THE MARKETS.

Wall Street Review.

New York, May 14.—The inherent weakness of the stock market after last week's severe shock to confidence became obvious today, and some violent declines were caused by a comparatively light volume of liquidation. The weakness was partly due to the fact that the natural rebound after the panic had expended itself. The factors which caused that rebound were elements of weakness at the higher level of prices. For instance, the professional operators who were so fortunate as to secure stocks that were sacrificed at the low level on Thursday were very willing to sell and take profits when they perceived that the rebound had about reached its limits. There was another class, that of the insiders and friends of various stocks, who bought heavily on Thursday to support their favorites in order to protect their values as far as possible. This class was anxious to lighten its holdings when the panic was checked and took advantage of the high level of prices.

The bears also resumed their aggressive mood today, and not only offered prices down to take the market away from those seeking to hold it, but were industriously circulating alarmist rumors of the further checks to ensue from the conflict in Northern Pacific. There were whispers about the exchange also of a new element of disturbance in the Union Pacific situation. That stock was most prominent in the market all day and its violent break after a brief period of strength was an effective influence in unsettling the whole market. It was the prevalent belief in the market also that the powerful operators, including the most conspicuous one of the group, who were so long foremost in the bull market had turned to the bear side and were selling freely. Whatever the causes at work it was clear that the buying demand for stocks had fallen to insignificant proportions and the liquidation, even of comparatively light lines, caused sudden and rapid melting away of values. There were intervals on the down grade of 1, 2 and even 5 points between sales. A scrutiny of the price changes of the day will reveal net losses of between 3 and 6 points for a large number of the principal active stocks. The decline below last night's level reached in Union Pacific 15, St. Paul 9⅝, Delaware and Hudson, Missouri Pacific and Consolidated Gas 8, Northern Pacific 10, Lackawanna 7¾, Manhattan and Amalgamated Copper 6½ and Rock Island 6.

The money market was not an influence as there was no large demand for call loans. Total sales today, 1,218,700 shares. Bonds became weak in sympathy with stocks after an early show of strength. Total sales, par value, $2,870,000. U. S. refunding 2s and new 4s advanced ¼ per cent, on the last call.
