BOARD OF SEVEN WILL RUN ROADS

New Era in American Railway History Begins Today in Pittsburgh

POOL THIRTY-EIGHT LINES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.

Seven of the keenest railway operating executives in the country left here at 2 a. m. today for Pittsburgh, where tomorrow they inaugurate a new era in American railroad history. They will run the thirty-eight big railroads east of Chicago and north of the Ohio-Potomac rivers line as one system to relieve congestion and help win the war.

Watchful of the efforts of this new committee of seven operating railway vice presidents will be the Government. It consents to the revolutionary pooling of equipment in hope that the most serious transportation congestion in the country's history will be relieved.

Failure by these measures, even the railroad executives admit, may lead to Federal control. While this would operate virtually in the same hands, even more radical measures to expedite freight and eliminate duplication of equipment on parallel lines would follow.

Before leaving for Pittsburgh, Chairman A. W. Thompson, vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio, stated the prevention of future congestion will be based mainly on emergency routing. That is the reason for placing of the committee also such practical and technical operating experts as A. J. Stone, of the Erie; Carl Gray, Western Maryland; P. E. Crowley, New York Central; Elisha Lee and G. L. Peck, Pennsylvania, and A. T. Dice, Philadelphia and Reading.

They face the task of operating as a unit 122,050 miles of tracks, 27,000 locomotives, 1,250,000 freight cars, 25,000 passenger cars and 200,000 employes.

The proposed solution is elimination of routing by the shipper. The committee will order which lines are to be used in certain zones and will direct freight into the least crowded channels. New and shorter routes between important centers will be devised. Much export freight will be ordered away from congested lines into new ports. Cross hauls of coal will be eliminated.

Negotiations already have been opened with various State railroad commissions and Federal departments for their necessary co-operation. A Government freight director to look after speedy movement of munitions and shipbuilding materials also is under consideration.

LA VITTORIA ARRIDE ALLE TRUPPE ITALIANE

Ovunque gli Austro-Tedeschi Sono Stati Respinti dai Valorosi Soldati Italiani

ROMA, 27 novembre.

Notizie giunte stamane dalla fronte di battaglia annunziano che tormente di neve imperversano sulla montagne al nord e sono di aiuto per gli Italiani nel mantenere indietro gli invasori. Forti nevicate hanno costretto il nemico a desistere dal muovere le grosse artiglierie, come pure gli sono stati impossibili gli spostamenti dei rinforzi.

Gli italiani, abituati a combattere sulle montagne, ripetono i loro violenti attacchi contro il nemico al quale non danno tregua giorno e notte.

I rinforzi inglesi per le linee italiane sono quasi pronti per entrare nelle trincee. Essi con marce forzate sono giunti sulla fronte italiana, ansiosi di combattere il comune nemico.

Dalle notizie ufficiali si rileva che durante la giornata di ieri l'altro gli italiani in ogni loro operazione e nel respingere i furiosi attacchi del nemico riuscirono sempre vittoriosi. Gli austro-tedeschi diressero i loro sforzi principalmente contro le posizioni italiane tra il Brenta ed il Piave e gli alpini del battaglione "Monte Rosa" con indomito valore aumentarono riparti nemici che invano tentarono di conquistare il Monte Tasson.

Numerosi contingenti di truppe teutoniche vigorosamente attaccarono verso il centro delle linee italiane ove la eroica cinquantasessima divisione seppe valorosamente resistere al poderoso urto nemico che respinse con gravi perdite pel nemico. Altre e forti colonne di austro-tedeschi attaccarono in direzione di Monte Casonet, Col dell'Orso, Monte San Larolo e Monte Spinoncia, e furono decimate dal violento fuoco delle artiglierie e dei fucilieri italiani. I quali attrattaccarono furiosamente e le posero in fuga, non senza aver inflitto al nemico gravissime perdite e catturato oltre 200 prigionieri.

Anche sulle pendici orientali di Monfenera gli austro-tedeschi furono annientati dal fuoco delle artiglierie italiane e ripetatamente attaccati dai valorosi alpini italiani furono respinti e posti quasi in fuga. Anche qui gli italiani poterono catturare parecchi prigionieri.

Ecco il testo del comunicato del Comando Supremo Italiano, pubblicato ieri dal Ministero della Guerra in Roma:

Nella giornata di ieri masse nemiche, sostenute dal fuoco delle grosse artiglieri, tentarono nuovamente di attaccare le nostre posizioni tra i fiumi Brenta e Piave.

Sulla nostra ala sinistra gli sforzi del nemico furono diretti contro la zona di Monte Pertica. Essi furono prontamente schiacciati e con violenti e bene eseguiti contrattacchi rispondemmo ad ogni nuovo tentativo dell'avversario. Sul Tasson il battaglione Alpini "Monte Rosa" annientò gli assalitori.

Al nostro centro, dove la pressione del nemico fu assai vigorosa, la 56. ma Divisione fu pari alla sua invidiabile fama. Le colonne nemiche che furiosamente e tenacemente attaccarono dal nord e nord-ovest in direzione di Monte Casonet, Col dell'Orso, Monte San Larolo, e Monte Spinoncia, vennero fulminate dal nostro fuoco, ripetutamente affrontate con furiosi contrattacchi e definitivamente respinte, lasciando più di 200 prigionieri nelle nostre mani.

Sulla nostra ala destra gli attacchi del nemico partirono dalle pendici orientali di Monte Monfenera. Le ondate assalitrici furono prima arrestate dai tiri della nostra artiglieria e poi a contrattaccate ripetutamente e respinte definitivamente dai nostri valorosi alpini. Alcuni riparti nemici furono fatti migionieri.

Food Prices Top Heinz's Maximum

between the factors and the United States food administration. It would naturally take more than a few hours, or more than a day, at least, for the retailers to get acquainted with the true conditions and what was expected of them, as they had no direct notice of the new prices. It will take a little time for the retailer to adjust himself, but I have every confidence that when he understands that these prices were fixed by the conference of the food administration and the trade factors he will show his patriotism by adhering to these prices. If any cases of profiteering come to my notice I will certainly take notice of them and do what I can to put a stop to them."

Asked whether or not the retailer would be able to adjust himself to conditions in time for the consumer to get any good out of it in the way of a cheaper Thanksgiving dinner, Mr. Heinz expressed the opinion that he would. He also called attention to the fact that the small retailer, doing a business of less than $100,000 a year, was not under the control of the food administration and not required to obtain a license. Only indirect control could be exercised over the little man, he declared.

Mr. Heinz also stated that it was not the aim of the food administration to control the prices charged by the "fancy" trade. "It is the high cost of living and not the cost of high living that we are trying to control," he said.

Mr. Heinz was again in conference with leading factors in the food trade today, and as a result the following modifications were made in the scale of prices as announced this morning: Butter, fresh, fair to good, price to retailer, forty-two to forty-four cents; price to consumer, forty-six to forty-nine cents. Geese, price to retailer, twenty-two to twenty-five cents a pound; price to consumer, twenty-five to twenty-nine cents. Turkeys, cold storage, price to retailer, twenty-eight to thirty-three cents; price to consumer, thirty-three to thirty-seven cents. Potatoes, Pennsylvania, price to retailer, $2.20 to $2.50 per cwt.; price to consumer, forty to forty-seven cents per peck of fifteen pounds; New York and Western price to retailer, $1.90 to $2.20 per cwt.; price to consumer, thirty-five to forty cents.

After the conference Mr. Heinz announced that the negotiations between the administration and the factors were in the highest degree satisfactory and that he felt confident that substantial relief for the people was in sight. He made it clear, however, that the prices announced would not go into effect at once, so far as the people are concerned, and that the retailer must continue to sell at prices which will enable him to make a profit over the price at which his goods were purchased.

Veteran Correspondent Buried

HARRISBURG, Nov. 27.—Funeral services for Thomas H. Jones, veteran newspaper correspondent, who died on Saturday, were held here this afternoon, attended by hundreds of associates and friends on Capitol Hill. Mr. Jones was dean of the correspondents here and was personally acquainted with all governors and big men in State affairs since Curtin's time. Mr. Jones was taken ill a week ago while making his rounds on Capitol Hill.

JAPANESE ASTONISHED BY WAR WORK OF U. S.

Mission Headed by Viscount Ishii Arrives Home and Tells of Vast Preparations Here

TOKIO, Nov. 27.

The Japanese mission to the United States, headed by Viscount Ishii, returned home today.

All members expressed the utmost enthusiasm over their reception in America and astonishment at the magnitude of the American preparations for war.

"The magnitude of the preparations which America is making to wage the war on Germany is literally undreamed of here," Viscount Ishii declared. "Her preparations will have a great influence on the victorious conclusion of the war."

Ishii likewise glowingly praised the "firm determination" of the American people in their united work in preparing for war.

Every member of the mission brought back as his most vivid recollection the firm friendship of America and the astonishing magnitude of the nation's factories, plants and workers, all turning out war material.
