State of State and County to Work Near Island Heights

ISLAND HEIGHTS, N. J., April 9.—Just how much can be accomplished in the extermination of mosquitoes along the New Jersey coast will be determined by an experiment to be entered into jointly by the State and Ocean County to ditch the Mullica River meadows. The State proposed to dig 75,000 feet and the county about 200,000 feet.

A large force of men will be kept constantly on the grounds and specialists will make frequent inspections to determine to what extent the insects are being exterminated.

Roosevelt Home Menaced by Fire

OYSTER BAY, April 9.—Sagamore Hill, the home of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, was menaced by fire when Wake Robin, the summer home of George T. Maxwell, just below the brow of Sagamore Hill, was burned to the ground.

NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENS

My dear Children—The soft breath of spring was in the air as the little boy went among the flowers and picked one here and there. When he had a handful he went into the house and hunted for his mother.

The sun was sinking in the west and the gathering shadows played hide and seek around his mother's head while now and then a stray bit of sunshine kissed her face.

The little boy found her as she sat there and gave her the flowers and then he put his arms around her and said: "Mother, no matter what happens, I LOVE YOU."

Is there someone YOU love—no matter what happens? I hope so.

Lovingly, FARMER SMITH.

STRANGE ADVENTURES OF BILLY BUMPUS

"THE SKY BIRD"

By Farmer Smith

"Oh, look!

"Peterkin, look, look, LOOK!"

Baby June Duck pointed high up in the sky and sure enough! A great big something was whirring through the air.

It took but a minute for Peter Duck and Baby June to run to the bottom of the tree where their home was located. Sitting and looking up first one and then the other shouted: "Look! A sky bird is coming."

Father Duck had just settled himself after breakfast in his Morris chair and was reading the Woodland News when he heard the noise outside. He hurriedly looked out the window and when he saw his two children pointing in the direction of the sky he ran to the other window and looked up also. What he saw astonished him. Never before had he heard such a noise, and besides, he thought he was familiar with all the birds which fly in the air.

"Mother! Mother!" he shouted. "There is a motorboat high up in the air. Come and see."

Mother Duck was making bread and she ran right into the room where her husband was and carried the dough with her.

"What on earth is the matter?" she asked.

"Look up in the sky," said Father Duck excitedly.

"I can't see without my glasses," replied Mother Duck. But she was so nervous she wiped her eyes with the bread dough and then looked.

Sure enough! There WAS something high up in the air and it was coming as fast as it could and SUCH a noise.

"What is it?" she shouted down to the children.

"It's a sky bird," shouted back Baby June.

"Come up here quickly!" she shouted again. Baby June and Peter did as they were commanded. Soon all the rest of the ducklings were in the home and all craning their necks and trying to tell what the great big whirring thing was which moved so swiftly through the air.

In the meantime, Mister Jay Bird had caught sight of the swift-moving object and called to his wife.

"What is it?" asked Mrs. Jay Bird.

"Come! Come!"

"But I can't leave the babies," shouted back Mrs. Jay Bird, as she cuddled her little ones all the closer.

"You MUST come. There is a great big bird whirring in the air and you must come and see it. Bring along the babies with you." Mister Jay Bird was so excited at what he saw that he jumped up and down in his eagerness to get a better view of the strange thing.

It was not long before Mister Jay Bird, his wife and the babies were as high in the tree as they could get, and while Mrs. Jay Bird tried to make the babies see the huge thing in the sky she was not able to do so. This provoked her husband and she had to quiet him with:

"You must not expect little folks to be as wise as you. They are young and not interested in everything you are. You are too interested in yourself for your own good."

Just at that moment Billy Bumpus came out of his home and when he heard the noise he looked up in the sky and then suddenly darted into his home, soon to return, dragging his wife behind him.

And what DO you think that "sky bird" was?
