Nancy Wynne Announces the Birth of a Daughter to the Rev. and Mrs. Allen Evans—She Regrets the Death of Mr. William W. Montgomery

DID you know that the Allen Evans, Jr.'s, have a daughter? She was born last week, and is a spoiled baby. Mr. Evans is one of the curates at St. James' Episcopal Church, and he and his wife live at 125 South Twenty-third street. Mrs. Evans was Miss Elizabeth Holloway, you remember. Mr. Evans is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Evans and a brother of Rowland Evans, who married Bessie Downs.

The Rev. Albert Lucas, another curate at St. James', is soon to be married, too. His bride will be Miss Frances Scott. I have not heard the exact date for their wedding, but understand it will take place next month or in June. Miss Scott was to have gone to Europe with Lorraine Disston and Anna Lewis, but changed her plans shortly before they sailed. Lorraine and Anna, by the way, were in Rome when last I heard of them, and expect to be home about the middle of next month.

IT IS with sincere regret that I record here the death of Mr. William W. Montgomery, a gentleman of the old school, whose passing leaves another vacancy in the ranks of culture which it will be well-nigh impossible to fill. Mr. Montgomery and his family have long lived on the Main Line, formerly at Bryn Mawr and of late years at White Oak Farm, Glen Moore, Pa. Mr. Montgomery was a prominent lawyer in this city for many years, and had given up the practice of law only a few years ago. He had been ill for some time and was obliged to undergo an operation, from which he did not recover. He was a fine-looking, white-haired old gentleman, and a most interesting talker. He was known as a scholar and linguist and always was interested in public affairs.

He was married twice, and is survived by his second wife. His sons are William Montgomery, Jr., who married Miss Fannie Brock; Robert Leaming Montgomery, whose wife was Miss Hope Tyler; John Montgomery, who married Miss Agnes Spencer; Mrs. Edward Biddle Halsey, who was Miss Mary Montgomery; Archibald R. Montgomery, Jr., whose wife was Miss Catharine Elliott; Gilbert M. Montgomery, who married Miss Abigail Burton; Richard, Horace and Sidney Montgomery and Miss Bertha and Miss Margaret Montgomery. The funeral will be held this afternoon at St. Martin's Church, Radnor.

EVEY ONE who is interested in Harvard, and there are many of us who have sons or brothers or nephews who are Harvard men, who will be going to the Hasty Pudding Club's play at the Bellevue-Stratford tonight. Edgar Scott, I understand, has written some of the lyrics, and young Harry Coxe and a lot of other of the younger men are or were students at Harvard, and, accordingly, their families are much interested in the musical extravaganza, "Wetward Ho!" For that's what it is called.

AND on Saturday we will have the Princeton boys—the Triangle Club—which will give its yearly performance here. I do not know what their play is, but I'm sure it is good, too. The Princeton Club will give a tea and dance on Saturday afternoon before the play for the undergraduates who are to take part in the production, and as there are some eighty undergrads among the performers, I guess there will be a goodly array of guests there.

I DON'T believe I am getting cranky and I don't mind a little bit of make-up in reason. If a person is very tired and very white looking and a touch of rouge makes her look better, provided it is not daubed on so that it is too evident or ugly, I do not see a great objection to it. But this white powdered face effect, with brilliant red mouth, is getting on my nerves. I walked down the street yesterday and I met no fewer than four women, women of breeding and supposed good taste, whose faces looked like false ones. In the first place they were deadly white, and their lips (and in two cases the lips were by no means small) were rouged with a red that was so red it almost bordered on a purple. It was almost frightening!

Of course, I know it's a fad and it will go in time, just as the huge sleeves of the '90s and the small waists of those days have disappeared. But I hope to goodness it goes soon, for it's such an ugly fad and it makes even the sweetest girls look hard as nails. I saw one matron yesterday on the street whose lips were purple with make-up. It was awful! If it was pretty or becoming I would not say anything about it; we all have our weaknesses; but it's so ugly. Why on earth do the young girls do it? Pretty little things with fluffy hair and naturally rosy cheeks, the cheeks all powdered with the rest of the face, and then the red lips.

I heard two women talking just the other day about it, and naturally I have noticed it more than ever since then. This was what one said to the other: "I saw E—— the other day." "How is she?" "Oh, very well apparently. But she looked ghastly; so much powder, you know, and a black coat with white fur and a black-and-white hat, not a touch of color, but a brilliant red handbag which matched her brilliant, red lips; she was a perfect sight!" NANCY WYNNE.
