Nancy Wynne Tells of Philadelphians Who Are in Washington for Today's Ceremonies—Dance Given by 1922 Class of Miss Irwin's School

QUITE a number of Philadelphians have gone to Washington to attend the inauguration of President Harding. Now we can call him President, it's after twelve, you know. Though I approve of Mr. Harding's bid for simplicity of ceremonies, it does take from the picturesque aspect of the affair a bit, doesn't it? I think it's usually marvelous in more ways than one to see the gowns of the wives of the senators and representatives at the ball. However, there'll be plenty to see and hear over there, without a ball.

Mr. and Mrs. James Starr and their daughter, Logan, and Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Worts have gone down and will stay with Mrs. Starr's and Mr. Worts' sister, Mrs. Edward Meigs. You remember Margaret Wister married Edward Meigs about fifteen years ago. They lived here for a number of years, but have been in Washington now for some time. Edward Meigs is a son of the late Dr. Arthur Meigs. His brother Jack married Elizabeth Myers and they live out at Radnor. The other brother, Arthur, is unmarried and lives here with his mother, Mrs. Arthur V. Meigs, at 1322 Walnut street.

Mrs. Ernest Law went to Washington yesterday, as did Mrs. Stanley Tagg, Jr., Mrs. Charles Henry Scott, Mrs. Myers Fitler and Mrs. Frank Clyde. They will attend the inaugural exercises and will stay over for the annual meeting of the Navy League, which will be held there tomorrow.

I WENT down to the Little Theatre last evening to see "Why not?" again. In fact, I'd be tempted to take another trip to that show. It's just as good as it can be. I think the frocks that Alice Sergeant and the five other girls wear in the first act, when they do a little specialty dance at the dancer market, are the sweetest things. The gowns are made of a sort of soft yellow voile and they wear leghorn hats trimmed with roses and pansies and greens that are awfully becoming. And isn't Balloch Richards' get-up cute? I never saw such a heavenly shade of blue. And Ethel France's evening frock of violet satin, why, it's perfectly beautiful.

Ernie Coleman seems to get naughtier each night, as the naughty child, and behaves accordingly. I see Helen Ellington and Dave Vogel's, too, for you'll be called upon to get up after this for the rest of their natural lives.

ALL the members of the school set are mighty excited about the dance which the class of 1922 of Miss Irwin's School is giving tonight for the Agnes Irwin School endowment fund. It's going to be held in the Acorn Club and they are to have competition dancing, a lucky number dance and prizes and everything. And the music, well the music is to be simply great for it is to be furnished by the "Henry Bess" orchestra. Don't you love the name? It's made up of boys, that is, the musicians are who just love to play, and who get together and do so. You remember the Lot o' Pep orchestra which used to play several years ago? This is on the same order and the boys are the services at the dances and parties and they play remarkably well. The two Scopes, Fred and Morrie, Hance Lear, Joe Edell, Stewart Valentine and several others are in it and they are just wild about playing and perfectly content to do so all evening. "It's more dire fun," say they.

The girls of the class of 1922 who are getting in the dance are Helen Allen, Helen Chapman, Barbara Clayton, Elizabeth McElroy, Elizabeth Maclean, Anna Moss, Louise and Virginia Morris, Lilly Stewart and Phyllis Swain.

Among the patronesses are Mrs. Arthur Allen, Mrs. Henry Barlow, Mrs. John Hampton Barnes, Mrs. Howard Butcher, Jr., Mrs. Gilbert Marion, Mrs. Paul Cinton, Mrs. Russell Duane, Mrs. Radcliffe Furness, Mrs. Stevens Heckscher, Mrs. Edward Norris, Mrs. Nathaniel Knowles, Mrs. Robert Le Conte, Mrs. Richard C. Norris, Mrs. Howard Pancoast, Mrs. Richard E. Norton, Mrs. George C. Stout, Mrs. William D. Grange and Mrs. John Sargent Newbold.

AUNTIE came to see daddy and mother the other night and brought little cousin Mary with her. Junior is nearly five years old and Mary is not yet two, but she's quite old enough to want all Junior's toys and most precious treasures, and so as Junior is a man, he had to let her have them. But after she'd gone he spoke to mother in a thoughtful tone. "Mother, we don't want a little girl around here do you?" "No, June, I don't think I do." "No, indeed, you got enough to do," said Junior, gather up his toys, "taking care of a little boy."
