CARE OF SUCKING COLTS.

Those who raise colts, usually exercise care in selection of good stock to breed from, but many greatly neglect to give the colts proper attention during hot weather, while they are running with dams. It is not uncommon to see those that were healthy and well developed in early summer, looking puny and poor, and their hair falling off, before autumn. This trouble arises from allowing the colt to draw milk while the blood of the mare is in a high state of heat from violent exertion.

When the dam is used in hot weather upon the farm or road, so as to heat her blood, the colt should never be allowed to suck until she has fully cooled off. Let him fill himself before the mother is put into the harness, and if it is important that he should accompany the dam, tie him at her side so that he will be unable to draw milk until he is liberated; for it is much better that he should go hungry a few hours, than to take his food while it is in a fevered state.

If the mare is to make a long distance in a hot day, and return at night, it is best to leave the colt at home, and draw the milk from the udder by hand once or twice during the day, and, upon returning, then allow the colt to fill himself gradually as the milk is secreted.

Colts injured by heated milk seldom recover from it for a year or two, and many times never. They become reduced in flesh, get lousy in the fall, and during the first winter of their existence, when they need health and strength, as under any circumstances it is the most critical period of their growth, they have life just enough to enable them to move, and the second summer, the proper time for development, is spent in the recuperation of lost vitality.—Horseman's Manual.

TOBACCO NOT AN IMPOVERISHER.—There is a class of agricultural writers who, in common with a large class of moralists, thinking the use of tobacco an evil, feel called on to discourage its cultivation. We are no apologist for "the weed," and have no wish to encourage the extension of its growth. But we object to the system of morality which does evil that good may come, even in very small matters, and when these good folks wish to write down tobacco, we are not willing they should do it by saying what is not so. They have tried the "morality" argument on their Connecticut friends, for instance, and it has proved a dead failure. A paragraph now before us, in a letter written from the Valley of the Connecticut, says incidentally of a township: "About ninety of the farmers here are engaged in the culture of tobacco. Some fifteen or twenty do not raise tobacco, being what are called "conscience men." The favorite argument now is the "destruction of the land," the "terribly exhausting character of the crop." Poor old Virginia and her worn hillsides are, for these arguers, fertile of proofs at least. Lately they are backed up by a Boston chemist, said to be of some note, who proves plainly, by chemical analysis, that a single crop of tobacco is greatly more exhausting than continuous crops of wheat and corn.

This argument will avail much with the ignorant, and keep many from entering upon tobacco culture who might otherwise be tempted to do so. With people of common sense and observation, familiar with tobacco growing, it will have as little effect as the "morality" argument in Connecticut. A letter in The Southern Planter from the famous Danville tobacco region says, what may be confirmed by thousands practically familiar with the subject: "I agree entirely with W. A. G., that tobacco is not an impoverisher but an improver of the soil, for I have observed all my life—and I am now an old man—that corn, wheat, &c., succeeded better after tobacco than any other crop. The finest highland corn I have ever made was on fresh land which had been in tobacco the two preceding years, no manure having been applied to the land. Old tobacco lots were alike successful.

PRUNING TOMATOES.—A good deal has been said within the last few weeks respecting the necessity and mode of pruning tomatoes, which we regard as just so much bosh. After awhile they will get to pruning egg plants and onions. We have cultivated tomatoes for over twenty years, have grown them in every possible way, and we have never yet lacked a full crop of fruit, without pruning. For a few years we have cultivated them on strong branches of trees, which this year are in some instances nine feet high, partially trimmed. The tomatoes—Fejees—are now two-thirds of the way up, and will crown them in a little while. By this method the vines have full play, so have the sun and air; and if you can't get large, perfect, and an abundance of fruit of the finest quality, we are at a loss to tell you how to do so. The fruit already upon these branches or poles, will give some indication as to what the general crop will be, and we invite all interested to examine them. We should like to see the man who would attempt to prune our tomatoes!

We used tomatoes from our own garden for the first time on the twelfth; and corn, Adam's extra early, on the sixteenth ultimo.—Germantown Telegraph.

BEST GRASS FOR BUTTER.—If you aim at a great flow of milk, feed clover; if you wish rich milk, and well flavored butter, feed young timothy and white clover; if you aim at the best results, both in quantity and quality, clover and timothy in summer, and early cut timothy and wheat bran in winter. The grass must be cut when heading out; or better, young aftermath well cured. Avoid roots and garden stuff in general, if you wish a good quality of butter—though it is now held that those fed while milking or immediately before, will remedy the evil.

MANURE is never so valuable as when it is fresh. It then holds in association not only all the fixed soluble substances, natural to the solid excrement, but much that is of great value found only in the liquid. It is in a condition to quickly undergo chemical change, and the gaseous, ammoniacal products secured are double those resulting from that which has been weathered in a heap out of doors for several months.—Boston Journal of Chemistry.

A GOOD REMEDY.—We know of nothing better for cracks in cows' teats, to which they are very much subject when first turned to pasture, than glycerine; one or two applications of which will heal them up. The teats should be well washed with a suds made of castile soap—itself of cleansing, healing application—and the glycerine put on at night after milking.—Maine Farmer.

MEDICAL.

DRS. D. FAHRNEY & SONS' celebrated preparation for

CLEANSING THE BLOOD.

The long and favorably known preparation of Drs. D. Fahrney & Son for cleansing the blood, needs at this day no recommendation at our hands, its virtues having been established by the thousands of cases where it has given relief in the

during the last sixty years. So highly indeed is it esteemed, that the demand is constantly increasing, not only at home, but we are daily receiving applications for it from the most remote sections of the country—North, East, South, and West. To meet this demand, as well as to prevent the public from being imposed upon, we have determined to put this in such a form that it may be within reach of everybody everywhere.

Other preparations, far inferior to the genuine, having been put out by certain parties, have been mistaken by some for our own, and as a matter of course the old Preparation of D. Fahrney & Son has been made to suffer some in reputation; therefore to prevent this mistake, as well as to meet the increasing demand mentioned above, we have concluded to send the medicine out in

LIQUID FORM.

We will also at the same time put out the original in package form for the benefit of some of our old customers and others who may yet prefer the medicine as first prepared. Not recommending it to cure all diseases the human body is heir to, but as a family medicine, and for all diseases originating from impure blood and disordered liver, it has no equal; and will cure the following diseases:

Scrofula, cutaneous diseases, erysipelas, boils, sore eyes, scald head, pimples on the face, tetter affections, old and stubborn ulcers, rheumatic affections, dyspepsia, costiveness, sick headache, jaundice, salt rheum, general debility, mercurial diseases, foul stomach, together with all other disorders arising from impure blood, and disordered liver, &c., &c., prepared by Drs. D Fahrney & Son, Boonsboro', Maryland, and Dr. P. Fahrney, Keedysville, Md. Sold by all druggists and merchants generally. None genuine unless signed D. Fahrney & Son. Sold by W. F. Horn, druggist, Carlisle; S. S. Huber, druggist, Newville; James A. Clark, Lees Cross Roads; J. Jno C. Attig, druggist, Shippensburg.

WILCOX & GIBBS'

SEWING MACHINE

We have secured the Agency of the Wilcox & Gibbs' Sewing Machine, a little family arrangement no one seems willing to do, without after having seen one in operation. The Wilcox & Gibbs' is a Single Thread Machine and claims superiority over all Double Thread Machines in the following particulars. It is simpler and less liable to get out of repair. It is cheaper. It runs with less noise. It runs easier. It runs faster. It has the best device for preventing the wheel from running backwards. It requires less mechanical skill to operate it. It requires less time and instruction to learn to use it. It is the most certain and reliable in its operations. Its needle is straight and less liable to be broken than a curved one. The needle is secured in its place by an ingeniously patented device which renders it self adjusting so that neither skill nor experience are required in arranging it. It sews directly from the spool thus doing away with the tedious operation of rewinding the thread for adjustment in the shuttle. It makes the Wilcox & Gibbs' or "twisted loop stitch," a stitch original with this machine and made by no other, the seam is more elastic and stronger than the lock Stitch. The seam is the most even and beautiful, the seam is always self-fastened thus avoiding a reversible feed. Its tension is more simple and more easily adjusted. It is more speedily changed from one kind of work to another, it does beautiful embroidery, it has the best hemmer, it has the best filler, it has the best braider, it has the best belt. The Wilcox & Gibbs has been in the market for a little more eight years, during which time upwards of sixty thousand have been made and sold, a number by fifty per cent larger than were sold of any Double Thread Machine in the same number of its earliest years such success is sufficient to warrant the sale of this Machine wherever it has an Agency without the doubling evidence of testimonials, of which there are enough to fill up the columns in the land. These Machines are on exhibition at our store, No. 26, North Hanover street, Carlisle, where they may be examined, and they will take great pleasure in explaining anything relating to it.

Respectfully &c.,

MILLER & BOWERS,
