BUSINESS ON CURB CENTERED IN OILS

Southern States in Big Demand. Tobaccos Strong—Gimbel Common at New High

New York, Aug. 11.—Activity and strength were displayed in many stocks on the curb today. Oil stocks were among the prominent features, special attention being attached to dealings in Southern States Oil, which moved up to 13¾ on unusually large demand, coming, to a great extent, from Southern and Western interests.

Standard Oil of Indiana was also well held, ranging from 10⅝ to 10¾ in the first half of the day, and Cities Service which has been under pressure since the beginning of the week, showed a rallying tendency, making a 5-point gain to 181. Maracaibo was also strong, advancing from 22 to 25, and Mexican Eagle rose from 12¾ to 13⅛.

Tobacco stocks were the strong feature in the industrial group. British American Tobacco being traded in on a large scale at 19¼ to 19⅝. Tobacco Products Exports showed strength, advancing to 7½, and Philip Morris was traded in at 20¼.

Motor stocks were steady, Stutz Motor being traded in on the largest scale of any issue in this group and ranging from 24 to 23. Lincoln Motors ranged from 2⅛ to 1⅞ and Mercer Motors sold at 2½ to 3. Durant Motors sold at 39 during the first half of the day. The Indiana shares sold at 13⅛.

There was a special movement in Gimbel Brothers common when issued, which rose to 46, a new high record. The preferred held at 102.

Executive Wants West Coast Agency

TO GET in touch with a high-type man, who can take the Pacific Coast agency for our standardized product, write to C 526, Ledger Office.

This man is an executive of ability. He has had 12 years' experience with production, marketing and finance in a large Eastern corporation. A substantial salary and bonus basis should prove mutually desirable.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM

Letters to the Editor

Prof. Fisher Defends His Dollar

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:

Sir—My attention has been called to the amusing jibes of a newspaper correspondent (quoted in an editorial of the EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER) at my plan for stabilizing the dollar. Your correspondent, as a reductio ad absurdum, suggests that we might as well stabilize the weather by "adding to or taking from the amount of mercury in the standard thermometer."

Your readers may like to compare this caricature of my plan with the real analogy involved. It does not seem to occur to your correspondent that there is already a device which can and does "stabilize the weather" inside of a building. It is called a thermostat. In fact, one form of thermostat recently invented (by my son-in-law) will usually keep the temperature of a hospital uniform within a small fraction of a degree.

The principle of the thermostat is not to add to or take from the mercury, but to add to or take from the supply of heat on the basis of the mercury reading as an index of what is required.

Similarly my plan for stabilizing the purchasing power of the dollar is not to add to or subtract from that purchasing power "by Government proclamation," but to add to or take from the gold in the dollar according to the readings of the index number of prices.

Your correspondent illustrates the truth of Roger Babson's statement that only those who do not understand this plan oppose it.

The same mail which brings your comment on the correspondent's article poking fun at this proposal brings another article from the Boston Herald commending the plan and pointing out its difference from such inflationistic proposals as the writer believes Edison's and Ford's monetary proposals to be.

In further correction of your correspondent, I would like to point out that the Stable Money League, through its Research Council (of which I am not a member) is making a study of all stabilization plans and is not as yet committed to mine or any other. Stable Money Leagues have also been begun in France, Italy, Germany, etc., because, as ex-Vice President Marshall has said, "Next to the problem of peace there is no more important problem before the world today than stabilization of money."

The problem was brought up at Genoa and a proposal for its solution approved. This Genoa proposal originated in England, where already 3,000,000 laborers have their wages adjusted by an index number—a clear recognition of the instability of money.

If your correspondent or any one else has a better monetary thermostat to propose than mine, we shall all welcome the opportunity to examine its construction. IRVING FISHER.

Dr. Spurgeon and the Weathercock

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:

Sir—Perhaps not inappropriate to the little breezy discussion and your editorial on "weather cocks," coincident to the weather-vane rooster (or should it be rooster weather-vane?) on the tower of the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant in Lower Merion, might be related the anecdote mentioned in the career of the celebrated Baptist preacher of London a generation ago, Charles Haddon Spurgeon.

It seems that, in visiting one of his deacons, who lived in the outskirts of London, he noticed on the peak of the barn a weather-vane on which was inscribed, "God is Love." "Why, deacon," inquired the pastor, "do you mean to indicate that God's love is as variable as the wind?"

"Not at all," replied the deacon; "that's to show that no matter which way the wind blows, 'God is Love'."

HOWARD S. ANDERS.

Which Wife Do You Pick?

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:

Sir—There's a problem I wish to submit to your readers.

Which makes the better wife a Jersey girl or a Philadelphia girl?

Now it's not really a problem to me, for I counted that the Jersey girl is far away the choice, but the matter was brought up at a week-end club last Saturday, and a lot of the fellows said the Philadelphia girls were the only ones for them.

Now what I say is this: What men want is a woman who is more or less of a stay-at-home, a woman who is fond of home things and likes to cook and keep house and can make a man comfortable. And that about describes most of our Jersey girls. There are some fix-up-the-cracks with jazz brains and bequeued complexions, but most of 'em aren't built that way. They're just wholesome, simple girls who like wholesome, simple things, and to my mind they make ideal wives.

Most of these Philadelphia girls, to my way of thinking, are just idle chatterboxes with nary a thought except for clothes and the movies.

Allen and Liquor Laws

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:

Sir—Your correspondents on the Eighteenth Amendment for the most part are only gnawing at the shell of a nut from which the kernel was extracted four years ago by a man who was defeated for the presidency for the best reason that should have elected him, viz., because he possessed a judicial mind, a quality which appears to have been woefully lacking in the personnel of the succeeding Administration.

I would advise all Americans, whether they have read the Declaration of Independence or not and our Constitution, to read the article published in the Public Ledger Sunday morning, August 6, page 21, and learn the real meaning of permitting this alien law to become an permanent millstone around our necks. It is not a question of wet or dry that confronts us, since that could easily and effectively be controlled by our legislatures; it is the far more momentous question affecting the very fundamental principles upon which our whole governmental structure is erected.

Those principles are very clearly set forth in the Declaration of Independence in two words, "inalienable rights," and exaltated into a bill of indictment against a usurper of those rights which describes very nearly the intolerance visited upon us by the fanatical Anti-Saloon Leaguers and their alien tool, Mr. Volstead, whose European mind can digest only one form of government and that is—force.

We are a self-governing people because we obey our Constitution from conviction, not from compulsion.

Mr. Volstead doesn't understand this, and therefore is not fit or capable of judging what is or is not the proper material in the making of a constitution for a self-governing people. He has taken the in out of inalienable and left us an "Alienation of Rights." He has debauched the people with the worse evil; violated the spirit and letter of our Constitution by declaring us to be morally incapable to govern our States or ourselves, and inoculated with the poison of an insidious bureaucratic ulcer the very vitals of our national life.

Ex-President Taft is right. Rip the Eighteenth Amendment out, root and branch, and restore to the people their Constitution pure and undefiled by the withering touch of political sycophants and demagogues. C. W. S.

Questions Answered

Chicago Tunnels

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:

Sir—Will you please tell me if Chicago, Ill., has a tube under the Chicago River, and if you know will you please tell me what street and when it was built?

JOHN J. RIDGWAY.
Camden, N. J., August 10, 1922.

Until recently Chicago had three tunnels under the Chicago River—two under the west branch and one under the north branch at La Salle street. Only the La Salle street tunnel was in general use for trolleys and foot passengers for many years, until all were torn out about two years ago. They were built about 1880.

Can a Reader Supply This?

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:

Sir—Could you or any of your readers supply the remaining lines and the title to the following song:

Oh, mister, take me in your car:
I want to see mama.
They say she lives in heaven.
Is it very, very far?

My new mama is very cross:
She scolds me every day.
They say she does not like me.
For I'm always in the way.

Poems and Songs Desired

"The Letter That Never Came"

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:

Sir—Kindly print in the People's Forum the words of the song "The Letter That Never Came." A. B. C.
Philadelphia, August 8, 1922.

THE LETTER THAT NEVER CAME

A letter here for me? was the question that he asked
Of the mail man at the closing of the day.
He turned sadly with a sigh, while a tear stealthily in his eye;
Then he bowed his head and slowly walked away.
Then he murmured: Can it be? Will it ever come to me?
Had he waited all these many years in vain?
Yet from early morning light he would watch till late at night
For that letter, but, alas! it never came.

CHORUS

Was it from a gray-haired mother, a sister or a brother?
Had he waited all these many years in vain?
Yet from early morning light he would watch with strife light,
But the letter that he longed for never came.

He had waited many years, joy had mingled with his tears,
When the old postmaster met him with a smile,
How his features they would brighten and his sad heart seem to lighten,
But his vain hopes lasted only a little while.
When the postmaster would say, "There's nothing here today."
He'd bemoan his fate, yet no one would he blame.
Then he murmured: Surely, sometimes she must think of me!
Still he wondered why that missive never came.

So one day upon the shore he was found, but life was o'er;
His poor soul it had gone out with the tide.
In his hand they found a note, with the last words that he wrote:
Should a letter come, please place it at my side.
Sweet flowers twine around the tombstone o'er his mound,
On which was scrawled his age, also his name
Many years have gone, they say, since his spirit passed away,
But the letter that he longed for never came.

Glover's Gypsy Song

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:

Sir—Here is "The Gypsy Countess," for which "H. S. G. P.," of Ridley Park, made request. The words are by Mrs. Crawford, and the music to which it was sung was composed by Stephen Glover. The song must have been composed before 1870, as my father sang it when I was a child. Glover also composed "What Are the Wild Waves Saying?" which is probably his best piece.

T. J. L.
Philadelphia, August 9, 1922.

THE GYPSY COUNTESS

Oh, how can a poor gypsy maiden like me
Ever hope the proud bride of a noble to be?
To some bright-jeweled beauty thy vows will be paid,
And thou will forget her, the poor gypsy maid.
And thou will forget her, the poor gypsy maid.

Earl—
Away with that thought! I am free, I am free
To devote all the love of my spirit to thee;
Young rose of the wilderness, blushing and sweet,
All my heart, all my fortune, I lay at thy feet,
All my heart, all my fortune, I lay at thy feet.
By yon bright moon above.

Gypsy—
That can change like man's love!

Earl—
By the sun's constant ray!

Gypsy—
That night's tears chase away!

Duet together:
Oh, never by me will thy trust be betrayed.
Oh, never by one will try trust be betrayed:

Gypsy—
Thou wilt love me forever, thine own gypsy maid:

Earl—
I will love thee forever, my own gypsy maid.

Gypsy—
Thou wilt love me forever, thine own gypsy maid.

Earl—
I will live thee forever, my own gypsy maid.

Gypsy—
Go, flatterer, go! I'll not trust to thy art.
Go! Leave me and trifle no more with my heart!
Go! Leave me to dwile in my own native shade,
And betray not the heart of the poor gypsy maid.
And betray not the heart of the poor gypsy maid.

Earl—
I have lands and proud dwellings, and all shall be thine.
A coronet, Zillah! that brow shall entwine!
Thou shalt never have reason thy faith to upbraid.
For a countess I'll make thee, my own gypsy maid,
For a countess I'll make thee, my own gypsy maid.
Then fly with me now!

Gypsy—
Shall I trust to thy vow?

Earl—
Ah, yes! Come away!

Gypsy—
Wilt thou never betray?
