BLAZE IN CHICAGO BLAMED ON LABOR

Partially Built Apartment House Ruined by Spectacular Fire

WOMAN TELLS OF BOMBS

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 17.—Police today searched for unexploded bombs believed to have been placed in a $500,000 apartment building in North Chicago, which was damaged last night by fire attributed to terrorists in connection with the Chicago labor war.

Authorities also are concentrating their efforts on the confession said to have been obtained yesterday from Mrs. Margaret Miller, wife of John Miller, now under arrest as the alleged driver of the "death car" from which shots were fired, killing two policemen early Wednesday.

Police connect the firing of the building with labor disorders through a man who warned two women in an adjoining building to escape before their building caught fire. He ran down the steps shouting, "To hell with the Landis award!"

The building, damaged by fire with an estimated loss of $100,000, was being erected under the Landis wage award. It was owned by a contractor who denied receiving threats from labor men.

That the fire was set has been proven beyond doubt, police say, for it was started on the first and second floor in various parts almost simultaneously.

The questioning of Mrs. Miller, police say, brought a full confession from her in which the names of other occupants of the "death car" were given and it is substantiated by a previous confession attributed to her husband.

Police said Mrs. Miller admitted caring for the occupants of the bandits' car, who were supposed to have been wounded by shots from the policemen's pistols. Mrs. Miller also admitted sitting in conference with labor leaders in which bombings and attacks were discussed, police said, and admitted knowing that explosives were kept in her home to be used by labor men in their fight against the Landis award.

Uncommon Sense

Looking Ahead

By JOHN BLAKE

"WHERE there is no vision," says the Book of Proverbs, "the people perish."

To which Ecclesiastics adds:

"Whatsoever thou takest in hand, remember the end, and thou shalt not be amiss."

Through the history of the world it has been the few men of vision that have done the planning. The rest of the people walked in the ways that the planners set for them.

JUST now the world seems without a plan for the future, but men of vision will be found, as they always have been found, to supply one.

It is when vision is lacking, when the people get confused as to the ways they should take, that wars arise and populations are destroyed, and the seeds of hatred and bitterness are sown.

The world has passed through such a time, but is happily out of it.

What we are concerned with in these articles is the individual, rather than the world. It is for the editorial writers, not for us, to comment on statecraft and the trend of the times.

But what is true of the world is true of the individual. Vision is as necessary to the single struggling human being as it is to a nation or to a whole world.

He who remembers the end, no matter what he has taken in hand, shall not be amiss, whether he is building a dog kennel or a bridge over the widest river in the world.

He must, while his hands are employed on the part of the work before them, keep in his thought the whole that is to be completed.

He must know what he intends to do in the end, before he makes his beginning, or all his efforts will be in vain.

VISION is merely looking ahead, and planning for the future. We cannot foresee accidents, or upheavals of nature, or the weather of year after next. But if we could not see into the future at all, we should get nothing accomplished.

The men who built the Pyriamids were able to picture them as they stood completed before the first stone was dragged to its position on the sands.

The men who founded the American Nation—which is the newest of the great nations—could see much of its future and were able to provide for it a Constitution which has needed but little change.

Letting tomorrow take care of itself is a foolish policy. Our work is today, but if we do not try to make tomorrow what it should be, we shall have no [illegible] nation or individual, we
