Profit in Farming.

We take the following extract from an adress delivered before the Kishwankee (Ill.,) farmer's club:

"Profit in farming consists not only in dollars and cents. The intelligent farmer who loves his business and successfully rears his family in spite of insects, drought or storms, and at the same time increases the fertility of his soil without being engulfed in a whirlpool of debt, is really richer in true manhood and life usefulness than many millionaire, with his ill-gotten gains. We do not expect and hardly expect to convince each other that any one branch of farm pursuit is so much more profitable than others as to make us rush pell-mell to that branch, for which, perhaps, neither apitude nor education in farm life fit for us. Of course, as a body of intelligent gentlemen, we expect to learn many things from our comparison of views and statement of facts. For one, I shall be content if we show to each other several methods by which farmers with ordinary intelligence and without to constant and excessive toil can secure enough of this world's goods to make life happy, home cheerful, our children intelligent, and an accumulating safety-fund for our declining years.

"I would not have farmers all rich, if I could, for very few of the rich men are such as we delight to honor; but I would gladly see that day of jubilee, that must have so cheered the ancient world, when debts were banished from existence. This great northwest, so aptly styled the garden of the world, is crippled from debt, till great masses of farmers are not really free men. Farmers owe the merchant, and hence, in a measure, feel compelled to trade on, in spite, it may be, of excessive prices. The implement vender has many a farmer's note running on at ten per cent, piled on top, perhaps, of a fifty per cent. profit to start with; hence, such vendor agent has almost complete control of many who dare not assert their freedom for fear of consequences. We have settled this goodly land, endured many hardships, toiled early and late to rear our families and provide comfortable homes for coming years; and, while I rejoice in the success of many, still I cannot close my eyes to the painful fact that more than half the farmers of the west are slaves of debt. Farm mortgages and notes, with high rates of interest, are rapidly eating out their substance. Now if in our discussions we can suggest any branch or branches of farming that will tend to lift the struggling farmer from his difficulties—point out to him a more excellent way—we shall have accomplished a good work."

Barn, Stable and Yard.

A New Hampshire journal declares that the speediest way to cure the epizootic and make a horse thoroughly happy is to give him onions. In proof thereof the case is cited of a Portsmouth horse which had a severe attack of the disease, and whose owner placed a half dozen onions in the crib with his regular food. The horse ate three of the onions immediately, and by the time he had swallowed them began to cough and sneeze and prance about, and angrily refused to touch those that remained. For full five minutes he flowed at the nose, and then—he was a cured horse. He has not had a cough, a sneez, nor any symptom of the epizootic since, but he did have the courage to eat the onions remaining in the crib the next day after the cure.

Now that the season of snow and ice is soon to begin—if, indeed, it shall not already have set in by the time this meets the eye of the reader—we are reminded of a letter written last year to the London Times by Veterinary Surgeon George Fleming, describing a simple device for preparing horse shoes for slippery streets which he had tried extensively and with marked success. It consists of a simple square steel stud two or three inches long, one end of which is pointed; the other end, which has a very slight taper, fits tightly into a hole of corresponding size, at the extremity of each branch or "heel" of the shoe, reaching nearly to, but not above, its surface. When the horses are shod, square holes are punched in the shoes. The studs are kept in readiness, and, as soon as the roads get slippery, are inserted into each hole; a slight tap with a hammer serves to fasten them, while the weight of the horse drives them in and keeps them in place. Owing to the slight taper on that part of the steel stud which fits into the shoe, it can be easily taken out and sharpened at any time. The studs last a long time; and the simplicity and efficiency of the whole plan have attracted wide attention among English horse owners.

Keeping Apples through the Winter.

Mr. Alexander Hyde, a well known agriculturist of Massachusetts, communicates to the New York Times some useful suggestions in regard to keeping apples through the winter. One method is to wrap each apple in a bit of newspaper, the paper serving both to keep out the air and prevent the apples from bruising in transportation. A method more effectual still is to fill the barrel nearly full of apples, and then put in some fine, dry sand, or powdered plaster, and shake it down gently. This will fill up all the interstices between the apples, and keep them fresh indefinitely. Another mode is to put the apples in some dry, sandy or gravelly soil, just as turnips and potatoes are pitted. On this point Mr. Hyde says: "They will keep splendidly through the winter when thus pitted, but must be used speedily in the spring when dug out, as they will rot soon after exposure to the light and air. In order to pit apples select some dry spot where there is no possibility of water filling the pit, and dig a hole three or four feet deep and of any required size, place some clean, dry straw on the bottom, and on this, the apples to the depth of two feet, covering the whole with a layer of straw and then a layer of dry earth, raising the latter above the general level of the ground and sloping it roof fashion, so that it will shed rain. The apples will come out in the spring as crisp as cabbage when pitted in this way.

The Placer (Cal) Herald says that Dr. Crandall, of Auburn, in the same state, lately cut from one of the trees in his garden a single twig containing thirteen pears, of the aggregate weight of fourteen pounds. The bough from which it was taken is a graft of the Beurre Easter species. The graft was of only two summers growth.

SUNNY TEACHING.

An Address delivered before the State Teachers' Association of Pennsylvania.

BY G. HARRY DAVIS.

Yes, I love sunshine, I love flowers, and I love children. Nature teaches me that sunshine is necessary for the blossom, the bloom and the development of flowers. Experience teaches me that sunshine is necessary for the blossom, the bloom, and the development of children.

Children sometimes flourish in the unnatural heat of the nursery, and are beautiful in the whiteness of fine linen and the jewels of wealth, but they grow up pale and sickly, wearily dragging their life's work behind them, or an early death kisses them away to the sunlight of the upper world, that they may bloom there as they could not here.

And this is true of the sunshine that sparkles in the face and the deportment of the teacher, and he or she is the most successful in your proud vocation who carries on each succeeding morning to the class, and to each and every scholar thereof, a bright and smiling face and a happy heart. It may seem presumption to stand before the combined experience assembled here and strive to teach the teacher. But you will believe me when I disavow such intention. I no not aim to be a Mentor, but truth is truth, and sometimes "the weak things of this world" are used to confound the mighty.

My years are yet few enough to keep the memory of my school-boy days bright, and their experience has taught me that what I have before said is true, and I repeat it.

The most successful teacher, other requisites being equal, is he or she who is the brightest and cheeriest teacher, who rules the class by the law of love, and lives a life of sunshine. Much more can be accomplished by a firm but gentle discipline with the scholar, than by either ridicule or uncalled-for severity. The dunce of the school can be converted into a hard-working student by a kind word, after floggings have failed; the dullard be made an eager learner by encouragement, when all other devices known to the profession have been found useless; and the laggard in the race can be spurred into competition by a smile, when the unsuccessful rod has been laid aside. Honest, persistent, and earnest effort, in a kindly way, will win for the teacher a success in that vocation that will come in no other way. It is so in all the varied forms of life. It is true in the nursery of the home, and true in the nursery of the school. A kind word—a soft answer—will sometimes form a character into nobility and usefulness, that would otherwise sink into the slough of despond, and be lost in the mire of crime and ignorance. I can pick out such, who taught me when a boy, and their classes flourished accordingly.

Well do I remember the ratan in the hands of the hasty and forbidding, and the vows of vengeance that would have oftener become realities, but that the boy is weaker than the man.

The scholar is not an enemy, but every post should be guarded and sentried, lest the exuberance of youth burst forth. The class-room is not a battle-field, save for the good contentions of intellect, where mind against mind shall flash out the bright thoughts of cultured genius. He is an embryo man, and his teacher should be his best friend. And friendship is joy, and a sunny teacher is a joyous friend. His mind is in your keeping, that you shall culture it, and foster it, and develop it,—a flower to bud and bloom and blossom under your care, till, in the beauty of its development, its fragrance permeates the air around, and spreads a high and holy influence to the outermost circle, blessing you and your work, or hangs on the stem a lifeless, withered thing, devoid of both beauty and fragrance, a monument to your indiscretion or want of heart.

Do not think for a moment that I deem the class-room the place for merriment, or the study hour the time for jokes. Nay, I believe in discipline firm and steady, but the discipline of affection, and I find far better disciplinarians among my sunny friends, than among those bears who snarl, and growl and show their teeth at every circumstance that ruffles them.

Are there such among you? There were once. Those who believed the chief end of the pedagogue to be to flog his scholars and drive knowledge to the brain through the medium of the back, or drop it into stinging palms from the end of a rod. I deny it. This world is not a waste wilderness. It is God's acae, wherein are blooming flowers that will be radient with the brightest beauty in the gardens above. It is not a "vale of tears," save to those who would make it so. It is the great and glorious thought of God, whose name is Love. It is the echo of that voice that went over the waste of waters in the far-off misty creation. It is the world that was evolved from God by God, upon which He looked and was satisfied, as it sung its birth anthem of gratitude and praise. It is a "light" and beautiful world, filled with loved and loving hearts, with heroes and heroines, with good and noble men and women. It is the bright and beautiful threshold to that better world up above the clouds, where the angels dwell and sing, and the sun always shines, and the flowers bloom, and the children are all joy and happiness.

Take it thus in your hearts, and when you stand before your classes remember it, and they will catch from you at least the reflection of your joy, and be joyous with you.

You cannot always praise, and without an effort you cannot always be happy; but let your praise be frequent, your blame judicious. I would have even your censure mixed with praise. Seek for words of commendation and reward, and so mix the medicine, sometimes necessarily given, with honey, that though the disease be reached, the patient flinches not at the dose. The repulsive pills of the olden profession have given place to the sugar-coated ones of the new—the dose is less nauseous, the benefit greater.

There is something more in teaching than the paltry dollars and cents received for services rendered. Your compensation is little enough, and too often grudgingly given, and that a man's or woman's brains and experience should be dealt with as a shopmen deals with the goods upon his counter, is a disgrace to the enlightenment of the day. If this were all the reward of your work, if it be only that of the daily laborer, if there be no higher encouragement, then your motto might be, "The least amount of work for the greatest sum of money."

But it is not. You are preparing those arround you for the great work of their lives; you are brightening up the weapons with which they shall fight great battles and achieve noble victories.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Cold, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

The few compositions, which have won the confidence of mankind and become household words, among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues, never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of Coughs, Colds, and Consumption that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well founded if the remedy be taken in season. Every family should have it in their closets for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

TASTELESS MEDICINES.

A prominent New York physician lately consulted to DUNDAS DICK & CO. about their SANDALWOOD OIL CAPSULES, stating that sometimes they cured miraculously, but that a patient of his had taken them without effect. On being informed that several imitations were sold, he inquired and found his patient had not been taking DUNDAS DICK & CO'S.

What happened to this physician may have happened to others, and DUNDAS DICK & CO. take this method of protecting physicians, druggists, and themselves, and preventing OIL OF SANDALWOOD from coming into disrepute.

PHYSICIANS who once prescribe the Capsules will continue to do so, for they contain the pure Oil, in the best and cheapest form.

DUNDAS DICK & CO. use more OIL OF SANDALWOOD than all the Wholesale and Retail Druggists and Perfumers in the United States combined and this is the sole reason why the pure Oil is sold cheaper in their capsules than in any other form.

OIL OF SANDALWOOD is fast superceeding every other remedy, sixty Capsules only being required to insure a safe and certain cure in six or eight days. From no other medicine can this result be had.

DUNDAS DICK & CO.'S SOFT CAPSULES solve the problem, long considered by eminent physicians, of how to avoid the nausea and disgust experienced in swallowing, which are well known to retract from, if not destroy, the good effects of many valuable remedies.

Soft Capsules are put up in tin-foil and neat boxes, thirty in each, and are the only Capsules prescribed by physicians.

TASTELESS MEDICINES.—Castor oil and many other nauseous medicines can be taken easily and safely in DUNDAS DICK & CO'S SOFT CAPSULES. No Taste to Smell.

These were the only capsules admitted to the last Paris Exposition.

FOR SALE—CHEAP AND ON CONVENIENT TERMS.

A blacksmith and wagon shop, with a twenty feet water power attached. A very desirable location for business.

The shops are large and convenient, with necessary machinery for carrying on an extensive business. A small new dwelling house and one acre of land attached.

ALSO—One other water power on the same stream, with a twenty-five feet wheel, with saw and lath mill, all in good running order. This property will be sold together with five acres of land on which the mill stands.

ALSO—A HOTEL PROPERTY, with a large two and one-half story house, with back buildings. Main building 60x32 feet, with large and convenient barn. This property will be sold with one or more acres of land, to suit purchaser.

ALSO—A FARM containing about 150 acres of land, all improved except 5 acres; two dwelling houses, two orchards, large cattle barn, horse barn, wagon house and sheds thereon. This property is in a high state of cultivation, and the quality of the land unsurpassed in the county.

The above described property is all desirably located and convenient to Lehigh Valley Rail Road.

ARUNDEL TINTED.

These Lenses have the power of Protecting the Eye from IRRITATION arising from Light, accompanied by Heat. Under Wilson's American and English letters patent.

REASONS WHY THE

ARUNDEL TINTED SPETACLES

SHOULD BE PREFERRED TO ALL OTHERS:

They have the power of Arresting the Heat-Rays of Solar and Artificial Light before entering the Eye.

They are Violet Tinted, yet so constructed that when applied to the Eye appear colorless.

The high and low numbers are the same tint.
