

From the NEW-YORK DAILY ADVERTISER.

Messrs. CHILDS & SWAINE,

Be pleased to publish the following extract, that the liberal conduct of the revenue officers and merchants of Londonderry may be made public:

Extract of a letter from the master of the ship Mary, at Londonderry, to his owner in New-York.

"WE may think ourselves very fortunate, for through the imposition of Diver, we were near losing our ship. When he applied to you in New-York, little did we think we had a smuggler to deal with; in two of the casks which we supposed to contain flax seed, were concealed two hundred and four pieces of nankeens, which being suspected by the revenue officers, Diver went on shore and informed that he had nankeens on board; upon which Mr. Newburgh, the collector, seized the ship, telling me at the same time that he was obliged to do his duty, but that I might depend upon his assistance in my unfortunate situation. I immediately (by the advice of the principal merchants in this place) gave in a petition to Sir Hugh Hill Bart. the principal officer of his majesty's revenue, who being informed that every person on board the ship (Diver excepted) was quite ignorant of the nankeens being on board, ordered the ship to be sold at auction according to law; every body being convinced that I had not been concerned in the smuggling, generously declined to bid against me, and I purchased the Mary from the revenue of Ireland for TEN GUINEAS, when it was generally expected there would have been a fine of five hundred guineas on her."

From the IMPARTIAL HERALD—a new paper lately established in Newbury-Port—Massachusetts.

Extract from Topographical Sketches of the County of ESSEX.

PASSING over the river, we enter ANDOVER, divided into two parishes. The general appearance of this place is thriving, and for an agricultural town, the buildings, public and private, are in a style of uncommon neatness and elegance. The land is of an excellent quality, and under handsome cultivation; particularly that part of it which is watered by Showheen river, a considerable stream which takes its rise in Bedford in the county of Middlesex, and passing through Billerica, Tewksbury and Andover, discharges itself into Merrimack river, at this latter place. In the south parish are a powder-mill and paper-mill. From the former of these, large supplies were furnished to the army, during the late war. The paper-mill is yet in its infancy, but has already exhibited specimens of its manufacture of an excellent fabric. These are both owned by the Hon. Mr. PHILLIPS, President of the Senate, a native inhabitant of this town, whose unwearied attention to the political, manufactural and literary interests of his country are too well known to need an encomium here, and have endeared his name to the citizens of the Commonwealth in general, and especially to those of the County of Essex. Under his auspices, and by the liberal benefactions of his father, the late Hon. SAMUEL PHILLIPS, of Andover, and of the Hon. JOHN PHILLIPS, L. L. D. of Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire, an academy was instituted in this town, in the year 1778, and in the year 1780 an act passed the Legislature, incorporating the gentlemen above named, with sundry other respectable characters, by the name of "The Trustees of Phillips's Academy in Andover."

The appointments of this seminary are liberal. A preceptor, an assistant preceptor, and a teacher of writing and practical mathematics, are at present well supported, and the funds are said to be in a growing state. Within its original design some higher branches of learning may be taught as ability and opportunity shall arise.

* This name distinguishes this institution from a similar one in New-Hampshire, called "Phillips's Exeter Academy," founded solely by the Hon. Doctor PHILLIPS, the funds of which are said to exceed ten thousand pounds currency.—In addition to these foundations, this gentleman has been by far the most munificent benefactor to Dartmouth University. Such wife and pious distributions of property in the lifetime of the possessor are the most honorable display of genuine public spirit and disinterested patriotism; and the man who thus nobly triumphs over the sordid dictates of avarice or a mistaken self-interest, has surely a better title to be canonized, than a whole host of legendary saints and martyrs.

A Manufacturer of Snuff in Boston, in his advertisement, gives the following character of a particular kind, which he denominates VIOLET SNUFF:

"IT is made from pure clean Tobacco, and granulated in such a manner, as to absorb all superfluous moisture in the head—it does not clog but clears it, and will rather help than destroy the speech. From which there is not that nauseous effluvia, and flaming the handkerchief, that proceeds from fine snuff.

"The odour which proceeds from this Snuff, plays around the delicate fibres of the nose, makes it expand to receive the grateful particles which diffuse themselves to the places designed, perform their office, and gently return and mix with the native air."

UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

IT has hitherto been the practice of this Seminary (as it was all along the practice both of the Old College and of the old University) to examine the several rolls once a week—and, on every such occasion, to levy fines (except where corporal punishment was to be inflicted) on such of the Students, as, during the preceding week, had been either late in their attendance, or absent altogether, at any particular session.

But this practice, however good the design with which it was instituted, was found to be attended with many inconveniences. The collection of so many petty fines was both troublesome and degrading to the Professors. Neither, after all, could the imposition of these fines be expected to produce the desired effect: for, if considerable, they operated rather as a tax upon the parents, than as a punishment on the boys; and, if inconsiderable, were but too apt to be disregarded.—And, as to corporal punishment, the infliction of it so frequently, and in so public a manner, could not but tend to wear out that ingenuous sense of shame and regard to character, which it is one great end of education to cherish and promote.

At a meeting therefore, of the Faculty, held April 18th, 1793, it was unanimously resolved,

"First, that all fines and corporal punishments for attending late, or for being absent altogether, at any particular session, shall be abolished.

"And, secondly, that, on the first Wednesday of every month, there shall be held a meeting of the several Professors and Tutors, for the purpose of examining the general roll, and comparing their several particular rolls; when an accurate statement of the attendance and behavior of each student, during the preceding month, shall be made out, and presented to his parents or guardian."

The Faculty confide, that by thus extending, as it were, the authority of parents and guardians, there will be less need for the exertion of other authority: and that the apprehension of this monthly notice will be found to have at least as much influence on the minds of their pupils, as the apprehension of the weekly fines and punishments were found to have formerly.

Published for the information of the parents and guardians of the students and scholars at the University.

FOR SALE, 1360 Acres of excellent FARMING or TOBACCO LANDS,

LYING in the county of Amherst, in the State of Virginia, on one of the principal branches of James-River, within six miles of the latter, from whence it is navigable for boats of ten or twelve tons burthen.

Besides the advantages of these lands, for the farmer or cultivator of tobacco, they are supposed, from a small though successful experiment made by the late Col. Chiswell, to contain an abundance of metals, which, if not of a precious (as has been even supposed) are certainly of a very valuable kind. The better however to ascertain this fact, and place the purchaser on a safe footing, in so hazardous a business, as all those subterraneous researches, without the utmost certainty of an abundance of the desired ore, are supposed to be, every reasonable and necessary assistance or indulgence will be rendered those inclined to make the experiment, as well as every other necessary information given by the printer of this Gazette in Philadelphia, or JOHN NICHOLAS.
