UNDER THE LEAVES.

Underneath the leaves are hidden
Tiny little blades of grass,
Sleeping there till spring shall come
Safe from winters bitter blast.
Covered o'er as with a blanket
Like a little child they sleep.
Wakening with the warm spring showers
From their covers then they peep.
Mother nature watches o'er them
For they are her children dear
She cries to them when April comes
"Waken up for spring is here."
The love of mother nature
All around us we can see.
And from her can learn a lesson
Just what we should try to be.
