WALL ST. SEES OLD-TIME BOOM

Public Participating Actively in Million-Share Days

ALL SECTIONS BUYING

New York, March 15.—Wall street has been experiencing an old-time boom in stocks, with the public participating actively in million-share days. The fact that the public has given such enthusiastic support of the stock market is regarded in financial circles as bearing a greater significance than a mere wave of speculative enthusiasm.

It reflects, first of all, the confidence of the public in the welfare of the country at large, for it is also significant that this buying of stocks has come from all over the country. The basis of prosperity is confidence, and it would seem that the American people have sized up the general situation and have come to a satisfactory conclusion.

Production of manufactured articles has slowed down to some degree because of the uncertainty of the attitude of labor and the hesitancy on the part of manufacturers to accumulate stocks during a transition period. In a number of lines the renewal of demand has made it necessary to speed up to capacity again.

Office Space in Demand

There are one or two straws indicating which way the commercial winds are blowing which perhaps have escaped the attention of the ordinary observer. Demand for office space, for instance, at least as far as New York is concerned, exceeds the supply and it is no unusual thing for large concerns whose business has outgrown their previous quarters to find themselves housed in two or three different buildings, being content to take whatever space was offered. Notably this is the experience of concerns identified with export business.

Another straw is the fact that most of the large typewriter concerns are three to four weeks behind in their deliveries, notwithstanding the fact that the war has been over for three months and that the urgency in the demand from government sources has long since ceased. The inference is that the expansion of commercial business has immediately taken up any slack left by the cessation of war orders, and a continuance of a demand for typewriters certainly is not compatible with any serious let-down in business condition.

Money is plentiful, not only in the money market sense, but from the fact that the people at large have more money than they ever had before. Discussing this subject, a prominent and conservative member of the Stock Exchange said to the writer a day or two ago:

"The country is full of war-rich people. I do not mean this in the sense of persons who have accumulated vast fortunes, but in the relative sense of those who have been accustomed to living in moderate circumstances, finding themselves now well to do. Some of these people are, of course, spending their money injudiciously, but I believe the vast majority, having had a taste of the comforts and luxuries money will procure, are desirous of so investing their newly-acquired wealth as to conserve their capital and secure an adequate return. I think this is one reason why industrial securities have been such a favorite form of investment in recent stock market operations. They have been bought by those who have made their money in industrial pursuits, and who, therefore, understand the possibilities of industrial enterprises."

Victory Loan Starts April 21

Bankers believe that the new Victory Liberty Loan, as it is to be called, the drive for which will begin April 21, will be floated successfully and with not as much hard work as has been feared. Furthermore, they do not look for any great disturbance of the money market or of stock market conditions, particularly if the loan is to take the form of short-term notes. It has been pointed out that, with very few exceptions, the short-term notes issued by private corporations are all selling at par or nearly so. Unless there are some special regulations or restrictions written into the terms under which the new notes are to be issued they will in effect, especially those of the small denominations, become a sort of glorified currency.

It is hardly possible to conceive of a creditor refusing to accept payment of a debt in a United States note bearing interest at 4½ or 5 per cent. At the time of the First Liberty Loan the idea of investing in securities of this character was new to the public, and it took some time to educate it as to the desirability of investments of this character. The public has learned a lot since then and, moreover, is in possession now of funds seeking investment.
