50 HEROES IN "GRIP" TEST

Sailors Volunteer to Contract Influenza to Aid Science

Boston, Feb. 5.—Fifty healthy young men, volunteers from the naval detention barracks here, were taken to the quarantine station at Gallups Island today to submit to influenza tests by a board of government experts. They will be subjected to every known method of infection in order that an exhaustive study of the cause and mode of spread of influenza may be made.

Professor Milton J. Rosenau, of Harvard, will supervise the latest experiment. Observations and suggestions will be made by Dr. Joseph Goldberger, of Washington; Dr. G. M. McCoy, director of the hygienic laboratory there; Dr. J. J. Keagan, of the Chelsea Naval Hospital, and representatives of the Public Health Service.

A previous experiment late in the fall was unsuccessful, efforts to inoculate the subjects with the disease failing.
