half a dozen poor boys who are worthy of being helped. In this way a man may live and do good when he is dead, and many will call him blessed.

I had intended to say something about the necessity that exists, and is likely to exist, for a Cemetery in Pittston. The burying ground attached to the Presbyterian Church is nearly full. But this letter is long enough. X.

A new Territorial Bill on Foot—Another Scheme to Extend Slavery.

Near the close of the last session of Congress a bill was quietly reported by Robert Johnson, one of the Senators from Arkansas, and made the special order for the fifteenth of this month, which is likely to absorb in its importance all other questions that will come before that body. It was a bill for the organization of a new territory between the 34th and 37th degrees of latitude and the 94th and 100th degrees of longitude—a tract of about 43,000,000 of acres, lying between the Red river of Louisiana and the southern boundary of Kansas—to be called Neosho; and it is artfully provided that the whole shall be protected against any law excluding slave labor from its soil. We gather the features of the bill from the Western Home Visitor, an Ohio paper, which deserves the credit of having first directed public attention to this subject.

Senator Johnson proposes to organize the territory of Cherokee, including the country held by the Cherokees; of Muskogee, or the Creek and Seminole district; and of Chahta, including the sessions to the Choctaws and Chicasaws—three territories, to be controlled as at present, by the Indians themselves, while the payment of salaries and other civil expences is made a burthen upon the treasury of the United States.

Section 2 provides that "nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to abrogate, change, alter or impair the constitution or laws, or the customs or usages having the force of law, of either of said nations of Indians," &c.

Section 3 authorizes a governor for four years, "who shall be elected by such free male citizens of said territories respectively as by the laws of said nations are or may be qualified voters therein," and who shall receive a salary of $2,000, with the right to appoint a secretary at a salary of $1,500.

Section 8 recognises the present legislative departments of the Cherokees, Creeks and Choctaws! extends their power "to all rightful subjects of legislation consistent with the constitution of the United States and the provisions of this act;" and, in a subsequent section, the compensation of members is fixed at three dollars for a session of twenty days, and three dollors for each twenty miles of travel in going to and returning from the same, with an extra per diem of two dollars to presiding officers, and similar allowances to clerks, interpreters, &c., all to be a charge upon the United States.

Section 12 provides that "no white men or other Indians, shall be allowed to settle or trespass on any of said lands, east of the one hundredth parallel of west longitude, without the consent of the legislature of the proper territory, and in pursuance of laws by it enacted." By section 17 "so much of now-existing laws of the state of Arkansas as defines and fixes the punishment of offences which, by such laws, amount to felony," are extended over each of said three territories, besides the various laws of the United States, which are enumerated, and among which are "those now in force regulating trade and intercourse with Indians," and the fugitive acts of 1793 and 1850.

Besides the local tribunals, a District Court of the United States is erected in each of the territories, with one Judge for the Chahta district, and a Judge for Chelokee and Muscogee, to be appointed by the President and Senate of the United States for a term of six years, and with salaries of $2,500 in the Cherokee and Muscogee district, and $2,000 in the Chahta district, each court to be officered and have the jurisdiction of other territorial courts, and decisions to be in like manner subject to appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States; "but, (as section 23 provides,) in cases involving the question of title to slaves, such writs of error or appeals shall be allowed to and decided by the said Supreme Court without regard to the value of the matter, property, or title, in controversy; and from any decision of either of said courts or the judge of either, upon any writ of habeas corpus involving a question of personal freedom, a writ of error or appeal shall be allowed to said Supreme Court."

So much for the general features of the bill, including the legislative, executive and judicial organization of the respective territories.

Among the miscellaneous provisions is an appropriation by Congress of $10,000 to each of said territories, to be therein applied, by the governors, to the erection of suitable buildings for the accommodation of the legislature and of said District Court and its officers, and the officers of the executive department—a stipulation, (sec. 35,) "That all the free citizens of the said several nations, to wit: the Cherokees, Creeks, Seminoles, Choctaws and Chickasaws, resident, or hereafter coming into and settleing in said territories, being of Indian or Indian and white blood, shall, when this act takes effect as to each nation respectively, become and be citizens of the United States; and the constitution of the United States shall have the same force and effect within the said territories as elsewhere within the United States"—and also a provision that each territory may be represented in Congress by a delegate.

These territorial legislatures are "required (sec. 43,) to enact proper laws regulating the institution of marriage, making it a contract for life, not dissoluble at the pleasure of the parties, prohibiting polygamy, and providing that divorces shall only be granted by judicial power, for causes previously defined by a general law."

But the gist of the whole matter—the object in view through all the details of this elaborate scheme—is revealed in the last two sections of the bill, which we give without abridgement or paraphrase:

"SEC. 48. And be it further enacted, That whenever the people of the said three territories shall, by acts of their respective legislatures, consent to unite together and form one people, and be included in one territory, they shall be entitled to be erected into a territory of the United States, to be called the territory of Neosho, in the same manner as other territories have been created; and afterwards, when Congress shall be satisfied as to their capacity for self-government, and whenever they open their country to emigration and settlement, they shall be entitled to be erected into a state, by the same name, on the same footing, in all respects, as the original states.

SEC. 49. And be it further enacted, That so soon as the President of the United States shall receive such official information as is hereinbefore provided for, of the assent of said nations in any one of said territories to the provisions of this act, he shall issue his proclamation, making known such assent, and directing the organization of such territory; and shall pursue the same course in regard to each of said territories, the assent of the nations in which shall be afterwards so made known to him, until all are organized; and such of the provisions of this act, in regard to said respective territories, as are to await such assent before being in force and operative, shall be in force, as to the proper territory, from the date of such proclamation.

The territory which it is proposed so quietly to appropriate to the interest of slavery is about two hundred miles long from north to south, and about four hundred from east to west, and covers an area larger than the states of Ohio and New Jersey. The climate corresponds with that of East Tennessee, one of the finest climates in the world, and the soil is like that of Southern Kansas, equally fertile and better supplied with wood and water. The country is at present outside of any territorial organization, and has been allotted by a succession of treaties to the Cherokee, Creek, Choctaw, Chickasaw and Seminole Indians, who number about sixty thousand souls.

These indians are all slaveholders. A few years since, the Creeks held about four hundred slaves, and the entire negro population of the five tribes is estimated at about two thousand.

The Choctaws and Cherokees call all men abolitionists who teach their slaves to read or write, and have forbidden the missionaries from perpetrating any such misdemeanor within their borders. This ordinance, as our readers will remember, was the subject of a very important discussion of the American Board of Domestic Missions of the Presbyterian Church. It was then remarked by one of the speakers, that the Choctaw pro-slavery ordinance was probably dictated by white men as part and parcel of a political design to nurse another slave state into existence on the upper waters of the Red river.

It will be observed that the 12th section of this bill provides that no white people shall settle in either of the territories without the consent of legislature of the proper territory, and in pursuance of laws by it enacted. And by section 48, as soon as they number sufficient persons to send a representative to Congress, they shall be admitted as a state. Here is a shrewd provision against breaking upon the rock upon which Nebraska and Kansas split. Senator Johnson does not mean that Neosho shall be wrested from the slaveholders by eastern emigrants, and hence this provision that emmigration shall be subject to the laws of the local legislatures, all devoted to the interests of slavery.

The bill is made the special order for the 15th instant, the second week after the opening of Congress, in order that no time may be lost in establishing this new outpost of slavery.

We have no time to-day to discuss several other features of this bill which invite remark, but we hasten to submit the prominent features of a scheme which is well calculated to alarm those who think, with us, that the prosperity and honor of this country depends upon the confinement of slavery within its present boundaries.—N. Y. Evening Post.

A Deserter from the British Army.

Betrayed by a woman—his throat cut—supposed to have attempted suicide.

This morning about 8 o'clock, an Englishman, supposed to be James Tenue, was bro't to the City Hospital with his throat horribly cut, and in a dying condition. As far as we could ascertain it appears that he had just arrived from England in the ship North America on Saturday last, and during the passage he became acquainted with an Irishwoman, who was also a passenger. Just before the ship got into port he gave her a box, containing $50 and a quantity of clothing, all he had in the world, which he desired her to take care of for him until he arrived in N. York as he had no place to keep it.

On their arrival, and as they were about to leave the ship, she requested him to let her retain the box until he could obtain a boarding house, and at the same time giving him her address, where he might call and get it. Supposing all things right, he left the ship. He soon succeeded in obtaining board in No. 88 Oliver street, kept by a Mrs. Rion, and on Sunday went in search of his fair trustee.—Not being able to find her, he again renewed his search yesterday, but with no better success, and he was compelled to return without his money or clothing.

The landlady, finding he had no money, and was not likely to obtain it, requested him to leave the house. He begged her not to do so, but to let him sleep on the floor. She at last agreed to let him remain, and put him in a bed with a man named Martin Calahan. This morning, as Mrs. Rion went to call him to breakfast, she found him weltering in his blood, and his throat cut from ear to ear.—She immediately sent word to the Fourth Ward station house, when several officers came and removed him to the City Hospital, and put him under the care of Dr. Wright, who says that he cannot live twenty-four hours.

The only thing that was found upon him was a passage ticket with the above name and ship. Calahan says that he knows nothing about the affair, that he was not aware his throat was cut until Mrs. Rion discovered him. The officer, thinking this rather a strange story, thought best to lock him up until the affair is further investigated. Calahan is now in prison.

It is said that Tenue had deserted from the British army and sought refuge in this country. His throat was supposed to have been cut with a dirk knife, which was found in the bed.—N. Y. Eve. Post, 5th inst.

Another Secret Society.

Why Atchison is not in the Senate.

There is a rumor afloat to the effect that a secret organization exists in the state of Missouri, for the purpose of introducing slavery into Kansas at all hazards. Men are pledged to repair to that territory on the night preceding the election, present themselves at the polls next day, and cast their votes for slavery and its candidates. The society is reported to number several thousand members already. Senator Atchison has the credit of organizing it, and the Rev. Thomas Johnson, late delegate in Congress from Nebraska, is employing it to foist himself into the same position from Kansas.—Du Page (Ill.) Journal, Nov. 29.

Old Bullion alive in Marble.

Our fellow-citizen, Mr. James W. McDonald, is about putting the finishing touches on a bust of Col. Benton, which will be reproduced in plaster, bronze and marble. This work of art displays much genius in the great success with which Mr. McDonald has obtained, in clay, a living likeness of this truly great man.

Besides being faultless in size, proportion, attitude, &c., it possesses in an unusal degree a life-like appearance—so frequently found wanting in the works of our most celebrated sculptors.—St. Louis Democrat.

HYGEANA.

Brought Home to the Door of the Million.

A WONDERFUL Discovery has recently been made by Dr. Curtis, of this city, in the treatment of Consumption, Asthma and all diseases of the Lung. We refer to "Dr. Curtis' Hygeana, or Inhaling Hygeun Vapor and Syrup." With this new method Dr. C. has restored many sillicted ones to perfect health; as an evidence of which he has innumerable certificates. Speaking of the treatment, a physician remarks: It is evident that inhaling—constantly breathing an agreeable, healing vapor, the medicinal properties must come in direct contact with the whole of the arial cavity of the lungs, and thus escape the many and varied changes produced upon them when introduced into the stomach, and subjected to the process of digestion.—The Hygeana is for sale at all the druggists throughout the country.

New York Dutchman of Jan. 14

The Inhaler is worn on the breast under the linen without the least inconvenience—the heat of the body being sufficient to evaporate the fluid.

Hundreds of CASES of CURES like the following might be named. One Package of Hygeana has cured me of the consumption of five years standing.

My sister has been cured of a DISTRESSING COUGH of several years standing, and decided to be incurable by her physicians. She was cured in ONE MONTH by the Hygeana.
