gentleman who has made experiments as to means of destroying noxious growths on the lawns, such as dock, horseradish, etc., said he succeeded perfectly by cutting with a spade two or three inches below the crowns, and pouring on the part left in the ground, a little kerosene. The sod was dropped back, and the horseradish failed again to put in an appearance. Any troublesome weeds can easily be killed in this way without injuring the grass.

UNQUESTIONABLY the best way to dispose of broom corn seed is to feed it to the fowls. The next best mode is to give it to the sheep; they are fond of it, and fatten upon it nearly as fast as upon Indian corn. Ground with corn, rye, oats or barley, it is profusely fed to cattle, and when mixed with wheat, bran, it is good for milch cows. The Shakers frequently feed it to horses, and at the season of the year when this grain is abundant, they use it exclusively.

THE Rev. Mr. H—— had a large family of unruly boys, but as none of them would confess it, he declared he would whip them all, and then he would be sure to punish the real culprit. Jimmy, the youngest, retired to a corner and grumbled "It is that ren-[illegible] old Herod in the [illegible] pull the way old Herod [illegible] He [illegible] all the children that he would be there to kill Jethroth."

SUSQUEHANNA COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

TOWANDA, BRADFORD COUNTY, PA.

This institution will commence its Seventeenth Year.

MONDAY, AUGUST 26, 1871.

The courses of study are English, Normal, Commercial, Academic, Scientific and Classical, in all of which the instruction is systematic and thorough.

The Principals will be assisted in the various departments by a large and very excellent corps of instructors—three graduates, experienced teachers having been recently engaged—and no effort will be spared to make the institute, in comfort, discipline and general efficiency, second to no other similar institution.

The Musical Department will be under the charge of Professor H. Fr. Johannessen.

This institution is now in thorough repair.

In addition to the extensive improvements during the past year, new apparatus, maps and charts, and most approved patent desks and seats for all the study and recitation rooms have just been purchased.

The Principal of the Normal Department will organize August 28, a Teachers' Class, and by special attention aid to complete the most thorough course possible during the time.

Tuition from $4 to $10. Board and room in the Institute $4. If desirable, students may obtain rooms in town and board themselves. Early application for board and rooms at the Institute should be made, as the rooms are being rapidly engaged.

PHILADELPHIA OPTICAL INSTITUTE, For the manufacturing of CONCAVE CONVEX, CRYSTAL LENSES, LONDON. SMOKED AND TINTED GLASS FOR WEAK OR INFLAMED EYES.

The Concave Convex Crystal Spectacles, made by the above institute are now a long time before the public, and the rapid and increased demand for them combined with the universal acknowledgment of their clearness in vision and ease to the eye, shows plainly that they are superior to any other glasses in the market.

The majority of Spectacles, (mostly imported) and no matter how fine the frames, contain but a poor and worthless article of glasses, (generally cast or pressed;) they are made to be sold only, without any calculation respecting benefit to the eye, and therefore the great complaint of poor and weak sight. Thousands are using glasses now which tire and fatigue the eye, where the objects get dim after short usage, or require an intensely strong light and therefore destroying the sight, which, were they properly suited, would be preserved a life time.

The advantages claimed for the Concave Convex Crystal Glasses are the following:

The Lenses are ground of the best material, pure and hard, and made only for optical purposes, they are therefore not liable to get scratched or dim.

They confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision not found in any other glass.

They can be used equally well by day or candle light without tiring or fatiguing the eyes.

They are ground mathematically true in the concave convex mirror, according to the philosophy of nature, and shape of corner of the eye, therefore assisting nature only instead of forcing it.

That the lenses are centered correct into the frames.

They can be used longer than any other glasses without changing to a higher power.

The frames are made strong and durable by experienced workmen and warranted to give satisfaction.

WM. A. CHAMBERLIN, Dealer in Watches, Jewelry and Silver Ware, Towanda, Pa., has the sole Agency for these glasses in Bradford county. No Peddlers employed.

TAYLOR'S CELEBRATED OIL!

The Great Rheumatic Remedy should be kept and used by every Farmer that keeps either Cattle or Horses, every Teamster and Livery Stable Keeper, every Physician and Horse Farier for it will many times cure pain and lameness when all other medicines have failed. Sinners and Railroad Men should certainly keep it, for it is unsurpassed for bruises and sprains. Blacksmiths should keep it for their own use and for their customers tender footed horses, as nothing equals it for tender feet. Every body suffering from pain and lameness of any kind, burns, cuts, wounds or any eruption of the skin, Corns, Chilblains or any disease requiring an outward application should certainly keep this celebrated medicine. Every bottle warranted to give satisfaction. For sale by Dr. H. C. Porter Son & Co, Porter & Kirby and F. W. Bunnell, druggists, Towanda Pa. And by every Druggist and dealer in Bradford and adjoining counties.
