PENNSYLVANIA, SS.

A PROCLAMATION.

In the name and by the authority of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

FELLOW-CITIZENS:—A merciful and beneficient Providence has blessed our country during the year that has just passed. His exceeding goodness calls for an earnest manifestation of our gratitude as a people.

A firm belief in the existence of God, and a just conception of the perfections of His nature—of His attributes of infinite wisdom and power—of His boundless munificence and mercy, lie at the foundation of true religion, and constitute the basis of that righteousness that exalteth a nation.

An humble acknowledgement of dependence on the overruling care of that "God who measureth the ocean in the hollow of his hand," whose will controls the destiny of nations, and who condescends to feed the fowls of the air and clothe the lilies of the field, is an act of homage eminently becoming a people so peculiarly favored as we have been.

The blessings of peace have distinguished the closing year. With the entire family of States our relations are amicable, and give promise of a bright future. Our free institutions of goverment have been perpetuated, and religous and political liberty vouchsafed to the people. The cause of education, morality, and religion have been steadily on the advance; the arts and sciences have gained additional perfection, and all the great interests of the people, physical and moral, have flourished.

In our Commonwealth, the merciful care and boundless goodness of Providence, have been most strikingly manifested. We are under special obligations for His beneficence and mercy. The people have not only been spared the afflictions of the plague and pestilence, but they have been blessed with an abundance of the choicest productions of the earth. The seasons have passed in their regular order.

Winter and spring and summer have come and gone, and autumn is now. "Seed time and harvest" we have had, and the husbandman has rejoiced in the rich rewards of his toil.—The valleys and hills and plains have given of their abundance, to make glad the hearts of the people.

The desolations of famine, which at present seem to threaten some of the nations of the eastern continent, as to the devastations of war, have been turned from this people by the strong arm of his power.

"The pestilence that walketh in darkness, and the destruction that wasteth at noonday"—Whose ravages have sorely afflicted the citizens of surrounding States—have not been permitted to invade our favoured Commonwealth. It has pleased a merciful Providence to restrain the hand of the destroyer, and to bestow on Pennsylvania a season of health and unalloyed prosperity.

Under the solemn convictions of duty, and in conformity with the wishes of many good citizens, I, William Bigler, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby appoint THURSDAY, the 24th day of November next, as a day of general thanksgiving and praise throughout the State, and earnestly implore the people, that setting aside all worldly pursuits on that day, they unite in offering thanks to Almighty God for his past goodness and mercy, and beseech Him for a continuance of his blessings.

Given under my hand, and the great seal of the State, at Harrisburg, this seventeenth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, and of the Commonwealth the seventy-eighth.

WILLIAM BIGLER, Governor.

C. A. BLACK,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Going out to take a Drink.

We see that the Secretary of the Treasury has addressed a circular to the various heads of bureaus of his department, bearing date October 1st, inst., prescribing from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m., as the hours during which their respective employees must be at their desks, from that date until 1st of April next. It is said he also prohibits the practice, in which some have indulged, of leaving their desks in office hours to go out and take a drink; saying that removal from office shall invariably be the penalty for even the first such offience. The public will, with great unanimity, sustain this so necessary a regulation.

IMPROVED WAGON BRAKE.—Perry Dickson, of Blooming Valley, Pa., has taken measures to secure a patent for a very simple and excellent brake for wagons and carriages. It simply consists in connecting double cranks to the inner end of the pole or shaft of a carriage or wagon, and connecting the cranks to a friction brake for the face of each wheel, in such a manner that the least backing up of the draft animals brings the brakes up against the face of each wheel, and so presses them that they cease to revolve, and merely slide. It is a useful improvement for hilly countries, and cannot fail to commend itself to all whom it may concern.

FACTORYVILLE, N. Y., June 2, 1853.

I have used Mathewson's Horse REMEDY, on horses and find it to be one of the best medicines in use. I applied it for tendays to a Bone Spavin, as large as a hen's egg, and removed the bunch entirely, and made the horse perfectly sound which is now to be seen.

Poetry and Pictures!

"Lives of great men oft remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Pictures which will last some time!"

"Pictures, which perhaps another,
Sailing o'er life's stormy main,
Sorrowing and wayworn brother,
Seeing, can go and get some more just like 'em!"

The above, sent us by a friend, being just to the point, we give the public the benefit of it: trusting that many will heed the wise suggestion, and "go and get some more just like 'em"

We have on hand a recent supply of "things" in the fancy line, which we wish to sell, all being bought—"expressly for that purpose!"

The Reason why it Succeeds.

THE Mustang Liniment has attained its enormous popularity and almost universal use, simply because it gives better satisfaction, accomplishes more good, relieves more pain, and heals more wounds and sores, than any other preparation ever before offered to the afflicted. Every bottle that is used, speaks for itself—tells its own tale in the relief it gives, and the cure it effects. And the one who has suffered perhaps long years with pain, without hope of relief and finds in this Liniment an almost instantaneous remedy cannot help but speak for its praise, and recommend it in the highest terms to all that he sees suffering. It needs no other recommendation than a trial.
