Wit and Humor.

The following lines were taken from a hymn book in a young lady had incautiously left behind her in chapel:

I look in vain—he does not come:
Dear, dear, what shall I do?
I cannot listen as I ought
Unless he listens too!

He might have come as well as not!
What plagues these fellowsare!
I'll bet he's that asleep at home,
Or smoking a cigar!

A VERY TOUGH STORY.

The following story is told by that renowned wag, Job Phoenix, of the "California Pioneer." The reader will see that it records the verdict of a "coroner's inquest," and in other particulars, bears a striking resemblance to some of the tough stories which our opponents have circulated against the republican party in the States.

Dr. Tushmaker was never regularly bred as a physician or surgeon, but he possessed, naturally, a strong mechanical genius, and a fine appetite; and finding his teeth of great service in gratifying the latter propensity, he concluded that he could do more good in the world, and create more real happiness thereby, by putting the teeth of the inhabitants in good order, than any other way; so he became a dentist.

He was the man that first invented the method of placing small cog-wheels in the back teeth, for the more perfect mastication of food; and he claimed to be the original discoverer of that method of filling cavities with a kind of putty, which, becoming hard tightly, causes the tooth to ache so grievously, that it had to be pulled, thereby giving the dentist two successive fees for the same job.

Tushmaker was one day seated in his office, in the city of Boston, Massachusetts, when a stout old fellow, named Byles, presented himself to have a back tooth drawn.

The dentist seated his patient in the chair of torture, and opening his mouth, discovered there an enormous tooth, on the right-hand side, about as large, as he afterwards expressed it, "as a small Polygot Bible." "I shall have trouble with this tooth," thought Tushmaker; but he clapped on his heaviest forceps and pulled. It didn't come. Then he tried a screw, exerting his utmost strength, but the tooth wouldn't stir.

"Go away from here," said Tushmaker, to his clerk, and return in a week, and I will draw that tooth out, or I will know the reason why."

Byles got up, clapped a handkerchief to his jaw, and put forth.

The dentist went to work and in three days invented an instrument, which, he was confident, would pull anything. It was a combination of the lever, pulley, wheel and axle, inclined plane, wedge and screw. The east-iron screw shade, and the machine put up in his office, over an iron chair, rendered perfectly satisfactory by iron bolts going into the foundation of the granite building.

In a week old Byles returned; he was placed in the iron chair, the forceps clinched in the machine attached firmly to the tooth, and Tushmaker, stationing himself at the rear, took hold of a lever, four feet long.

He turned it slightly—old Byles gave a groan and lifted his right leg. Another turn, another groan, and higher went old Byles' right leg again.

"What do you raise your leg for?" asked the doctor.

"I can't help it," said the patient.

"Well," said Tushmaker, "the tooth is bound to come now."

He turned the lever clear round, with a golden jerk, and snapped old Byles' head round and clear from his shoulders, leaving a piece of four inches between the severed parts!

He had a post mortem examination—the roots of the tooth were found extending down through the right leg, and turning up in two points exactly under the sole of the right foot.

"No wonder" said Tush, "that he raised my leg."

The jury agreed to this, but they found the Doctor blameless, and five surgeons swear-ing to his justification would have ensued in a few months. Tushmaker was cleared on a verdict of "justifiable homicide."

He was a little shy of that instrument afterwards; but one day an old lady, feeble and faded, came in to have a tooth drawn, and thinking it would come out very easily, Tushmaker concluded, just by way of variety, to try the machine.

He did so; and at the first turn drew the old lady's skeleton completely and entirely from her body, leaving her a mass of quivering jelly in the chair!

Tushmaker took her home in a pillow-case. She lived seven years after that, and they called her the "India Rubber Woman."—She had suffered terribly with the rheumatism under this operation, never had a pain in her bones. The dentist kept them in a glass case.

After this the machine was sold to the collector of the Boston Custom-house; and it was found that a child three years of age, by a single turn of the screw, raise a pipe twenty-five tons!

Numerous offers were made on the same principle, and sold to the keepers of hotels and boarding-houses. They were advantageously used by boarding-takers.

There is no moral at all to this story, and it is possible that the circumstances may have become slightly exaggerated. Of course, they can be no doubt of the truth of the main facts.

GRASS'N GENERAL GEOGRAPHY, stand up! Boys, stop scratching your head! Robert, take your fingers out of that ink bottle!—Now, answer me Dick—How is Pennsylvania bounded?

"Bounded on norf by several places, on the east by several more, on the souf by everywhere, and on the west by all creation."

"Wrong—next?"

"Pennsylvania is bounded on the norf by John Van Buren, short-nosed abolitionists, clam-bakes, and other vegitables—on the east by a considerable quantity of salt water—on the souf by canebrake politicians, wool and dismal swamps—and on the west by alligators, small mountings, and three story steamboats, on the high-pressure principle!"

FIGURES OF SPEECH.—A phriend pheeling family phigurative, phurnishes the phollowing:

"Forty fortunate feevers fruitously fortifying four fortresses, feebly fhade forty formidable feigners fearing fagging fees."

ATTENDING TO A WISH.—"I wish you would pay a little attention, sir!" exclaimed a stage-manager to a careless actor. "Well, so I am paying as little as I can!" was the reply.

A CALIFORNIAN GRAMMARIAN and gold-miner, whose fingers were burnt, has favored the world with the following grammatical moral: "Positive, mine; comparative, miner; superlative, mines."

SYMPTOMS SUCCESSIVE OF THE WEATHER.—A mother-in-law, coming up from the country, and bringing her boxes with her, is generally a sure prognostication of a hard winter.

A CLERICAL QUESTION ON THE NAVY.—Does a Post Admiral mean an admiral who is laid down for a long series of years, and not intended for service till he is very old?

TERRIBLY CLOSE-FISTED.—We know an individual who is so excessively illiberal, that he won't even give a girl a kiss without insisting on having it back again.
