MARK TWAIN IN A RAILROAD CAR

I got into the cars and took a seat in juxtaposition to a female. The female's face was a perfect insurance company for her—it insured her against ever getting married to anybody except a blind man. Her mouth looked like a crack in a dry lemon, and there was no more expression than there is in a cup of dry custard. She appeared as though she had been through one famine and got about two-thirds through another. She was old enough to be a great grandmother to Mary that had a little lamb. She was chewing prize pop corn, and carried in her hand a yellow rose, while a bandbox and cotton umbrella nestled sweetly by her side. I couldn't guess whether she was on a mission of charity or was going West to start a saw-mill. I was full of curiosity to hear her speak, so I said:

"The exigencies of the times require great circumspection in a person who is traveling."

Said she, "What?"

Says I, "The orb of day shines resplendent in the vault above."

She hitched around uneasy like, then she raised her cotton umbrella and said: "I don't want any of your sass—git out"; and I got out. Then I took a seat alongside a mild fellow, who loved to see the ghost of Hamlet lengthen out. He was a stately cuss, and he was reading.

Said I, "Mister, did you ever see a camel-leopard?" I said camel-leopard, because it is a pious animal, and never eats any grass without getting down upon its knees.

He said he had n't seen a camel-leopard.

Then said I, "Do you chew?"

He said, "No sir."

Then said I, "How sweet is nature."

He took this for a conundrum, and said he did n't know. Then he said he was deeply interested in the history of a great man. "Alas! we have but few."

I told him I knew one: "The man that made cooking stoves was a grate man."

Then he asked, "would I read?"

Says I, "What have you got?"

He replied. "Watt's Hymns,' 'Reveries by Moonlight,' and 'How to spend the Sabbath.'"

I said, "none of them for Hannah," but if he had an unabridged business directory of New York city, I would take a little read.

Then he said, "Young man, look at these gray hairs."

I told him I saw them, and when a man got as old as he was, he ought to dye. Said I, "You need n't think those hairs are any sign of wisdom, it's only a sign that your system lacks iron, and I would advise you to go home and swallow a crowbar."

He took this for irony, and what little entente cordial there was between us was spilled. It turned out he was chiaplain of a base ball club.

CEYLON.—The island of Ceylon is very beautiful, the scenery lovely, and the soil productive in spices and many kinds of fruit; indeed, it is said that it alone might produce sufficient coffee for the consumption of the entire world. The natives, however, are far from pleasing. They are generally of short stature, very effeminate looking apathetic, and such liars that it is impossible to depend upon their word. If they may but repose for hour after hour under a tree, with a piece of bread-fruit beside them, they seem to care for little else. The men wear their hair turned up behind with a comb, the height of the comb denoting the rank of the wearer. This, and the small features, gives them altogether such an effeminate appearance, that it is difficult for a European to distinguish them from the females. A visitor lately entered one of the schools, and, seeing a row of boys with their backs towards him, and each with a comb in his head, unconsciously asked if the boys and girls were educated together. One of the natives of high rank was lately called on to give evidence at a trial, and swore such complete falsehoods, that he was imprisoned for perjury. He applied to the English Government, and, with surprise, asked why he should be punished for what his people did. "My father," he said, "was a liar, and my grandfather was a liar, and we are all liars. It is the custom of my country. Why should I be punished?"

WHY BREEDS OF SHEEP RUN OUT.—A recent writer says that if growers of combing wools raising sheep primarily to produce mutton, should attend to the breed, and keep their sheep well fed, and care for them generally; and should also try to mature them early so as to sell the carcass. We should have wool from well-fed, young, healthy, strong, well-bred fat sheep, which is just the wool wanted for combing and delaine purposes. Farmers cannot keep these large sheep on lean pastures with but little care of them and have good wool. The great reason the combing wool sheep run out when brought from England and Canada is that they do not get the same care and treatment they had in those countries, and are often kept on soil they are not adapted to, and are not fed sufficiently. The wool from Leicester sheep that have been in the United States two years is generally harsher, leaner, and worth much less than it would have been if the sheep had stayed in Canada or England. Now this will not always be so, for growers will yet learn that these large sheep need more to eat than the small Merino, and their food should not consist of Indian corn, but they should have some roots, mangel-wurzel and oil-cake. When sheep are fed on corn they are too hot and feverish and the wool becomes harsh and brittle, while a proper supply of roots and oilcake with other food would produce soft, sound, and elastic.

BUDDHIST ASTRONOMY.—The Buddhists suppose the earth to be on the back of an elephant, the stars remaining still, with no motion. The diurnal motion of the heavens is only apparent, and the fixed stars are seen by their reflected images in water. In a conversation with a traveler a reputedly wish priest said about the deluge that he knew nothing of such a catastrophe as Noah's flood or Deucalion's. He was quiet astonished when mention was made of finding fossil fishes in the solid rocks. He had neither seen or read of such a strange discovery. Further, it occurred to him that Tangutian books makes mention of several cataclysms. That the world was carried about on an elephant's back was not questioned among learned men of his order.

An Historical summary of the Origin, Growth, and Perfection of the Chief Industrial Arts of this country.

1300 PAGES AND 500 ENGRAVINGS,

Written by 20 Eminent Authors including John B. Gough, Leon Case, Edward Howland, Joe. H. Lyman, Rev. E. Edwin Hall, Horace Greeley, Philip Ripley, Albert Brisbaine, F. R. PERKINS, ect., etc.

This work is a complete history of all branches of industry, processes of manufacture, etc., in all ages. It is a complete encyclopedia of arts and manufactures, and is the most entertaining and valuable work for information on subjects of general interest ever offered to the public. It is adapted to the wants of the Merchant, Manufacturer, Mechanic, Farmer, Student, and inventor, and sells to both old and young of both classes. The book is sold by agents who are making large sales in all parts of the country. It is offered at the low price of $3 50 and is the cheapest book ever sold by subscription. No family should be without a copy. We want Agents in every town of the United States, and no agent can fail to do well with this book. Our terms are liberal. We give our agents the exclusive right of territory. One of our agents sold 123 copies in eight days, another sold 368 in two weeks. Our agent in Hartford sold 397 in one week. Specimens of the work sent to agents on receipt of stamp. For circulars and terms to agents address the publishers, J. B. BURR & HYDE, Hartford, Conn., Chicago, Ill., or Cincinnati, Ohio.
