KEYSTONE HONORS RECORDER DOERLE

Artisans Turn Out to Surprise Reception—Elections of M. E. Representatives

The profusion of decorations and flags placed on the walls by an artistic hand was explained to the early recorder as a favor from the convention of master painters on the day before, and when the flow of members began to increase the normal attendance for January and then the entrance of the M. E. officers and other celebrities of the order the mystified recorder seemingly accepted the assurance that the object of the gathering was a mark of respect for the M. E. recorder, who is a member, and a boost on the first meeting of the new year for Keystone Assembly, No. 2. It was not until the prepared sign "Doerle Night," encircled by incandescent lights, had been quickly adjusted and Chairman Allen Cox had made the announcement of the plans for this event in recognition of his twenty years' service as recorder that the true significance was revealed to the visibly affected and beloved recorder, Philip H. Doerle.

As if this fraternal expression were not enough, there was added the gift of a large leather armchair, made to order, and a large basket of flowers for Mrs. Doerle, who was led into the room, to the enthusiastic amusement of the members and tearful pleasure of her husband. A bouquet of flowers was presented to Mrs. Cox, who accompanied Mrs. Doerle. The presentations were made through the inimitably fascinating talks of M. E. M. A. Jordan. Brother Doerle made acknowledgment in expressions of deep emotion.

Brother Doerle was admitted into Keystone Assembly in December, 1885, and became an active worker, also chief inspector in 1887, receiving honors of master artisan in 1889, elected recorder in 1897, elected M. E. inspector in 1905, receiving honors of M. E. master artisan in 1907, elected representative of the board of directors for thirty years, and during that time has ever an expert appraiser passed upon all securities held by the organization. Chairman Allen reviewed the fraternal career of the honored guest, indicating the movements and interests as the factors in the success of Keystone, to which he had given long and faithful service.

The eminent speakers who responded to call were G. Wilson Hunter, who delivered an oratorical eulogy upon the career of Recorder Doerle; E. F. Greathead, Doctor Gadd, Inspector Voorhees, Editor Mayor and J. Stirling Stevenson, who spoke of the fraternal affection for the guest of honor. William A. Cotter, of Underdown Assembly, whose acquaintance with Phil began with their joint service in Chevalier C. A. Baldi and Frank M. Cody, who as business and legal associates expressed the value of their friendships. Other "big guns" present were M. E. S. Chalmers, Congressman Marr, Directors Wiswell, Maloney and Kendrick, Solicitor Taxler and Past Masters Toth and Smith, also Tom Haffner, A. J. Kelley, Fred Keene, Charles R. Simpson, of other assemblies. Several turns of high-class vaudeville and numbers by the excellent quartet, with Allen Cox substituting for the first tenor, interspersed the proceedings.

At the business session of Keystone Brother Cox introduced the memorial installation ceremony for these new officers: Master artisan, William A. Corrie; superintendent, P. S. S. Klein, and inspector, Robert P. Gallen. The master artisan made these appointments: Conductor, Howard K. Hawkins; chaplain, William S. Devinney; M. M., George Metscher; D. M., William J. Johnson; warder, D. R. Smith; finance committee, H. C. Clulp, H. T. Nogle, J. J. Cox, Jr.; chairman of entertainment committee, Allen Cox. The master box has demonstrated efficient versatility in every line of fraternal endeavor.

Another happy incident was the gift of a fine gavel to Master Artisan Corrie from Brother Harry Clough, of Fidelity Assembly, a business associate.

The representatives elected were H. C. Clulp, B. Glover Flood, F. Tegtmeyer, Dr. L. M. Golden, J. Beatty, William S. Devinney, William A. Cotter, Samuel T. Neble, C. D. Baxter, J. H. Fulmer, H. K. Hawkins, J. C. Haines, J. J. Cox, Jr.

Fidelity Assembly's meeting was made doubly enjoyable to the seventy-five attendants by the visit of the M. E. officers, who are always prompt and tireless in their attendance, on their official visits to the various assemblies. Three candidates were admitted, to whom the ritual was impressively by M. E. Inspector Voorhees in that short, snappy way that has become characteristic. Solemn memorial service was observed for the late Brothers Joseph Kreamer and Eugene R. Schultz, whose Christian, fraternal career Brother Townsend reviewed with expressions of deep feeling. Chairman Jones reported that "smokes" would be added to the satisfying intellectual feast to the eminent visitors.

In selection of representatives the election board, composed of brothers Redman, Leonhart, Sweetwood and Solicitor Taxler, as judge, announced these winners: C. G. Wilson, C. G. Simpson, E. L. Wilson, Oscar Mowrey, C. E. Heilman, A. S. MacNair, for alternates, T. G. Bachran, G. S. Mitchell, H. C. Clulp, H. E. Clough, J. G. Meister, C. E. Doerr.

M. E. M. A. Jordan installed in office Oscar Mowrey, inspector; Edwin L. Gibson, superintendent, and Arthur S. MacNair, master artisan, delivering the charges very impressively from memory. The demonstration of heartywood roll toward the new master artisan evidently inspired him with confidence in the presentation of his plans and recommendations in the matter of larger attendance, wider distribution of the observation of food, of the Lambs fund for special relief, etc. Probably never before in this assembly had there been contemplated so comprehensive a plan of campaign endeavor, intelligently and logically expressed, and there was no mistake about the acceptance of his views.

Brother MacNair was initiated into Fidelity Assembly in 1905, serving on committees and in all appointive offices up to 1916, when he was elected inspector, and superintendent last year. He has been a representative to the M. E. Assembly two years.

Retiring Master Artisan Wilson transferred to his successor the sum of $200, a cash balance to be used for the good of the assembly. Brother Wilson then received from the assembly, through the hands of M. E. S. Chalmers, a master's apron. The attendance prizes were won by Brothers Redman, Simpson, Murphins and Eckler.

Brother Voorhees started the official favors by relating some numerous stories. Brother Chalmers, as a master of English expression, treats the subject of increase in interesting and convincing way. It hold been attention throughout. This is true of Master Jordan and more, for his versatility of thought, enthusiasm of spirit and earnestness of purpose make his discourses altogether irresistible. He complimented Fidelity on the possession of two men, Solicitor Taxler and Editor Mayer, whose current services were no small factor in the success of the order. Recorder Cox, the man of figures, gave at some length only a small part of the statistics and information stored in his mental capacity to show the superior position and condition of the A. O. M. P. among the galaxy of fraternities composing the National Fraternal Congress.

Southwestern Assembly enrolled three candidates. The new officers, Master Artisan B. Penrose Dever, Superintendent William Scheid and Inspector William C. Calland, were installed through impressive ceremony by M. E. Conductor Marr, for which he received warm commendation. The past master's jewel to retiring Master Artisan Engle was presented by Brother Scheid in complimentary address by P. M. A. John E. Logan. Brother Dever outlined some plans for the year, especially the effort to secure new members and larger attendance, and announced these appointments: Conductor, William J. McKowen; chaplain, Arthur P. Garner; Sr. M., C. Wilson; Jr. M., Samuel M. C. Robert J. McKeen; warder, Charles W. Carns, Jr.; finance committee, Walter E. Lamond (chairman), John Boyd, Frank J. Lamond; bulletin committee, Thomas H. Johnston (editor), Thomas K. McCart, James C. Marr; captains of membership campaign, North Philadelphia, Howard Hayes; West Philadelphia, John E. Logan; South Philadelphia, Samuel Dever, Sr.; entertainment committee, Carl J. Vogt (chairman), George W. Trainer, Samuel Dever, Jr., Samuel D. Hayes, Walter E. Lamond, James R. Adams, William B. Engle, Richard Carmichael, John E. Logan, John Boyd, Robert F. Dever, Harry J. Hummell, Harry C. Hughes, James C. Marr, Arthur F. Garner, Thomas H. Johnston, William Scheid, William C. Calland, William J. McKowen.

The representatives elected were George W. Trainer, Harry C. Hummell, Carl J. Vogt, William B. Engle, Samuel Dever, Walter E. Lamond, Robert F. Dever, Howard Hayes and John Boyd. After the close of the business session Chairman Lamond, of the entertainment committee, directed several entertaining numbers and the serving of refreshments.

Master Artisan Dever was initiated in Southwestern Assembly in December, 1912. He served as the secretary of the assembly and was made treasurer of the Foot-Lights Club. He was elected inspector in 1916 and promoted to the higher positions in 1917, adding to himself and honor to the assembly.

Union Assembly admitted two candidates in the presence of the M. E. officers who gave their usually large chunks of wisdom, food for thought and great supplies of optimism, though it is claimed that the M. E. Master Artisan preached a strong sermon on John the Baptist and temperance. He was called on also to install these officers: Master Artisan, Samuel Tisch; conductor, Samuel E. Walker; inspector, William Brown.

The new Master Artisan, in outlining work for the year, called upon the workers for a goal of 100 candidates and asked the assembly for $150 to aid in securing them. He offered special prizes for the twenty-fifth, fiftieth, seventy-fifth and 100th candidates, the ten candidates and $5 and $2.50 in the second and third prizes. He appointed a committee of ways and means to meet on hand this matter of increase, to have no larger attendances at the meetings than to push any effort for the interests and welfare of the assembly. The committee consists of Master M. E. Master Artisan Dever, to preside, the doctor of the assembly, the representatives of the M. E. Master Artisan, to report for great times. He stated that work is fair certainty already of three candidates for the next meeting he had high expectations of a large class.

The officers installed were Brothers Fletcher, Winchester, Ford, Walker, Scholl, Stewart, Boling and Stanton; alternates, Brothers Wilson, Weaver, Gross, Horn, Ingram, Bigard and Mayer.

The warmth and loyal spirit of Spartan Assembly's faithful force made up for the utility of a large attendance at the meeting in the Parkway Building, which executed the question of moving to another hall. After an interchange of views on the subject, the proposition was referred to the board of trustees, a committee set in the selection of a suitable room elsewhere and report at the next meeting was suggested and the Master Artisan appointed Brothers Elliott, Breckmann and Rife for the purpose.

Deputy Hepde installed these officers: Master Artisan, William Braun; superintendent, H. C. Bulgins; inspector, Frederick Hodges. Brother Braun expressed gratitude for his elevation and promised his full effort in the interests of the order, and the assembly's growth and influence, appealing for that confidence and support so necessary for success. He announced his appointments as follows: Conductor, Robert Clegg, Sr.; M. C., John F. Poynter, Jr.; M. C., E. R. Schaefer; chaplain, Harry M. Hammell; warder, Henry Brautigam. The Chief Deputy then made the official announcement to the effect which he has held continuously since the institution of the assembly, April 20, 1896. Entertainment committee, A. H. Wilson, C. Schaefer, Sylvan Brown, H. C. Bulgins, B. Brautigam, H. G. Barker, E. S. Wright, William Faust, Frank Hodges, Robert Clegg, H. Hill, C. Schaefer, J. F. Poynter, H. Bulgins, H. S. Lewis. Finance committee, C. J. Richter, S. Andress, H. E. Ferguson, Burgin committee, B. C. Blaine, M. Rib, H. M. Hammell.

Deputy Hepde presented the gavel to the retiring Master Artisan, J. R. Hile, who responded in appropriate and shared that he did not intend to sidetrack himself to the chairbeans, but was going to stay on the job to help his successor, who promised to be an all successful administration. Doctor Bruner presented the first petition for membership of the year, stating that he had more to come.

There was some contest for representatives to the M. E. Assembly. It took three ballots to elect the winners, C. J. Richter and L. M. Hile, both wanting to withdraw in favor of the other, finally resulting as follows: Representatives, A. R. Wilson and C. J. Richter; alternates, H. C. Leslie and Sylvan Braun.

An impressive memorial service was held for the late Brother Henry H. Simons, who was a member of the assembly. Brother Braun, Brother C. J. Richter acted as critic for the evening. Brother H. S. Lewis will be critic for the February meeting. Master Artisan Braun gave a fine talk on the work during the evening, even capturing the attendance prize. The entertainment committee furnished a generous hot lunch, smokes and a rousing time after the meeting.

The Christmas boxes sent to the boys in the government service, the Christmas cards sent to the brothers living distant from the city, Christmas cards to the sick and those sent to the sick members have been freely acknowledged by the happy recipients.

Oriental Assembly had several members who had not been present at a regular meeting for many months. Five dollars in gold was offered as a prize for recently inactive members, as well as a box of "good" candy, by Master Artisan-elect Brother J. L. Aff. These prizes, no doubt, were the means of bringing out at least five nonattending members, which is a good start for the New Year.

The officers installed were: Master Artisan Anthony L. Aff, Superintendent Charles Ballard, Inspector Harry E. Padling. The remarks of the new officers were inspiring, especially those of the master artisan, who asked of every member his wholehearted cooperation in the year's work. It was a inspiring full of optimism every brother pledging at least one new member. It speaks well for Oriental's progress this year.

Hardon Hedgeth Assembly started its New Year bubbling over with enthusiasm, giving it its honored, a fortunate of great things to be done this year. It was one of the old-time meetings—"something doing every minute." These officers were installed by Deputy E. C. Coughlin: Master Artisan C. E. Ayers, Superintendent W. M. Coffin, Inspector R. B. Lewis, Recorder E. A. Stevenson, Chaplain Jesse Chilcote. One candidate was introduced and initiated.

Chaplain W. H. ("Pop") Espright, who has served this assembly for a period of years, and who was compelled to be absent (through sickness) only two meetings, was presented by the members with an Artisan watch fob in appreciation of his faithful attendance and for his untiring efforts in promoting the interests of the assembly. A large delegation from Collingswood Assembly was present and added to the entertainment of the evening being furnished by the superior vocal quartet.

The entertainment committee is planning something worth while for every meeting during the coming year and the officers and workers feel sure that when the year comes to a close they will be amply repaid for their efforts by the accession of new members and the increased interest of their old members. A cordial invitation is extended to all Artisans to come on the third Tuesday of each month to enjoy the feeling of close fellowship which can only come from such occasions as these, says Superintendent Coffin.

Sixty members of Conestoga and Lancaster Assemblies greeted M. E. Officers Jordan, Chalmers, Cox, Voorhees and Marr, who gave impressive addresses on the condition and progress of the order, which were heartily enjoyed and appreciated.

The ceremonies were impressive for new members the officers of the assembly were installed by Master Jordan, who did the work in his usually excellent manner from memory, during the recess three new members of unusual merit were staged under the direction of Professor Byrne, a former lightweight champion, who conducts a school of athletics in Lancaster. Brother Jordan, in an address along patriotic lines, was wonderfully impressive. The assembly then united in singing "America," which brought forth a toast to the flag, after which every one joined in singing "Rally Round the Flag." Great enthusiasm prevailed, and it is believed that good results for these assemblies will be secured this year.

Too much credit cannot be given to little Palmyra Assembly, which enrolled eighty candidates last year, the highest record in the order. Twenty members will be entitled to the producers' banquet. Herman Meyer, of Northwestern Assembly, is the deputy, and he would credit Recorder Finney and his force of real workers for this wonderful showing. The alliterative slogan is "Pluckly Palmyra's pace puzzles prophets. Pep and Pluck Palmyra's policy."

The M. E. staff goes to St. John's Assembly tomorrow night and the Ilinwoos Assembly on Wednesday night.

Judge Orders Saloons to Close

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., Jan. 21.—Judge Barber has ordered all the liquor dealers within the county to close their places of business every Monday for the next ten weeks. Failure to comply with the court's order will result in the revocation of the licenses or refusal to renew them next year.

ROYAL ARCANUM DEPUTIES CONFER

Open Plans for Progress on Proved Solvency—Statement of Supreme Regent

Every newly installed grand regent of this jurisdiction early in his administration has a special conference with the district deputies and supreme and grand council officers located in this city and vicinity. Grand Regent James E. Norton, of Reading, selected last Tuesday evening as "Philadelphia night" for due and proper honors to be received and bestowed. Grand Orator Stokinger dispatched an early tip to "Louie," the chef, for a menu of "grand" specials fit for a "regent." The participants extended a reception to the grand regent, who was on hand early with his tall, athletic and, of course, handsome son ("a chip of the old block"), garbed in Uncle Sam's fighting togs, chipper and hungry. The company was escorted to the beautiful banquet table by President Stokinger, of the associated councils, with only the genial presence of Grand Secretary W. C. Weiss missing.

When the coffee and cigars were reached all were prepared for a real heart-to-heart conference, which was a gratifying exchange of opinions and sentiments served with lucrative confidential flavor. The grand regent, in a remarkably conversational vein, touched particularly upon the confident promises for the future, the V. M. C. Brigade of Pennsylvania and noted some referred to the receivership, reading a letter from Supreme Counselor Howard C. Wiggins, of Rome, N. Y., contradicting the charges of his traducers.

Supreme Representative Arthur H. Eaton and Grand Trustee William L. Young sang the "Schuylkill River Song," with Brother William Lewis, of Delaware, the piano operator contributed to the intellectual feast and dropped a few hints on the duties of a D. D. in 1918. He was followed by Jesse Nicholas, another representative whose this year stand for American and fraternalism. It announced that he is to organize the new Chester County district, "Devoted to the cause of the Royal Arcanum" in the council and is going through the chairs again to explain the ways he are following the orders. He advocates increasing the class between councils and counselors, who are always more dependable recruits. D. D. G. R. Charles P. Walter, a veteran of many years service, so young in spirit, spoke of the duties of the D. D. Fidelity for increased council attendance. D. D. G. R. George W. Miller expressed himself as being very enthusiastic, he was counting on a great year. Other D. D. G. R. D. G. R. Charles G. Prescott favored popularity consolidation for councils which refuse to hold regular communications.

The greatest of all this year occurred at the appointment of Brother Maurice Adams, of Dupont Council, the head appointed D. D. G. R., and called upon the baby member of the grand regent's staff for an impromptu speech. Brother Adams, in a brief address, said he was confident that the greatest honor he is to receive remains whenever the grand regent, who is the greatest Royal Arcanum leader in Pennsylvania, is pleased to be loyal and solid, and to put a stop to lapses by a campaign of advertising that will come since the public of the actuarially safe and sound condition of the order. Today's impromptu address by the baby member of the grand regent's staff attracted the attention of the others, after being introduced as the "Bloody of the Royal Arcanum" in Philadelphia, Brother Lewis Wax introduced important facts concerning supreme council legislation on subjects of the day, the meeting appropriation for the cause. He believes it is and increased per capita tax will be a remedy for a greater attendance, which eventually will result in greater activity in all the subordinate councils.

Supreme Representative R. B. Bates in an earnest and stirring talk covering publicity on a large scale, assured G. R. Norton of his support in his administration, and that of the Pennsylvania delegation of the broader administration. Grand Trustee William L. Young expressed his desire to see the supreme council's making known to the public the actuarial condition of the order's affairs by placing all the cards on the table and making the facts known all over the R. A. territory.

The last speaker of the evening, sometimes the most interesting, was the newly elected supreme representative, W. F. Wallace, of Iowa Council, who, after making an unique compliment between the functions in the R. A. and the ice cam in the Schuylkill River, registered his conviction that the means of accomplishing the results today's meeting demonstrated among the star-at-homes for a better attendance at the council meeting and by supplying members with necessary information on conditions.

Other speakers were Past Regent John H. Culbert, president of the R. A. Young Men's Club, Past Grand Regent Charles E. Pugh, Iowa Council, Dr. F. H. Bellew, secretary of the Associated Councils of Philadelphia, Supreme Representative N. E. Brooks of Philadelphia Council, D. D. G. R. William F. Lamb, of Patterson Council, Samuel Groom, recently elected regent of Germantown Council, David L. Stewart, president of the Hospital Association, D. D. G. R. Charles J. Goldsmith, H. H. Karrer, secretary of Manayunk Council, Pennsylvania, and Joseph A. Whitaker, vice president of the Associated Councils of Philadelphia. Various expressions, the sentiment favored a personal effort to increase the council attendance and a bold stroke for general adoption, twentieth century publicity.

George Chandler Council had D. D. G. R. Charles F. Walter on hand to have its good service to the faithful of this council. A special effort should be made, he stated, to be a personal canvass of the interested members and officers of this council. The new staff of officers, he said, is to place the council on an aggressive campaign basis. Much credit is due to their indefatigable energy.

President Council is expected to be in fort, explained Grand Regent Norton, in a report submitted. D. D. G. R. James A. Whitaker, recognizing the value of Brother Lewis's service, is rendering every possible assistance and promises to report increased attendance and entertaining meetings.

Continental Council is completing arrangements for consolidation on February 7. Regent Laing is optimistic over the improved conditions in the council, and the prospects for the order generally, and appreciates the splendid opportunity of making 1918 a banner year for interesting and enthusiastic meetings.

The members of the old Carnation Club will hold a meeting shortly to discuss its affairs and arrange a program for the meeting of several unfinished propositions still pending.

Pennsylvania Council's ladies' night and the interesting illustrated lecture to Prof. L. R. Harley, reported last week, are but a few of the novelties which will keep the members busy during the coming year. Work will be the watchword. At the last meeting fourteen applications were presented by Regent Laing, and Grand Regent Samuel C. Wells, president of the Progressive Association; H. E. Shortlidge, William H. Worrell, vice president; Dr. J. Y. Cantlin, Jr., president; Dr. J. Y. Cantlin, Jr., Secretary; Harry A. Bellerjeau, Recorder; Harry J. Cumberland, Inspector; A. M. Stevenson, Chancellor; Horace V. MacFadyen, Inspector; William A. Keator, Guard; H. J. Smith, Trustee; S. P. Allen, Assistant Recorder; Charles F. Walter, Assistant Secretary. Addresses were delivered by District Deputy Weadd and others. Nearly fifty attended the members of this splendid council are betting the eggs on a banner year. Nearly 200 members serving under old glory, and no doubt will soon be presented to the camp and the number of members in the service of the Stars and Stripes. The camp hopes to succeed in first and foremost, and will be delighted to produce good results while the best fee means.

All the secretaries of the subordinate councils should make renewed effort to report to State secretary information as to the number of members in the service of the Stars and Stripes. It's a big job to compile the letter record, but with the earnest cooperation of all the secretaries the work will be much easier for all concerned.

Many grateful letters have been received by the War Address Board from the soldier members thanking the board for the thoughtfulness in sending Christmas comfort kits to them at Christmas time. As the names come to each one at headquarters, the kits are forwarded by the best available remembrances will follow on to wear boxes.

The camps of the fourth district are looking forward to a big time on January 25, when State Secretary Helms, Vice President Weadd and Supreme Member Wolfe will address the assembled brethren in camp room of Camp 243, Germantown and Roberts avenue.

Retiring President Tenace installed the officers of Camp 205.

Camp 744 of Logan initiated a large class of candidates on Friday night last.

Camp No. 1 had these officers installed last week: Past president, Harry Wilson; president, George C. Ballard; vice president, John Brennan; secretary, Joseph Bentley; treasurer, Harry McGrath; inspector, Howard Sox; guard, John Newman; trustee, Angelo Miller. The camp is in a flourishing condition, and the members are in a humble position for the members called to arms has been made. "Loyalty and Devotion to Duty" is the camp's motto.

Camp 124 of Media had a booster meeting in the hope of stimulating interest in the camp. Almost fifty members attended the meeting and some very good addresses were made by the leading members.

George W. Davis, vice president of Camp 281, of Chester, presented his comrades with a service flag containing thirty-eight stars, representing the number of members in service. Bentley in a very fitting way presented the flag on behalf of the camp. Camp 281 has a membership of 62.

The camps of Altoona had an interesting booster meeting last Wednesday evening in the new theatre in that city. The State secretary delivered his address on "The Stars and Stripes" for a period of forty minutes. The members were inspired by his earnest remarks and pledged themselves for greater work. Past Grand Regent Bowman, Supreme Member Dunlap, District President John Masmore and State Camp Incorporator Schwartz also spoke in an interesting manner.

The Past Presidents' Association of Philadelphia will hold the quarterly meeting in the Blue Room at State Camp headquarters Saturday evening, February 9, when State President Shoemaker will deliver his famous address on "The Rights of the Common Man or Where Democracy Was Born." Refreshments will be served. All past presidents are invited to attend and connect themselves with this organization. The dues are but fifty cents a year.

The Progressive Association of Philadelphia has arranged for a social at Camp 361 Wednesday evening, February 13, in its hall, 4925 Lancaster avenue. In addition to the state officers several good speakers will be present. Invitations have been sent to President Samuel C. Wells, president of the Progressive Association; H. E. Shortlidge, William H. Worrell, vice president; Dr. J. Y. Cantlin, Jr., president; Dr. J. Y. Cantlin, Jr., Secretary; Harry A. Bellerjeau, Recorder; Harry J. Cumberland, Inspector; A. M. Stevenson, Chancellor; Horace V. MacFadyen, commander-in-chief of the Commandery; Benjamin Wolfe, Supreme Member; Harry J. Smith, Trustee; S. P. Allen, Assistant Recorder; Charles F. Walter, Assistant Secretary. Addresses will be
